SIGMA DELTA CHI STARTS AWGWAN SALES CAMPAIGN

House Canvass to Reach All Students in Plea for Financial Aid.

KOTOUC STRESSES NEED Asks Organized Houses Buy Block Subscriptions of Magazine.

When dinner gongs ring Monday night they will mark the opening of the Awgwan block subscription drive.

Members of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism fraternity which sponsors the magazine, and members of the Awgwan business staff will at that time visit each organized house on the campus in a speaking tour requesting the support of all organizations in subscribing to the humor publication.

Subscription blanks, on which are printed a relation of the appeal and a statement of the necessity of student support this year will also be left at each house in order that the matter may be taken up in the various meetings.

A Saturday statement from Otto Kotouc, business manager of the monthly publication, made it plain that blocks must be subscribed 100 percent if Nebraska is to continue on the Awgwan as a magazine of the campus this year, it is absolutely necessary that the houses respond immediately by sending their subscriptions to the Awgwan office," he declared.

"I cannot emphasize too strongly the seriousness of the Awgwan's financial situation," he added. "It is imperative that we have student support, and lots of it, or the Awgwan will perish. Individual subscriptions may be secured by calling the magazine's office on the university exchange any afternoon, Kotouc explained.

RED FROSH CAPS CARRY ON STRICT SCHOOL CUSTOM

Interfraternity Council and Barbs Back Continued Observance.

Plans are being formulated by the various university organizations to provide for the strict observance of the freshman cap wearing custom. All first year men were instructed as to the obligation they hold of wearing the caps at the freshman initiation last Thursday.

The Interfraternity Council in a recent meeting, went on record favoring strict enforcement of the rule, and the various fraternities on the campus will co-operate in requiring their freshmen to wear the caps.

Willard Young, Barb leader, expressed himself as being in favor of enforcement of the custom, the definite plans have not been formulated for the strict observance among the unaffiliated men.

Jack Thompson, innocent, in explaining the tradition said: "Freshman caps are not designed to humiliate the wearer but are for the millie purpose of maintaining an old Nebraska tradition. We hope that all freshmen will co-operate with the committee in charge and wear the caps."

Plans for the discarding of the caps have not been made but Chalmers Graham, innocent in charge stated that definite announcement will be made later. "Until then," he said, "every freshman is expected and required to wear the caps."

Last year the freshmen were allowed to discard their caps after a tug of war with the sophomores, which took place between the halves of the Dad's day football game. The freshmen were victorious and from that time on freshmen caps were seen no more. A similar plan will probably be arranged this year.

A check on the sales of red caps reveals that practically every freshman man has his cap, but there are still a few without them. The caps are on sale at Ben Simon's.

SPENCER STATES INTEREST HIGH IN YEAR BOOK JOBS

Applications Exceed Former Record; Filing Open Until Tuesday.

FEATURE WORK STARTS Portraits of Deans, Snap Shots of Professors, New in Annual.

At two o'clock Friday afternoon the largest polling of applications in the history of the Cornhusker had been filed with the editor and business manager of the book. One hundred and twenty-two students had formally stated their intentions of becoming connected with the publication.

Ralph Spencer, who has been for the past week receiving these applications, declared he was very much pleased with the interest the students are showing. There is still time, however, for those who have not already filed to do so, as applications will be taken until Tuesday, Sept. 27, at four o'clock in the afternoon. The editor urged that first year students who wish to get started in activities report at the Cornhusker office by that time.

The picture of the dancing crowd at Antelope park was taken Friday evening, as announced in Friday's issue of the Daily Nebraskan, marking the beginning of the work on the 1933 yearbook. It will be used in the feature section of the new annual and will appear in the Daily Nebraskan in the near future.

Another entirely new feature, according to Spencer, that will also appear in the feature section is the pictures of favorite professors of the university. These pictures of the professors will be taken as they are seen on the campus by the new snap-shot editor and his two assistants, who will be selected as soon as filings close.

In accordance to the editor's wishes, art applicants have been bringing in samples of their work in the form of portraits of the deans of the colleges and other well known people who are connected with the University of Nebraska.

Spencer added that although there have been at least three or four applications for every position on the staff, the job of military editor seems to have been somewhat overlooked by applicants, and that he would like to have a few more applications in this department.

GIRLS' CO-OPERATIVE HOUSE IS ESTABLISHED ON CAMPUS

Following the co-operative plan whereby a small group of girls may live together and by doing their own cooking and housework pay only a very nominal sum for their living expenses, Howard hall has been organized by the Associated Women Students board. Sixteen university women were invited to residence in the hall which is located at 1620 R street.

The hall is named for Mrs. George Elliott Howard who was the first woman to be graduated from the University of Nebraska. She received a bachelor of philosophy degree in 1876. For two years no other women were graduated from the institution. Honoring Mrs. Howard, the new hall will be known as Alice Frost Howard hall. Dr. Howard was the initial donor to the Social Science library, part of which is named for him.

The residents of the hall are chosen by the committee in charge on the basis of scholarship, real need, personality and the reputation which they have established for themselves as citizens on the campus. Applications for residence are made at the office of the dean of women. Howard hall is not a loan or charity project, but is required to be self-maintaining in the same manner as other housing projects. It aims to increase

SECOND WEEK OF ATHLETIC TICKET DRIVE PLANNED

Skade Announces Salesman Luncheon Wednesday At Grand Hotel.

