

BIBLE ANNOUNCES ANOTHER SHAKEUP OF SPRING SQUAD

Grid Candidates Split Into Two Teams for Game Saturday.

APPOINT TWO CAPTAINS

Steve Hokuf to Lead Reds With Ely in Charge of White Shirts.

Nebraska grid candidates came in for another shakeup of personnel Wednesday afternoon as Coach Dana X. Bible announced a re-vamping of the varsity Red squad into two teams, Reds and Whites. The two outfits will line up against each other Saturday afternoon in the third practice game of the spring drill.

Not enough members of the Blue team have been reporting for the regular workouts, forcing Bible to divide his Red squad to provide sufficient opposition for the candidates. Steve Hokuf will captain the Red team, while Lawrence Ely has been nominated to lead the Whites.

Double wingback formation has been receiving attention this week, and will be on display in the Saturday tilt. The double wingback along with that of punt formation has been the system used by Bible since he came to Nebraska three years ago. Wednesday saw the first scrimmage of the week, with more on tap for Thursday.

The Red squad: Hokuf, captain; Bishop, DeBus, DeBrown, Delaney, Fahrbruch, Fowler, Holmbeck, Joy, Justice, Keriaekedes, Leffel, Masterson, Miller, Meier, Milne, Overstreet, Parsons, Penney, Pflum, Schlueter, Schmidt, Uptegrove, Wolcott, White and Jones.

Those listed on the White team include Ely, captain; C. Armstrong, Bauer, Boswell, Eldridge, Green, C. Hulbert, Hubka, Hladky, D. Hulbert, Mathis, McPherson, Mueller, Murray, Mehring, Neumith, Peek, Prestegard, Roby, Scott, Scoggan, Staab, Swanson and Weir.

Low grades at Alabama mean date restrictions. All whose averages fall below "D" will be classed as freshmen socially, and must arrange their dates accordingly.

"The world is partial to the college man," cynically comments the Industrial Collegian of South Dakota State, "for a diploma and five cents will get you a cup of coffee anywhere."

STAGG TO REFEREE AT TENTH KANSAS RELAYS

Will Give Chicago Mentor Chance for Reunion With Naismith.

LAWRENCE.—Amos Alonzo Stagg, outstanding figure in intercollegiate athletics and physical education, and long director of athletics and head coach of football at the University of Chicago, has accepted an invitation to serve as referee of the tenth annual Kansas relays, April 23, it is announced from the University of Kansas athletic office.

It also is announced that Chancellor E. H. Lindley of the University of Kansas, whose appointment as one of the delegates at large to the Olympic games this summer by Avery Brundage, president of the A. A. U., recently was announced, will serve as honorary referee of the Kansas relays; and John C. Grover of Kansas City, widely known sports official, will be starter of the Kansas games for the ninth consecutive year.

Will Have Reunion.
The coming of Mr. Stagg to the University of Kansas campus will afford him an opportunity for a reunion with an old schoolmate, "Jim" Naismith, better known as Dr. James Naismith, inventor of the game of basketball, and professor of physical education at Kansas for more than thirty years. After taking their university degrees Mr. Stagg and Dr. Naismith met as young men interested in physical education work when they enrolled for study at the Springfield, Massachusetts, Training school. Both were members of the class for which Dr. Naismith invented the game of basketball.

Mr. Stagg is the ninth nationally known man to serve as referee of the annual Kansas relays. Others who have been referee of the Kansas games are Louis C. Mederia, III, of the University of Pennsylvania who served at the first Kansas relays in 1923; Maj. John L. the items concerning themselves and their school.

"Advertising is the life blood of a newspaper," declared the speaker in taking up the business side of the community newspaper. Illustrating his points with layouts from the Fairbury News, Mr. Buckles offered many new ideas to the audience. He advocated the selling of ideas and not just space to the advertisers and pointed out five ways in which this could be accomplished: By the use of advertising services, study of exchanges, checking of old files, watching of store stocks, and the study of trade publications for new ideas. He also advocated the use of a prospect list, the use of an ad chart, selling series of advertisements, and having a weekly quota of advertising to be sold.

Mr. Buckles also stressed the importance of aiding the advertiser, especially in the mechanical department. The speaker during the course of his talk suggested several ways of doing this. Among them were: The use of extra copies to give to the merchant for posting purposes, use of display cards, encouragement of tie-ups, interest in the results obtained from advertisements, and courtesy and friendliness to the advertiser. In the files used by Mr. Buckles to illustrate his talk he used not only clippings from the Fairbury News, but also charts and clippings from various other country weeklies.

In the open forum after the address, many interesting questions were brought up by various members of the audience. Questions concerning the suppression of news stories, the use of advertising in the news columns, free advertising,

At the close of the forum many of the people in the group availed themselves of the opportunity of further questioning Mr. Buckles, and examining the material that he had prepared.

HIS REASON.

"That fellow Dubleigh has got a scared, sneaking look. Has he been in any position to do any crooked work in here?" asked the president.

"No," grinned the manager. "I know the answer to his actions. His wife has ordered him to demand more money and the poor fish knows he's lucky to get what he does."—Missouri Pacific Magazine.

RUDY VOGELER is very proud of his moustache. In fact, he would not part with it for anything. (Just for spite, now, he'll probably shave it off right away.) Rudy claims that if it were not for his moustache, people would take him for a youth of sixteen, and that would be quite unseemly. As proof for his assertion, the Husker swimming coach tells that a member of the Omaha Tech high swimming team down for the pro championships a while back thought he was one of the college boys!

Hugh Rhea may be throwing the discus and javelin in addition to his speciality, the shot put, this spring. Huge Hugh, as Frederick Ware of World-Herald fame dubs him, threw the plate 130 feet Wednesday afternoon, and if the big boy develops his timing he should be doing 140 feet or better. Hugh has a mark of 187 feet with the javelin, made when competing as a sophomore in the Big Six championships. However, Rhea has not approached this effort since that time in the few instances he has worked with the spear. But with practice, he may reach this distance again.

Manager Lobeber of the Moline, (Ill.) baseball team stopped in to have Martin J. McLean attend to a pulled knee tendon Wednesday. Lobeber was on his way to Moline to start things in motion for another season. He is a former Lincoln diamond performer with whom he played a backstop position. Moline is in the Mississippi Valley league.

Athletic events at Allegheny college are officiated by two edoes referees.
