Requests Students to Return Lost Articles

The students bringing in found articles to the lost and found department of the Daily Nebraskan have been, lately, greatly outnumbered by those losing things. We believe, that if every student would do his duty by bringing in found articles, the number of "found" would equal the "lost."

AWA BOARD SPONSORS VOCATION GUIDE PLAN

Amanda Heppner and Dead Thompson Approve and Support Plan.

Vocational Guidance is being sponsored by the A. W. S. board to help university girls pursue the vocations they have chosen. Dean Thompson and Amanda Heppner, dean of women, are encouraging this campaign and giving it their support. Instructors in various vocations are asked to help by granting interviews to these girls. Group meetings are being held to encourage girls to choose a vocation.

This is the first year anything of this nature has been attempted on this campus. Eighty-eight girls have, so far, signed up for appointments. All girls are urged to have interviews with the instructors specializing in the vocation they have chosen. Gertrude Clark, Alpha Xi Delta, is chairman of the committee. Appointments for interviews may be had by calling her at B6095.

A group meeting will be held at Ellen Smith hall Thursday at four o'clock. Dr. Fordyce will talk on "How to Find One's Specific Capabilities and Abilities." All university girls are invited to attend.

STUDENTS START SURVEY

Entomologists to Determine Seriousness of Hatch of Grasshoppers.

Nebraska's agricultural college entomologists are in the midst of a survey to determine how serious a grasshopper hatch may be expected in the state next spring. O. S. Bare, extension entomologist, said Wednesday a deputy would return today from a two weeks' survey in southern and southwestern Nebraska districts where the hoppers were numerous this year. Bare, himself, will start out Thursday for a survey of conditions in the eastern and northern portions of the state. He will be gone two or three weeks.

The entomologists dig up sections of soil and make a count of the deposits of grasshopper eggs. From the extent of eggs, a reasonably accurate prediction can be made of the districts where heavy infestation of the insects can be expected next spring. Last fall, a similar survey was made and heavy infestation of grasshoppers was predicted in numerous Nebraska counties. The heavy hatch developed but early poisoning by farmers and unfavorable weather for the insects which permitted development of fungus diseases which killed them in large numbers greatly reduced the expected damage.

TOM BROWN CULVER

SEVENTY-FIVE percent of all men are color blind, they say, which rather upsets those stories about the fatal influence of a soft blue or the stirring powers of red, as well as explaining the awful tie and shirt combinations we sometimes have to endure on a professor or boy friend.

BUT what we are getting at is that some girls seem to be color blind also, for we saw a striped blue sweater worn with a new green skirt in one of our classes today. And all that outfit needed to be smart was one of the current terry cloth sweaters, such as Anne Bunting, Holly Tettters, Jear Shumaker, Alberts Applegate, Jean Aupton, and several others have been wearing. Or a leather jacket like De Marie's Hilliard's wine-red one is awfully good looking.

The distinctive details that mark a few of this season's dresses might almost as properly be displayed in a furniture store. We're thinking particularly of those wooden buckles, four inches or more in diameter, that fasten the sashes of some heavy woolen models.

BOLD slashes are adding to several stunning informal party dresses seen lately. Betty Christensen has a long black velvet, one which is slit down the back from the neck to the waist decorated with a few rhinestone buttons, and left severely plain in front. Another dress, seen at the Country club dance the night after the game, was a high cut brown velvet slashed from the neck in front in a big sunburst. Score for these two!

METAL is also being used in novel ways, a dress in one store having perhaps fifty little fist pieces fastened on each sleeve in hand effects. Quite a nice trick we thought. Another faible is Dorothy Meyer's little colored felt figure of a football player, which is displayed on an Ascot tie.

LUTHERAN CLUB PLANS PROGRAM FOR MEETING

Pastor of Local Church to Discuss Activities of Church.

Rev. R. E. Rangle, pastor of the St. James Lutheran church of Lincoln, is scheduled to speak at the first meeting of the year of the university Lutheran club Friday night at 8:15 in room 205 of the Temple building. His subject will concern activities of the Lutheran church.

