STUDENTS PROTEST SECRETARY'S RULE

Oppose Department's Order Against Employment of Foreigners.

While there appeared to be no immediate possibility that the labor department's order against the employment of foreign students would be changed, indignant rumblings this week became louder as protests poured in on Secretary of Labor William N. Doak. It was he who recently decided that non-quota foreign students should not be allowed to accept part time employment for actual pay, although work in return for board and room or for tuition would be permissible. College presidents from the Atlantic to the Pacific, including President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia, have condemned the ruling, but its rigid enforcement seems nevertheless inevitable.

Face Deportation. As a result, such students as George Solovieff, Russian, and Chunlin Leland, Chinese, of the University of Kansas face possible deportation unless they can find means of sustenance other than part time work. Similar cases have been reported at Knox, Amesherst and Wesleyan colleges, where Japanese students, holders of Bancroft scholarships, have been forced by economic conditions to accept part time employment. Greatest agitation over the immigration decree, however, has centered in New York City, where the Social Problems club of Columbia university last fortnight sought to hold a demonstration on the library steps, but was forced to abandon the idea because of an administration rule against open air meetings on the campus.

Editorials in the Columbia Daily Spectator and the New York Daily News, however, rapped Secretary Doak's edict in challenging terms. "His ruling clearly constitutes a meddling by unqualified agencies into the proper realm of the educator," declared the Daily News.

Miss Baldwin, whose home is in Omaha, is a member of Mortar Board, W. A. A. executive council. The election will start at 9 a. m. in the Temple and in the office of the dean of the college of agriculture in Ag hall and continue until 5 p. m. Only junior and senior students may vote for their class leaders, but all men students are eligible to vote for the honorary colonel.

and A. W. S. board. She is a senior in the college of arts and sciences. Miss Axtell, who also lives in Omaha, is a member of Bortar Board, A. W. S. board and the W. A. A. executive council.

Voting will begin at 9 a. m. in the Temple building under the supervision of the student council. Members of the election committee of the legislative group will have charge of the voting and counting of the ballots.

Issues Platforms.

The Blue-shirt faction Sunday issued a statement containing their platform and plan of action if elected to office. The platform includes plans for the adoption of a blanket student activities tax, securing of decorations for the coliseum, and support of the proposal that the swimming pool be made available to both men and women students at the same time. The Yellow Jacket group issued no platform but published a statement explaining the coalition. The statement said that the union was made in the interest of creating an interest in activities among more students and because the Barbs as a unit would be unable to accomplish anything in a political way. The identity of the presidents of the junior classes will be revealed in the Daily Nebraskan Wednesday morning. The name of the honorary colonel will not be announced, however, until the night of the military ball, when she will be presented in the customary ceremony.

Serious Questioning of War Is Hidden Under Humor in 'The Road to Rome'

Robert Emmet Sherwood's greatest "spoof" play, "The Road to Rome" will appear at the Temple, played by the University Players, the week of Oct. 24.

"The Road to Rome" is more than just a spoof novel however. Written in 1926 and first appearing on the New York stage in 1927, its continuous success proved it to be more than the usual run of plays shown on Broadway through the long watches of the theatrical night.

Faithfully reminiscent of "The Private Life of Helen of Troy" is "The Road to Rome." In general purpose of writing, they both ask the same question, "Why? why? why all this bloodshed? What are we fighting for?"

Sherwood, has been editor of Life for years. This provides him with an inexhaustible source of humor and wit which he uses in "The Road to Rome." The lines of the play abound in wit—sparkling humor and sly overtures, although back of the entire scheme lies the overhanging question... "What price glory?"

Denounced by Boston critics as being "to risque and sly for our type of people," and lauded by New York critics as being "the acme of modern drama, a human effort of wit" "The Road to Rome" indeed offers a marvelous contrast in up-to-date speech clothed in the garments of many centuries.

Making telephone equipment presents many an interesting problem to the engineers of Western Electric—manufacturer for the Bell System. A case in point is the drying of telephone cable before putting on the protective lead sheath. This step is of utmost importance, for the tiny copper wires cannot carry your voice properly unless their paper insulation is thoroughly dried. To this end, Western Electric engineers devised special drying ovens in which the air is thirty times drier than desert air!

The same ingenuity and thoroughness go into every step of making cable, telephones, switchboards and many other kinds of telephone equipment. The dependable apparatus that results is one reason why Bell System service is dependable.
