FRENCH POSTERS ON DISPLAY FIRST TIME

Ten Artists Contribute To Exhibition in Morrill Hall.

"Street Murals," the latest trend in French poster design, are introduced to Nebraska for the first time in an exhibition now on display at Morrill hall. Of large proportions, often cubistic and abstract in design, and exceedingly vivid in color, these posters, employed extensively for advertising purposes in Paris, where they were collected, offer to the eye wearied by the trite commercial art of most of America, something fresh and invigorating.

Products advertised by these gay posters range from fish to phonograph records, and even include dentifrices. It is interesting in the latter case to notice how the artist makes a sales appeal without resorting to the Pepsodent smile.

Ten artists contribute to the current exhibition. They are An-sieu, Bernard, Bilinsky, Brodovitch, Cappiello, Carlu, Cassandre, Colin, Loupot, and Rojankovsky.

The psychology of the poster's appeal to the man in the street, thinks Esther Averill, who compiled the catalogue accompanying the exhibition, is its primitive color. "It is a gamin," she says, "typically French and gay under the everfalling rain. We must see it in the grey lights of Paris to really love it."

The history of the French poster, from its first appearance in 1482 to its present role as the mural of the street, is traced by Miss Esther Averill who gathered the exhibition in the catalogue.

Reporter Discovers Canines Housed In Tower of Pharmacy Building Now

Noticing no strange noises coming from the "Dog House Annex" of Pharmacy hall the reporter began wondering what had become of the canines dedicated to Dr. Lyman's experience. Had the inmates of the Annex been done away with or had science discovered a method to keep dogs from howling? Imagine his surprise after a certain amount of investigation to find the canines now housed in the tower of Pharmacy hall.

According to back files of The Daily Nebraskan the establishment of this annex to Pharmacy hall two or three years ago created a storm of protest because the yelping and howling of the inmates was held by students to be an infringement on the peace and quiet of the campus. A Morning Mail contributor complained that the noise disturbed those studying in Social Science library.

A little questioning in Pharmacy hall revealed the fact that because of the protests the hounds had been removed to the tower where they would bother no one. However, this move had its disadvantages (for the dogs) for in addition to being forced to condescend to live with the chickens and pigeons that are kept up there, the dogs miss their daily steam bath.

While living on the ground floor they lived by the motto, "a steam bath a day keeps the fleas away." In their new dwelling place they have no such room with bath privileges and are becoming slightly flea-bitten, the reporter observed.

AMES DRILLING HARD FOR MISSOURI GAME

Cyclones Will Face Tigers Saturday at Columbia Without Thomson.

AMES, Iowa, Jan. 11.—When the Cyclone basketball five faces Missouri at Columbia Saturday night, its members will be a lot better ball-handlers than they were against Oklahoma last Friday, if Coach Louis Menze has anything to say about it.

In spite of the fact that the inexperienced Iowa Sate quintet upset the dope by outplaying and soundly defeating the six letter-man Sooner outfit, Coach Menze was not satisfied with the passing and shooting his men displayed. So he is giving the squad intensive practice this week in ballhandling, dribbling and other fundamentals of the game.

The Cyclones will probably start their second Big Six contest with the same lineup that played almost the entire Oklahoma game, without Capt. Ralph Thomson. The Thomson's knee injury has not turned out to be as serious as was at first feared, Coach Menze is planning to give the lanky forward, his one veteran, as much rest as possible. Anderson and Ludwig at forwards, Wagner at center and Hood and Dills at guards are expected to open the game.

Wagner, big center, is still the team's leading scorer, in spite of the fact that he made but one basket against Oklahoma. He has sixteen field goals and fifteen free throws, for a total of 47 points, to his credit. Thomson has nineteen field goals and three free throws for forty-one points, and Ludwig has sixteenn baskets and six free throws for thirty-eight. Dills has caged ten out of twelve free throws.