The university Lutheran club is composed of Lutheran students of the University of Nebraska, and the present executive committee in charge of the activities is made up of Charles De Vore, president; Irene Apfelbeck, vice president; Alberta Blair, secretary; and Marvin Trautwein, treasurer.

Besides the talk by Rev. Rangle, a musical program and a short skit are planned. There will be vocal solos by Esther Kreuzschner, junior of DeWitt, and several accordion numbers by Alberta Blair and Emma Vogel, duet, both from Lincoln. In addition a short skit will be presented by members of the Grace Luther league.

EXPECT 400 COLLEGES AT N.S.F.A. CONGRESS

Nebraska Student Council Invited to Attend Convention.

The Nebraska student council has been invited to attend the eighth annual congress of the National Student Federation which will take place in New Orleans from December 27 to 31. The congress is being held there at the invitation of Tulane University and Newcomb college.

Two members of the council attended the congress held at Toledo last year, the not as official members. In order to attend the congress twice it is necessary to become a member of the national organization. The question of joining will be taken up at the next meeting of the council. The plans for student representation on the athletic board which were put into effect this year came as a result of information gleaned at last year's conference.

Plans are being made to accommodate between three and four hundred presidents representing colleges and universities from every section of the country. Several nationally known speakers will sound the keynote of the meeting, and discussion groups will be held on student government, honor systems, athletics, publications and other problems which an exchange of intelligent student opinion helps to clarify.

FOOTBALL PLAYERS CRASH

Airplane Accident Involves Two California Athletes.

LOS ANGELES, (CNS.) Aerial maneuvers by University of Southern California gridsters will be confined to the football field for the rest of the season, Coach Howard Jones ruled this week.

His peremptory order was the direct result of an airplane crash, which last week almost cost the Trojans two of their best players—Orville Mohler, star quarterback, who is also student body president, and Tay Brown, captain of the S. C. football team.

Mohler, who is a licensed pilot and a senior in aeronautics at Southern California, decided to keep a speaking engagement at San Bernardino Junior College by air and took Brown along as a passenger. On leaving the field at San Bernardino, Calif., for the return trip, the plane's motor failed to respond properly and the ship crashed. Neither of the two was injured, and they returned to Los Angeles by automobile in time for afternoon practice.

Depression Affects Enrollment of Twenty-Four Colleges, Times States

NEW YORK, N. Y. (NSFA). The effect of the depression which has swept from the college campus much of the gray back-ground against which the undergraduate posed his studies has also adversely affected college enrollments, a survey of twenty-four colleges and universities of the country indicates.

In answer to queries from the New York Times, officials of institutions from Boston to Berkeley estimated that the chief effect of the depression had been to modulate the carefree joy of campus life and to focus the attention of students on books and blackboards. The student of 1932, many of the replies indicated, has sold the flashy roaster and is buying second-hand books, and more than ever before he is asking for scholarship aid, low-priced dormitory rooms, and a chance to work his way.

An interpretation of the statistics and replies indicates a trend away from technical education toward cultural subjects. In general, the University of California noted here is prolongation of the college period by students already registered and return of old students who once left. Enrollment of new undergraduates never attending before shows a tendency to decrease. Apparently students who formerly were attracted from college by offers of lucrative positions are now continuing their studies for lack of something better to do. On the other hand, students who have not yet entered college drag out high school work or enter local junior colleges to save money by living at home.

the institutions, the enrollments of which were most affected by the depression, seemed to be those located in the farming belts of the middle west. Most of the local colleges and universities maintained their enrollments at about the same figures as last year, and a few eastern institutions such as Amherst, Fordham, Harvard and Vassar reported slight increases in their student attendance. Columbia, with an estimated drop of more than 1,000 students, reported the largest loss of any of the nineteen institutions.

At the University of California the "chief effect of the depression noted here is prolongation of the college period by students already registered and return of old students who once left. Enrollment of new undergraduates never attending before shows a tendency to decrease. Apparently students who formerly were attracted from college by offers of lucrative positions are now continuing their studies for lack of something better to do. On the other hand, students who have not yet entered college drag out high school work or enter local junior colleges to save money by living at home."
