

D.S.L. IS WINNER OF INTRAMURAL DEBATE CONTEST

Affirmative Side of Military Question Is Upheld by Group.

BETA THETA PI DEFEATED

Levy, Skiles, Walker Act as Judges in Last Round of Tournament.

Delta Sigma Lambda, Tuesday evening, won the final debate of the intramural debate elimination tournament with the affirmative side of the question. Resolved, that compulsory military training be abolished at Nebraska. Beta Theta Pi upheld the negative of the question in the contest that brought to a close the tournament that has been held on Tuesday and Thursday nights for the past two weeks.

The judges for the debate were Nathan S. Levy, former state championship debater at Hastings, and a member of the Nebraska squad; John A. Skiles, attorney at law; and Gayle C. Walker, director of the school of journalism.

This is the first of the scheduled debates that has been decided by three judges, the rest were officiated by one judge that was either a member of the Nebraska squad or a former debater.

The main arguments of the affirmative, requesting the abolition of compulsory drill, were that military training has no educational or physical value and that it has little if any military value. Opinions of military men were quoted to substantiate the assertion of the affirmative that the compulsory features of military training made it undesirable.

Is of Value.

The principle arguments of the negative were that compulsory military training was a good because of the education, discipline, leadership, and physical training that it brought. Military training was a value so it should be compulsory, was one of the arguments advanced.

The winning team was composed of Norman Malcolm and Dan Easlerday, former Lincoln high school debaters. The Beta Theta Pi team consisted of Edward Beggar and Edward Beggar, both of whom had high school experience also. Edward Beggar was a member of the state champion high school team that defeated the runner up Hastings.

Frahm, Meredith Booked; Old Clothes on View Wednesday.

HORSE TANK ERECTED

A wrestling match between Harold Frahm and W. Meredith has been added to the athletic card for the annual Farmers Fair, according to an announcement made by the senior fair board Tuesday. Athletic matches will be held following the final production of the pageant in the evening.

Both Frahm and Meredith are heavyweights. Frahm is a former University of Nebraska football star while Meredith has gained some renown in university wrestling circles. He copped the heavyweight title at the college of agriculture this winter.

The Hughes-Sallenin boxing bout will be another headline exhibition on the athletic program. Hughes is a former University of Nebraska student while Sallenin is the university champion in his weight. Three other boxing bouts are being arranged.

Today is overall and apron day at the fair. The senior fair board decreed Monday that all students should wear the old clothes in generating student spirit for the fair. A horse tank has been erected on the rectangle on the campus for students who do not comply with the request. No enclosed "duckings," however, are expected.

Reuben Hecht, who is in general charge of the intersorority riding contest, announced Wednesday morning that several entries for the event have already been received. Kay Hurr, Kappa Delta, was the first sorority girl to enter. High class horses will be used in the contest and the winner will be presented with the Faulkner cup. Richard Faulkner of Lincoln is to judge the contest.

It is possible that Al Duteau's educated horse may be presented on the fair program Saturday. Manager Fred Meredith said last night. Though the horse is not in Lincoln, Duteau is anxious to have it perform before the fair crowd. It has appeared in previous years.

Following the Ivy day oration the cup will be awarded to the winner of the sing. Last year the cup was won by Delta Delta Delta with Kappa Alpha Theta and Alpha Delta Theta taking second and third places.

Judges will be Wilbur Chenoweth, Homer Compton, and Edith Lucille Robbins. All are directors in the university.

Two songs will be presented by each group. Sororities will sing in alphabetical order. Failure of a group to be present at the time the group name is called will mean forfeiting the right to appear.

Innocents and Mortar Boards Are Initiating New Tradition.

Tassel, interfraternity council members and barb council members are selling tickets to the Innocents-Mortar Board Ivy day party report that the tickets are going very well and that students are buying them more rapidly than they usually do the admissions to major parties, according to William McGaffin and Jean Rathburn, general chairmen in charge of arrangements for the affair. "This is probably due to the fact that it is initiating a new tradition, because parties are closed to all sororities and fraternities that night and because it is the last public appearance of Eddie Jungbluth and his band before leaving for Estes Park, Colorado," said McGaffin regarding the sale.

Tickets will be sold all day Wednesday at a booth in Social Science and can also be procured from any member of Mortar Board or Innocents, at the Cooperative Book Store or at Long's. The party will be secured at the door of the coliseum just preceding the party. About 1800 tickets have been issued.

