IMPROVEMENT PLANS FOR THREE CAMPUSES
SEATON ANNOUNCES

New Fireproof Seed House
To Be Constructed for Ag College.

Plans for permanent improvement on three University of Nebraska campuses were announced by L. F. Seaton, operating superintendent.

Among other constructions, these plans provide for the erection of a fireproof seed house and laboratory at the college of agriculture. It will be a companion to the animal husbandry building and of the same material. The building was authorized by the last legislature when the provision was made for the reconstruction of the burned judging pavilion, and the erection of the seed house will take the place of the former attic storage place.

According to Mr. Seaton the new seed house will cost about $25,000. The construction will begin early next week and it will probably be completed about Feb. 1, he announced.

Street to be Paved.
This year's improvement on the city campus will probably be confined to the paving of North 12th street between T and U. This stretch has long been a weak link in the campus streets and is now under construction. Mr. Seaton declared that it would be completed for the first football game. The original intention of the board of regents was to oil the street, but delay in starting resulted in the decision to finish it permanently. The new piece of paving will measure approximately five hundred feet in length and fifty feet in width. It is to be constructed with the regular standard curb and gutter and will cost $6,118.80. The road is being built by the Cochran Construction Co.

A new addition to Conkling hall, school of nursing home at the medical college was completed about a month ago. It is now being occupied by student nurses.

A shop building for the school of agriculture at Curtis was completed last spring and is now being occupied.

conditionally without examination. The six new schools are: Berwyn, Hallam, Lorenzo, Naper, Clark, High Prairie and Tekamah Riverside rural. Six other schools, as follows, were advanced from the senior accredited list to the major accredited list: Bushnell, Concord, Dakota City, Danbury, Ericson and Nemaha.

Prof. A. A. Reed, director of the extension division of the university is chairman of the state examination committee. Schools are placed on the accredited list after a check is made on the teachers employed, subjects taught, teaching standards, laboratory and library facilities, buildings and furnishings, bygiene and efficiency of instruction acquired habits of thought and study, and the general intellectual and moral tone of all schools applying for accreditation.
