theater during its second runs of the past two weeks. Likewise fans show their appreciation of clever vaudeville by their comment and attendance of the past two Stuart presentations.

University movie fans will have the usual varied array of current presentations to furnish distractions and amusements within the week.

STATE. The State theater will have a split week with "Night Nurse" and "Five Star Final".

"Five Star Final" takes the fan behind the scenes of a modern tabloid daily to see supposed ruthlessness of newspaper methods.

STUART. The newest effect of Richard Barthelmess is "Alias the Doctor" at the Stuart.

ORPHEUM. A rather light but interesting yarn is that of a beauty contest winner who marries a millionaire in "She Wanted a Millionaire".

OBERLIES SPEAKS ON DELIAN-UNION PROGRAM FRIDAY

A program, under the chairmanship of Hubert Heigelo, was given at the Delian-Union Literary society Friday evening. Pledges were in charge.

L. C. Oberlies, of Lincoln, speaker of the evening, gave a talk on "Strut Your Stuff".

Other features of the evening were little Betty Lee Snyder singing four children's songs and an act by Charles Woolcock, a Lincoln "escape" artist.

CHINA'S FLIGHT APPEARS SERIOUS TO FORMER NEBRASKA STUDENTS WHO ARE AT WORK IN NATIVE COUNTRY.

his repentance at his thoughts so overcome him that he became seriously ill and was for a long time in a hospital. His health was poor before he left Nebraska. He is recovering, according to Lian Yu, but is still very weak and able to teach but a few hours a week in a high school.

A frequent visitor "behind the scenes," he learned the practical problems of telephony along with his work in engineering at the university, where he was known as a keen student in mathematics.

When he graduated, he worked in Chicago for a telephone company which later transferred his to its Shanghai branch. While with that company, Lian Yu spent six months helping install a common battery telephone exchange at Changchow. Later he helped install the first automatic telephone exchange at Nanking, the Chinese capital.

When business conditions were bad last summer, he found himself out of a job but was quickly placed on the staff of the China Electric Co. He is the supplier and installer for seven automatic telephone offices in the international settlement in Shanghai.

Some of the experiences of his fellow countrymen who were in the university with him are related by Lian Yu.

is Chemistry instructor. Yin Min Lin has been teaching chemistry since returning to his native land, now being an instructor at Northwestern university in Shansi province. He was an exceptional student at chemistry while in the university, and was elected to Sigma X.

Charles T. Lee has a responsible position in the accounting department of a coal mining corporation in Honan province. He was a student in the college of business administration at the university.

Dr. Leland is not certain what has become of K. Kwei Chen, whose poetry while at the University of Nebraska attracted much attention. He taught at a time but Doctor Leland believes that he is now studying in Germany.

The other member of the group, Benjamin F. Wong, is an engineering student at the university. Form Lucheon Club.

While in the university, with Doctor Leland they organized a club to help them in their use of English, meeting for luncheon every Friday noon. They called themselves the "Chinese bandits" and named Doctor Leland their "chief." That was when roving Chinese bandits were attracting much attention.

Altho the boys have been playing interesting roles in the development of China, it is a discouraging picture that Lian Yu paints of his country.

"Now China is suffering from the atrocious aggression of Japan," he writes, "Justice and humanity and peace are fooling our people. In Mukden, the Chinese authorities thought Japan, as a civilized nation would never attack the civilians if the Chinese army refrained from desisting. However, facts prove just the opposite.

"Murder Inhabitants. "Whenever Japanese marines occupy a Chinese town, they search every house and murder all those who seem to be students or officials. As soon as they get thru with one town, they start to search the next one. There is apparently no limit for them.

"The way they start trouble is to have their armed 'ronins' (a Japanese word meaning fellows without definite jobs) set fire to Chinese public buildings or factories or attack the police station, always in the night. If the Chinese offer no resistance, they may be temporarily satisfied with a few victims among the Chinese population."

Shanghai started in the same manner. "First a group of Japanese ronins' hire to a Chinese weaving factory which is regarded by Japanese as their keen competitor in business. Then the Japanese consul sent an ultimatum to the Chinese mayor with five demands which it is impossible to imagine any nation in this world could accept.

"The Japanese thought that the Chinese mayor never would accept all of their demands and that they could then attack China on that excuse.

Seek Excuse to Attack. "Losing this chance, they made another one right afterwards. At 11:30 that night, the mayor and police headquarters received a letter from the Japanese consul and naval commander demanding the withdrawal of Chinese troops from Chinese territory so that Japanese marines could occupy it.

Naturally an answer on this could not have been given before the next morning. Nevertheless, Japanese marines marched out at 12:30 that night with six war tanks and attacked the north station where 200 Chinese soldiers were stationed.

"Next morning Japanese airplanes began bombing the Chapei territory, setting fire to many private buildings in that section. Then more marines, more troops, more airplanes, and more warships came from Japan. There has been fire every day in Chapei for the last two days. When I am writing this letter, I can hear clearly the firing of their 15-inch field guns."

The letter criticizes the use by Japan of portions of the international settlement as a base of operations. The Chinese youth also sent copies of the American newspaper at Shanghai at about the time the attack of the Japanese opened. Its editorials vigorously condemned the Japanese move and included a number of petitions from citizens urging a cessation of such hostilities.

DELTA SIGMA RHO BEGINS WORK FOR DEBATE TOURNEY

The letter proposed that the question for debate should be one of campus interest; of concern to the student body as a whole. All university students who have not competed on the varsity debate team, will be eligible to participate.

Two Member Teams. Teams will consist of two members. Each house will be asked to take both the affirmative and the negative side of the question which can be done by having two teams, an affirmative and a negative, or by having one team which will debate both sides.

The tournament will be a round-robin affair, with each house meeting every other house one time, the winner being the one with the highest percentage. The debates will be held in the chapter houses. Each speaker will be given eight minutes in main speech and four minutes in rebuttal, giving each side twenty-four minutes, and thus making the debate come to a close in less than an hour.

Each debate will be judged by three competent and impartial judges who have had debating experience. A unanimous vote of all the judges or a vote of two judges for one side will constitute a win. Organizations in favor of the plan were requested to mail the ballot which is attached to the letter to Walter G. Huber, 501 So. 12th street. Organizations were requested to submit the plan at their meetings Monday evening.
