

HUSKERS NOW ON HIGHEST RUNG OF CONFERENCE LADDER

Mizzou's Startling 14 to 6 Defeat of Sooners Clears Path.

Missouri's startling 14 to 6 upset of Oklahoma, removing the Sooners from a first place tie with the Huskers and relegating them to second was the outstanding feature of the Big Six football scramble last week. Nebraska now occupies the top position alone.

Frank Carideo's team showed power and versatility against Oklahoma and now figures to give Kansas a great fight this Saturday at Columbia in the most important Valley clash. It was the first victory of the season for Missouri, and the initial Big Six defeat for Oklahoma.

The only other conference fray scheduled is the Oklahoma-Iowa State mix at Ames. Coach Veenker's Cyclones received a 31 to 0 trouncing from Kansas State last Saturday with Dougal Russell scoring three touchdowns.

One of the outstanding games on the nation's grid program this Saturday is the Pitt-Nebraska game at Lincoln. With Sauer, Hulbert and Mathis expected to be in good shape, the Cornhuskers will be able to present their strongest eleven to the great Pittsburgh team. Undefeated this season, the Panthers boast wins over Army, Notre Dame and Pennsylvania plus a scoreless tie with Ohio State in its "big time" games this fall.

RACE COMMENCES

IN WATER POLO

Twenty-two fraternities inaugurate the battle for water polo honors this week at the coliseum pool. Three matches were played Monday evening with Delta Upsilon meeting Farm House, Alpha Gamma Rho testing its strength against Pi Kappa Alpha and Sigma Chi playing Sigma Nu.

Water polo as it is being played this year features a passing game as in basketball. Ducking an opponent and "football" tactics are outlawed under this new soccer water polo, and the game is consequently speeded up. No touch goals are allowed, as points can only be scored from thrown balls.

Instructions from Rudolf Vogler's office stress knowledge of the new rules by the contestants. Fraternities must have their teams ready to play at the time designated. Swimming permits obtained from the Student Health office must be procured before men can participate in the sport. Spectators are welcomed to the matches. There will be no admission charge.

When Pittsburgh journeys west to Lincoln this Saturday for one of the nation's outstanding football games, they will bring five ball carriers who compose probably the best backfield in the United States. First of all, there is Warren Heller, a fleet, elusive half-back who has been "poison" to Pitt's opponents this fall. He is a young man who punctured the Nebraska for four touchdowns last year. Capt. Paul Reider and Mike Sebastian, alternate at right half. Take your pick, because there's little to choose between them. Heller is a fine pass receiver and is very fast. Sebastian scored two touchdowns against the Cornhuskers in 1931, and is the boy who took the heart out of Notre Dame two weeks ago by running forty-six yards to a touchdown.

At quarterback is Bobby Hogan, a cool signal caller and a great punter. Standing on his own goal line, Hogan kicked out sixty yards against the Irish this fall. That's the kind of punter the Panther back is. Firmly entrenched in the fullback post is Isadore Weinstock, 185 pound armor plated football "tank." He is just a sophomore, but had the ability to displace two varsity reserves from last year.

Although Coach Jock Sutherland lost his entire first string line by graduation, the Pitt forward wall is just as impregnable this year. Dailey and Skladnya, ends, and Tormey, center, are the line stars.

Now what about the Huskers? You can bet your last dime that the Nebraska team will be out there keyed up for the best football they know how to play. Coach Bible has George Sauer on hand once more after a long layoff; he has Corwin Hulbert ready to step in at left tackle and Chris Mathis, the little halfback, was in suit on Monday ready to go. The last few games have forced Bible to rely on several reserves who have delivered in fine shape. Fahrbruch, Miller and Staab in the backfield and Schleuter, Campbell, Meier and Hubka in the line have come thru. Memories of last year's 40 to 0 drubbing rankle in the minds of sixteen members of the 1932 squad and they are keen for revenge.

MATHIS RETURNS TO ACTIVE DUTY IN MONDAY DRILL

Sauer and Hulbert Ready For Pitt; Announce Closed Gates.

With Chris Mathis' return to active duty Monday afternoon, the Huskers for the first time since the opening Iowa State game will be able to present its strongest lineup against the highly heralded Pittsburgh Panthers Saturday in an inter-sectional tilt at Memorial stadium.

Secret practice was ordered Monday by Coach Dana Bible, the gates remaining closed all week to spectators. New plays to be used against Pitt were outlined by the Nebraska mentor in a lecture preceding the outdoor session in which the squad was given a brisk workout. Pass defense and the tackling dummy will see plenty of emphasis this week, as the Cornhuskers appeared weak in these two departments against Iowa last Saturday.

George Sauer minus his bandage was in suit Monday, and resumed his old station at fullback. Bible indicated yesterday that Bernie Masterson would be at quarter Saturday, with the half-back posts a struggle between Mathis and Fahrbruch at left half and Miller and Boswell at right half.

The remainder of the team will find Lee Penney and Steve Hokuf at ends; Corwin Hulbert and Gail O'Brien, tackles; Clair Bishop and Warren Debus, guards and Lawrence Ely, center.

Hulbert, Kilbourne and Hokuf are now in fine shape after a battle with injuries during the past three weeks. "Doc" McLean reported that except for minor bruises, the team came out of the Hawkeye fracas in good condition.

AGRICULTURE COLLEGE WILL HOLD CORN SHOW

Frolick Announces Change in Awards From Contest Of Last Year.

The announcement and premium list of the coming winter corn show, held annually in connection with organized agricultural meetings, were given out recently by A. C. Frolick of the college of agriculture. Several important changes mark the premium list which should be more satisfactory to the farmers bringing in exhibits.

Most important of the changes is the variation this year in the premiums paid for ear corn entries. The prize money available has been divided according to the number of entries in each class in last winter's show, Frolick explains. The first prize exhibit of yellow corn will get $18 and fifteen cash awards are listed, while first prize white corn will win $8 and ten awards are listed. This difference is because entries of yellow corn outnumbered entries of white corn more than two to one last year.

Money Apportioned

In the future, prize money will be apportioned according to the average number of entries in each class the two previous years, giving emphasis to the entries most popular with farmers.

Frolick expects the largest entry

Prizes for sudan grass seed, hardy approved alfalfa seed, and certified alfalfa seed have been added to the premium list for the first time. First prize in each class is $3, and three prizes are offered.