A varied evening is being planned for this party which is to mark the climax of the traditional day. The Kosmet Klub has arranged a program composed of four units which will be presented from 8 o'clock until 11:30. This will include the Delta Gamma trio, extracts from "Jingle Belles," a monologue between Nell McFarland and Ed Young, the Apache dance from the Delta Gamma-Sigma Chi act of last fall's Kosmet Klub review and a medley of tunes from "Jingle Belles" sung by Russell Mousel.

Mortar Board Departs From Custom To Announce Daisy and Ivy Chain Leaders for Thursday Procession

Commending outstanding ability and definite contribution to the campus heretofore unrecognized, Mortar Board, contrary to custom, today announced the two senior and four junior women who will lead the Ivy and daisy chain processions at the morning ceremonies tomorrow.

Louise Cogswell, Kappa Kappa Gamma, and Virginia Pollard, Chi Omega, will lead the Ivy chain; Evelyn O'Connor, Delta Zeta, Irma Randall, Alpha Delta Pi, Elizabeth Barber, Alpha Phi, and Mary Alice Kelly, Kappa Kappa Gamma, will head the daisy procession.

Although the leaders of the two chains have always been delegated and honored as outstanding contributors, heretofore the policy has been to withhold their names until the morning they appear.

"For some reason," said Jean Rathburn, Mortar Board president, Tuesday, "the campus at large has failed to recognize the honor surrounding these selections during past years."

"It is the belief of Mortar Board that true ability and definite campus contribution should be recognized as often and in so far as is possible. For this reason, we are this year announcing the names of the six girls prior to their appearance. They were selected from among several others whose names were discussed as having contributed to the campus but not to the extent that the girls chosen have done."

'Idyl' in 'American Mercury' Is Latest Short Story Written by Prof. Wimberly

"Idyl," is the succinct title of the latest short story of Dr. Lowry Charles Wimberly of the University of Nebraska English department. "Idyl," as its name indicates is a description of rustic life. The story appears in the current issue of H. L. Mencken's "American Mercury."

This is the third story that Dr. Wimberly has published in magazines of national reputation in the last year. "White Man's Town" which appeared in Harper's was included in Edward J. O'Brien's "Best Short Stories of 1931" and was lauded by critics as the best American short story of the year.

The buxomness of "Idyl" is its simplicity and direct forcefulness are characteristics of the Nebraska professor's writings. Moch, the hired hand, is a caricature that is individual, paradoxically speaking.

ELECTRICAL FREAKS TO FEATURE EXHIBIT

Engineers Plan Skull That Speaks and Man Who Defies Current.

BUILD OTHER DISPLAYS

Skulls that talk and men whom electricity apparently cannot kill will be features of the display of the department of electrical engineers for open house night, according to Walt Ely, chairman of electrical engineers committee.

The display will be in the electrical engineering building, at the entrance of which will be a large letter "E" made up of rotating lights. On the east side of the building will be a small water fountain enclosed in colored electric lights.

The exhibit includes a display of artificial lighting. A man is to be placed inside a wire cage with a copper wire around his neck to which is attached a light bulb. At the turning of a switch, the bulb lights, and the man is apparently not affected.

The number of people who enter the building to view the display will be calculated by a photo-electric counter. This will be attached to the door and will count the people when they enter.

Another experiment which will be conducted by the electrical engineers is called "light the candle." The lighting of a match operates a photo-electric cell, and the current from the cell operates a fan which blows out the match.

Other parts of the exhibits include a cost meter, which tells how much it costs to operate any electric appliance to which it might be attached; a stroboscope, which calculates the speed of rotating machinery; a Cathode ray oscilloscope, which shows pictures of current waves of electricity; a tin can motor; a fireless cooker.

A. W. S. FRESHMAN HOLD LAST MEETING

Suggestions Are Made to Improve Workings of Group Next Year.

The A. W. S. freshman group held its last meeting of the year yesterday afternoon. Since there was no regular business to be discussed, the time was spent in making suggestions on how the group could work more efficiently next year. It was decided that freshman girls, generally, need expert advice about university problems when they first enter school.

Girls should plan to enter some activity because it helps them to get acquainted on the campus. "Those who have been active in A. W. S. work this year are expected to be of service to the group next fall," said Margaret Upton, leader of this year's freshman group.