COMPETITION IS HEAVY Outstate Game Trips to Be Awarded for Highest Selling Scores.

Extensive plans, including a Wednesday noon luncheon, a new system of salesmen identification, and a second placard distribution have been formulated for the second week of the Cornhusker Student Athletic Ticket drive, according to Charles Skade, chairman of the innocents committee in charge of the campaign.

Some 150 ticket salesmen who are engaged in the contest which offers such prizes as trips to the Southern Methodist, Minnesota and Jayhawk grid contests, will gather at the Grand hotel, Wednesday noon, where they will hear short talks by track coach H. F. Schulte, Dr. T. J. Thompson, dean of student affairs, Dr. R. D. Scott of the athletic board and Dr. G. E. Condra, faculty advisor to the innocents society. Jane Robertson, member of Mortar Board, is in charge of arrangements for the luncheon.

"During the first week of the Cornhusker drive," Skade said, "we found that many unaffiliated students wished to purchase tickets but found difficulty in reaching a salesman. As a remedy for this we will issue red and white ribbons, on which is stamped the word 'salesman' at the Wednesday luncheon."

John Zellinger and Marvin Schmid, contact directors on the innocents society committee will supervise the distribution of a new series of advertising posters this week. William Devereaux will have charge of pep arrangements in connection with the campaign and publicity will be handled by Jack Erickson.

"Students at the college of agriculture are responding enthusiastically to the drive," declared Glenn LeDoy, who is in charge of sales on the Ag campus, "and we are expecting a one hundred percent turnout of Ag college students at Cornhusker athletic events."

Jane Youngson, who is directing activities of women ticket salesmen, reports that co-ed ticket distributors are competing heatedly for the Dallas trip and the other awards.

Two Iowa State Students Write Asking Tickets

Charles R. Skade, chairman of the innocents committee in charge of the student athletic ticket campaign, ran into a new kink last Friday when he received a letter from two Iowa State students who wanted to qualify as purchasers for Cornhusker tickets at the Cornhusker $6.00 rate.

"Although we are attending Iowa State," they wrote, "we are from Omaha and would rather see Nebraska teams in action than those of any other Big Six school. At the ridiculously low rate at which you are offering season tickets we thought we might save money by getting one as we are usually in Lincoln about seven times each school year anyway. Please let us know at once."

Chairman Skade is undecided as to the disposal of the case but thinks that their only possibility is to purchase one of the general public tickets at $7.70.

Sister Board and a member of Mortar Board. Betsy Benedict of Franklin is the newly elected president and representative to the A. W. S. council. Christobel Weaver of Falls City will serve as secretary-treasurer. Mrs. C. D. Baker is the house mother.

The sixteen residents are divided into groups of four each which alternate weekly in performing the various duties of the household. The plan provides for adjustment to individual programs through a system of trading.

Suppose Betty, who is responsible for the dinner service, has an invitation out that evening. If her dog "Bill" trade you two breakfast disheswashing for my dinner service tonight." In case Peg wishes to pile up her credit for future use, she will accept the bargain. Jean may owe a job which she cannot pay today. She says that Molly owes her a job and that if she wishes, she may pay her debt for her.

Applications for the two vacancies which resulted when two of the invited residents did not return to school, will be received Monday and Tuesday by Miss Elsie Ford Piper, assistant dean of women, in Ellen Smith hall.

Kaplan was an ardent exponent of communism and according to reports was engaged in work for the Russian government when he met his death.

SYMPHONY TICKET SALE ON CAMPUS TO BE CONTINUED

Chairman Says Satisfactory Results Are Obtained in Drive.

Results of the campus ticket drive for the Lincoln Symphony orchestra concerts this winter have been very satisfactory and encouraging, Miss Josephine McDermott, in charge of the drive, stated Saturday.

"Many students have purchased their tickets, and many more plan to do so in the near future," Miss McDermott pointed out, declaring a temporary lack of cash hindering sales, to some extent. "The drive will continue until Wednesday, tickets being available at the sales desk in Morrill hall, at the office of the secretary in the school of music building, and from members of the Mu Phi Epsilon, honorary musical sorority, on the campus."

Students receive a half rate on season tickets, $2.50 being the charge for the campus populace. The winter season of the orchestra will consist of five concerts, each featured by a prominent soloist. One soloist, Prof. Carl F. Steckelberg, violinist, is with the university school of music faculty.

Cello Soloist Appears. Cornelius Van'Vliet, cellist, appears as soloist the season's initial concert. Studying in Europe, he has appeared in concert in the larger cities of the United States and is at present touring the country in another successful season.

Jeanette Vreeland, soprano, is presented in the second concert. The New York World said of Miss Vreeland: "Her voice rides easily upon a long swell of middle fullness, rises to a glorious soaring fortissimo, then slides easily to a golden piano and last of all floats airily down to a delicious pianissimo whisper."

The young Russian violinist, Nathan Milstein, will be soloist at the third concert. Dr. Milstein returned in January for his third American tour. Studying under Professor Stokolski in Odessa, (Continued on Page 4.)
