The membership drive in the association opened with a dinner at the Hotel Cornhusker. The association memberships sell for five dollars, but student memberships will be sold for $2.50. The sale will close at the end of the week for all but students, for whom another campaign will be conducted next fall. The association will bring several internationally-known artists to Lincoln in addition to five concerts during the year. Only those with memberships will be admitted to the concerts, Mrs. Steckleberg stated. Sigrid Onegin, contralto, has been secured to head the list of outside artists. All concerts will be held at the Stuart theater.

Official Week. Mayor Frank C. Zehrung of Lincoln issued an official proclamation Monday designating the week as symphony week. He urged that all possible cooperation be given to the salesmen in the drive to make the association a success.

At a recent meeting of the board of regents, it was decided to support and sponsor the symphony orchestra as one of the university's activities. Dean Howard Kirkpatrick of the school of music, endorsed the plan, stating that it was an aid in bringing good music to the students.

SPRING WEATHER MAY PREVAIL FOR PARTY

Dr. Bengston Says Climatic Change Might Come On Friday.

That spring weather may prevail by the time Friday arrives, bringing the Biazd Spring party which officially opens the spring party season, is indicated by Prof. Nels A. Bengston, chairman of the department of geography. "The chances are," said Professor Bengston, "that the high pressure areas and cold weather storm now prevailing will soon pass and will be followed by much more moderate temperatures in this vicinity. This change may take place by Friday."

Music and entertainment for the affair, the tickets for which are selling at a dollar each, will be furnished by Eddie Jungbluth and his orchestra with Harriet Cruise Kemmer and Lyle DeMoss, vocalists. Mrs. Kemmer's selections will include "That's Why Darkies Were Born," "Rhapsody in Love," and "You're My Everything."

The Biazd Executive Board is sponsoring the affair and Norman Prucka, sophomore, Wilbur, is chairman of the party committee. Prucka reports that ticket sales have been good.

"Profits from the party will go toward building up activities within the college of business administration," according to Chalmers Graham, junior, Hastings, who is also on the party committee.

St. Paul's Epworth league is entertaining at a St. Patrick's party Friday evening at 8 o'clock at the church. All students are invited to attend.

'Triplets' Was Verdict of Doctor At Ag College Monday Night When Anxious Sheep Herdsman Inquired

By GEORGE ROUND.

"Oh doctor, oh doctor is it a male or female," questioned the young herdsman at the Nebraska agricultural college Monday as the "vet" appeared in the anteroom of the sheep barn. "Boy or girl, me eye! Nothing of the sort but triplets," exclaimed the skilled veterinarian who has ushered many a young lamb forth into this world. And so triplets were born to a Hampshire ewe of unknown age Monday night as the wind whipped and howled about the sheep barn. Though the weather was as cold as it has been thus far this winter, the lambs were in safe care for the herdsman had prepared for the coming of the offspring. Nothing was left undone. However, triplets were not expected. Though it isn't often that ewes have triplets, Prof. M. A. Alexander of the animal husbandry department declares that they expect at least one such happening once a year. However, it isn't often that the ewes lamb triplets on such a cold night. That is the unusual part of the story. The sire of the triplets is none other than a newly purchased ram from the flock belonging to Mrs. Minnie Miller of Idaho. He was

SMOKING NOT PASSING FAD SAYS MRS. INNIS

W.C.T.U. President Refutes Statement of National Officer.

BLAMES CIGARETTE ADS

Women's smoking is not a passing fad in Nebraska, but rather is being continued and harmful results will undoubtedly accrue to the coming generation, declared Mrs. Iva M. Innis, president of the state W. C. T. U. in an interview with the Daily Nebraskan Tuesday afternoon. Her opinion is a refutation of the one held by Mrs. G. F. Halverson, president of the Madison Central W. C. T. U. in Wisconsin. Mrs. Halverson maintains that smoking among women is on the decrease. The reply of Mrs. Innis, when asked about the Wisconsin case, is as follows:

"As far as the W. C. T. U. in Nebraska is concerned we deplore the fact that women are taking to cigarettes and we fear the results in the next generation. It is far more injurious for women to smoke than for men because women are more delicate. Personally I do not see that smoking by women is on the decrease in Nebraska."

In Last Generation.

The prevalence of smoking among a significant number of women has occurred only during the last generation, in the opinion of Mrs. Innis.

"Personally," she says, "I had never observed a woman smoking, except in one instance, before I came to Lincoln last June. I had heard stories of the smoking which was going on but I had never believed them. But during the last few months I have seen a great deal of it and this is the reason I say that it is not on the decrease."

There are not, according to Mrs. Innis, many cases in Nebraska where daughters are smoking because their mothers do. On the whole it is a practice which is common only to the rising generation. This is attributed by Mrs. Innis largely to the pernicious advertising which, she says, camouflages the dangers of smoking and makes it seem attractive. She does not wholly blame the women for this for she says it is so cleverly written that unless a person is wary she may easily be fooled by advertising of this sort.

Mrs. Innis hopes that young women of Nebraska will realize that cigarette smoking is an evil which will hurt themselves not so much as their progeny. She believes that women smokers, after all, are by far in the minority, even here in Lincoln, and hopes that those few who do think it "smart" or "chic" will soon realize their fallacy and stop before it is too late.

L. E. GUNDERSON LEADER OF DRIVE FOR UNEMPLOYED

Finance Secretary Acting Chairman of American Legion Campaign.

DO NOT WANT CHARITY

Citizens Asked to Create Jobs; May Introduce Shorter Hours.

