COUNCIL PASSES ABOLITION TWO CLASS LEADERS

Junior and Senior Offices Retained and Given Specific Work.

ELECT FOUR HOLDOVERS

Brownell, Allaway, Misses Dixon and Hendricks to Serve Again.

Abolition of freshman and sophomore class presidencies was decided on by the student council at its meeting Wednesday night.

Action on the matter had been postponed until after the student council conference held last Saturday in order that further investigation of the problem and experiences of other schools might be obtained.

Abolition of the two lower class officers and retention of the other two with specific duties recommended was determined by a committee of the student council appointed to investigate the question.

The committee's report was accepted in full by the council Wednesday.

The junior class president will be chairman of the junior-senior prom committee and will participate in the traditional planting of the ivy on Ivy Day.

The student council committee which investigated the matter of disposition of class offices was composed of Gretchen Fee, chairman; Arthur Wolf, Berenice Hoffman, and Tom Snipes.

FIRST IVY DAY DANCE IS SCHEDULED TONIGHT

Senior Honoraries Sponsor Student-Alumni Mixer This Year.

Alumni and students will mingle at the first dance to be staged by the Innocents and the Mortar Boards on Ivy day, at the university coliseum Thursday evening.

The appropriate climax to the activities of the day was inaugurated by the senior honoraries this year.

A special half hour program between 8 and 8:30 o'clock, has been arranged by the Innocents thru the Kosmet Klub. Extracts from the Kosmet Klub shows of the past year will be staged on the program.

The dance will begin at 8:30, music being provided by Eddie Jughubth and his orchestra. Johnny Johnson was originally booked for the date but cancelled the engagement, so the Lincoln band was secured.

IVY DAY PROGRAM STARTS AT 9 A. M.

Dry Weather Is Promised for Traditional Program Which Is Centered About 'Ivy Day Playground' Near Administration Hall.

COLISEUM WILL BE USED IN CASE OF RAIN

Interfraternity Sing and May Queen Presentation Held In Morning; Intersorority Sing, Tapping Innocents And Masqueing Mortar Boards in Afternoon.

All eyes of the campus are turned today toward the traditional Ivy day program, and all plans for the day are centered about the "Ivy day playground" between the Administration building and Universit hall.

Interfraternity sing competition, will begin promptly at the hour announced, 9 o'clock, in the Coliseum. Meteorologist T. A. Blair reported Wednesday that no showers were expected.

Twelve fraternities have entered the competition this year in the contest annually sponsored by Kosmet Klub, and eleven of them will attempt to break the winning streak of Beta Theta Pi, the winner for two years past, and attempt to prevent them from carrying off the trophy as a permanent fraternity possession.

Following the presentation of the cup to the winning group, and that group's presentation of one of their winning songs, the daisy chain led by four junior women appointed by Mortar Board in recognition of definite campus contribution will proceed to the newly decorated throne for the May Queen. These girls are: Irma Randall, Elizabeth Barber, Mary Alice Kelly, and Evelyn O'Connor.

The girls, garbed in pastel shades will form a circle within the crowd; immediately upon their arrival in formation, all senior women of the university, dressed in white and headed by Virginia Pollard and Louise Cogwell, likewise chosen on bases of merit, will bear the Ivy chain in a similar procession. Daisy chain bearers are chosen by each sorority and organized house group, two representatives from each group.

While the Ivy chain progresses, a picked chorus of women's voices directed by Hermann T. Decker will sing the Ivy Day chant. The procession of these two chains will merely herald the beginning of the May Queen procession proper.

Headed by the two heralds, the procession is scheduled to start at 11 o'clock. Two attendants from each of the four university classes, and two flower girls will precede the maid of honor, the girl receiving the second highest number of votes in the all-university-women election held last spring. Following her, two flower girls will stroll (Continued on Page 3)

Open house Thursday night, May 5, will be the feature of the annual engineers week. Exhibits showing the type of work done in each of the engineering departments and erected by students in those departments are the main parts of the program for the night.

A banquet Friday, following the annual field day at Antelope park and a convocation at the Temple, will climax the week. A barbecue dinner will be provided at noon for the engineers. After this they will participate in various athletic events, including a golf tournament and baseball games between the departments in the college.

Judge Bayard H. Paine will be the main speaker at the banquet, and Ray Ramsay will act as toastmaster. Presentation of the engineering honor awards and announcement of the Blue Print staff for next year will be made at the banquet. The Sledge, college humor sheet, will be distributed at the close of the banquet.

A campus structure advertising the week has been erected by the mechanical engineers and is now on the campus. It is a large revolving "E" which will be lighted at night by large colored flood lights.

Many windows of down town business places contain displays also advertising the week. The displays have been prepared by (Continued on Page 2.)

Variety of Displays Arranged for Engineers Annual Open House Night

Students in the civil engineering department have prepared many exhibits for open house night of engineers week, in addition to historical relics of the first railroad to cross the United States, which will be displayed by the Union Pacific Railway company.

Displays of the Union Pacific include a section of the last rail laid at Promontory, Utah, May 10, 1869, contrasted with a modern rail; an old rusty spike used in original construction of the U. P., also contrasted with a modern spike; a medal struck off by the United States mint commemorating the special half hour program.

A miniature circular road on a large landscaped sand table will also be displayed by the civil engineers. It will show the different building materials, including dirt, gravel, macadam concrete. Sections will be cut in the material in order that the complete construction may be examined. Material from the core of this road will be tested by the department of applied mechanics.

A display showing different methods of measuring the flow in a stream will also be offered. It will include the different weirs and the use of the venturimeter in computing the velocity of streams.

Begg's apparatus, which is a mechanical device that makes solutions of structurally indeterminate structures to determine the shear, moment and thrust of them will also be on display.