Through the efforts of L. E. Gunderson, finance secretary of the University of Nebraska and commander of Lincoln post No. 3 of the American Legion, an intensive drive to secure jobs for Lincoln's unemployed is to be undertaken within the next few days. At a meeting of a dozen civic groups and members of the Lincoln city council called by Mr. Gunderson at the chamber of commerce Tuesday noon, it was decided to proceed immediately to canvass the city for jobs for the unemployed.

Mr. Gunderson was made temporary chairman. Committee members from the groups are to be selected at another meeting Wednesday noon, after which the work will begin. The plan is to solicit every business man and other individuals, property owners, to urge them to indicate he or his firm is willing to do during the next three months to create jobs, permanent or temporary.

Introduce Legion Program. "What we are trying to do is put into effect the Legion's program to get jobs for at least 1,000,000 citizens throughout the country," Gunderson said. "If necessary, employers will be asked to adopt the six-hour day and five-day week as a practical plan for giving more employment."

"We feel there are a number of Lincoln business men and residents who are anxious to do their share. We have work in our own homes we have neglected to have done."

ST. PATRICK'S MOTIF AT UNIVERSITY PARTY

Eddie Jungbluth's Orchestra To Play for Occasion; Green, White Colors.

BUY TICKETS AT DOOR

Eddie Jungbluth's twelve piece orchestra, playing beneath a half mile of colored crepe paper, will be the outstanding feature of the all university St. Patrick's party to be given at the University coliseum Saturday night, March 12, according to an announcement made yesterday by Delphin Nash, chairman of the barb council in charge of the party.

The orchestra will be seated upon a platform in the center of the field house, which will also be the center of a huge canopy of green and white decorations in keeping with the spirit of the party.

George Thomas, who has charge of the decorating, stated that the St. Patrick theme will be carried out in the large streamers of crepe paper, which will all converge to a peak above the orchestra. The colors of green and white will be alternated in the streamers, and the other decorations will be appropriate to the occasion.

Orchestra in Center.

"The placing of the orchestra in the center of the floor," commented Nash, "should make it possible for the music to be heard much more equally on all parts of the floor. We are sure that the arrangement will be well received."

Tickets for the party, which starts at 8:30 Saturday evening, may be secured then at the door of the coliseum.

'Jazz No More Seductive Than Music Of Bygone Days; Becoming Refined,' Declares Director of R. O. T. C. Band

By MARGARET EDGERTON. "Jazz is no more seductive than music of the by-gone days," says William T. Quick, director of bands. "Jazz causes action, it does not soothe as the waltzes did, but one cannot say that it is not beautiful." Mr. Quick added that the modern arrangements and synopsations of different instruments tended to make the music livelier, brighter, and more enjoyable to the public as a whole. When Mr. Quick was asked when he thought the jazz movement first started, he replied: "I think it started during the World War. The soldiers in the many companies called for relaxation and a medium into which they could all enter and forget the present. Some of the boys in the companies played banjos, guitars, or saxophones and amused the rest by strumming little hits that they made up. After the war, jazz became very crude—anything was used that would make noise, cowbells even. More Refined. Now it is becoming more refined, and the modern arrangements are very well put together."

STUDENT COUNCIL PLANS TO DISCUSS REPRESENTATION

Will Investigate Feasibility Of Member on Athletic Board of Control.

ANSWER QUESTIONNAIRE

Majority of Representative Schools Favor Plan Says Art Wolf.

Discussion of the plan of obtaining student representation on the athletic board of control will be the main item of business at the meeting of the student council tonight at 5 o'clock in U Hall.

Acting upon the recommendation of the council delegates to the National Student Federation association convention, the council decided to investigate the feasibility of securing a student member on the athletic board of control. Most of the schools represented at the convention reported that they had students on the various athletic boards.

Questionnaires on the subject were sent out to more than fifty representative schools in the country by the athletic relations committee of the council, asking about their methods of control of athletic matters and policies.

Favor Representation. Not all schools have replied to the questionnaires yet, according to Art Wolf, chairman of the athletic relations committee, but of those answering, the majority of them have reported some form of student representation on the group regulating athletics.

The Junior-Senior prom committee were: Bill Devereaux and Mary Alice Kelly, co-chairman; Jack Thompson, Jane Axtell, Art Pinkerton, Gertrude Clarke, Howard Alloway, Jane Robertson, Irving Walker, Eleanor Dixon, Charles Skade, and Mary Sutton.

'FRIENDSHIP' THEME OF WEEKLY VESPERS

Miss Dunn Addresses Group; Mr. Arthur Cunningham Next Speaker.

The Big Sister advisory board was in charge of the weekly vespers meeting with the main theme "Friendship." Margaret Upton, a member of the board, was in charge of the meeting and gave the chief reason for the Big Sister board. The purpose is for the older girls and freshmen on the campus to get acquainted. The "little sisters" revealed to their big sisters that their main need was to make friends. By the report given by all of the big sisters 25 percent of the little sisters gave the impression of wanting to know and be friends with more people.

Miss Katherine Dunn of the psychology department gave her ideas and quoted those of others on friendship. "One of the greatest quests of life and happiness is friendship—the having of someone to hear our joys, and to share our ups and downs of life and to tide us along at this time. Friends round out our life, for we want various friends for various moods."

"The bond of affection or love between persons and carrying obligations privileges" was the definition which Miss Dunn gave to friendship. The obligations are sincerity, loyalty, truthfulness and confidence. She expressed the privileges as the return of obligations, and the opportunity to make other lives richer, better, happier, and to steer them thru difficulties. Miss Dunn ended by stating that the sweetness of life depends upon one's many friendships.

Marjorie Peterson announced that Arthur Cunningham from the capitol would speak at the next meeting.
