UNIVERSITY PLAYERS OPEN WITH 'CAMILLE' AT TEMPLE THEATER

Play Works Up to Effective Climax During Last Two Acts.

The tragedy "Camille" by Dumas opened Monday evening, March 6, in the Temple theater, a presentation of the University Players. Although the play worked up to a strong and effective climax in the last two of the five acts, the first part of the performance was not up to the usually fine calibre typical of Miss Alice H. Howells' direction.

Augusta French, playing the title role of the Parisian demi-monde gave a consistent but somewhat unconvincing performance, although in tempo with the play. Her interpretation of the death scene gave opportunity for her most genuine work of the evening, and was truly outstanding.

Herbert Yenne, doing his best in a part for which he was hopelessly miscast, walked stiffly through the role of the impetuous young Armand, maintaining a submissively wistful demeanor.

One of the bright spots of the performance was Lee Young with his characterization of the amorously persistent Comte de Varville. Although cast in a meager role he captured the sympathy of the audience by the accuracy and delicacy of his portrayal.

Armand Hunter and Rhona Smith were equally strong in their Group Discusses Financial Situation With Officials Of University.

Checks will be accepted in payment for tickets to the Junior-Senior prom to be held Friday evening in the Coliseum, according to an announcement made Monday afternoon by Lucille Reilly and Lloyd Loomis, committee in charge of tickets.

This decision was reached after the committee had discussed with university officials the financial situation caused by the proclamation of a four days' national bank holiday.

Tickets, which sell at $1.50, may be obtained from salesmen who are identified with a ribbon bearing the words "Junior-Senior Prom Tickets." Admission for spectators will be 25c.

"Plans to make this year's Junior-Senior prom a bigger and more elaborate affair than ever, will not be altered by the bank holiday," said Vernon Filley, chairman of the prom committee. "The coliseum will be decorated as previously announced, and Herbie Kay and his orchestra, featuring Dorothy Lamour, will be on hand for the party."

KANSAS UNIVERSITY STUDENTS APPROVE BLANKET TAX PLAN

Idea Is Similar to That Being Investigated by Student Council.

A blanket tax plan for financing student activities similar to that being investigated by the Nebraska Student council was recently approved by an overwhelming majority at a student referendum at Kansas university, a letter from Harold Denton, president of the Kansas Men's Student council, to Phil Brownell, president of the Nebraska council, states.

The plan, under which events now costing students attending a total of $26.75 would be given for $8.75 blanket fee, was favored by 228 more than the two-thirds majority necessary for the Kansas council's approval at the poll.

The bill outlining the plan, which was passed by both the Men's Student council and the Women's Student Government association at Kansas following the student vote, is now before the chancellor and board of regents of the Kansas school for consideration.

Under the Kansas plan, the following events and activities would be included in the blanket fee; four concerts, a course of six lectures, four plays, debate, glee club, athletics, student union fee, student government fee, varsity dances and

BANK HOLIDAY HAS NO BAD EFFECT ON STUDENT ATTITUDE

General Tendency Is to Take Situation Lightly.

The present bank holiday proclaimed by Governor Bryan, and more recently by President Roosevelt has not seriously affected the general attitude of Nebraska students and faculty members.

While there has been a definite curtailment of participation in many activities by most of the students, some of them have taken the situation rather lightly. Faculty members, as a general rule, have encountered no serious difficulties.

"Students should not get panicky," commented Dean Thompson. "They should exemplify the valuable training which they are receiving, and keep their heads about them." The Dean of Student Affairs also thought that this experience was valuable, and that a great moral lesson should be realized by the students.

Social activities among the students are at a minimum, and will continue to be so, according to plans being made by many organized houses on the campus. One sorority has already made plans

PLAY MANUSCRIPTS TO BE DISTRIBUTED

Pony and Male Choruses Of Kosmet Klub Show Begin Rehearsals.

Manuscripts of the parts in the "Bar-O Ranch," spring show scheduled for production by Kosmet Klub, will be distributed to aspirants for roles in the play, according to an announcement made yesterday by Jack Thompson, production manager for the show.

The lines for the various parts will be given out by Casting Director Herb Yenne to students tentatively selected for the individual characters, Thompson said. Definite selection of the cast has not been completed and probably will not be filled until after further rehearsals, it was indicated.

Rehearsals for the pony and male choruses began last night under the joint direction of John Zeilinger and Ralph Ireland. A series of elimination rehearsals will be held to determine the members of the two choruses within the next few days, Zeilinger announced previously.

Regular rehearsals for both of the choruses will be held every night at 7:15 except Fridays and Saturdays, when a time for rehearsals in the afternoons will be decided upon, Zeilinger declared yesterday.

Large Fossil Elephant Towers Far Above His Brothers in Morrill Hall

Imagining a bony frame of a mammal standing far above his brothers in a Hall of Canines should present no difficulty for the conceiving powers of the average individual, but trying to picture a mammal which towers over his lesser brothers in the Hall of Elephants in Morrill Hall offers a problem, according to some of the students who have viewed the remains of Archie, the largest mammal any region of the earth has yet given up.

Even larger creatures may have roamed the earth back in the days when Archie was active, but he remains today the giant of all land mammals on record. Archie, whose full and given name is Archidiskodon maibeni, rises over twice as high as a six foot man.

The mighty circus elephants, who claim the title of one of the largest living group of mammals, attain but two-thirds the size of this recently uncovered giant. Archie stands thirteen feet, three and one-half inches in his "stocking feet." Formidable tusks protrude before him in a gigantic arch of eleven feet and four

HUSKER GRIDSTERS OPEN SPRING DRILL MONDAY AFTERNOON

Prospects Are 'Rosy' With Plenty of Veteran Material.

With the checking out of equipment and a talk by Coach Bible on Monday afternoon, spring football practice got under way at the Nebraska stadium, starting off four weeks of drill. The time is to be taken up with the coaches getting acquainted with the men and learning their aptitudes, and positions.

Prospects for another fine eleven appear rosy, since there are veterans back for every position backed up by capable reserve material and former freshmen performers from last fall. It is also expected that there will be a heavier eleven on hand than was had last year, so that a few more powerhouse plays may be used, which will mean that a more diversified attack may be thrown at opposition defenses.

Three men who played on teams previous to last year's machine are returning, Forrest McPherson, of Fairbury, tackle; Henry Bauer of Lincoln, quarterback; and Burl Durkee, end, coming back for more action in Scarlet togs. They all played regularly on the 1931 outfit.

Durkee and Bauer should be instrumental in solving the end and signal barking problems which have been confronting the Husker mentor. Bernie Masterson performed very capably at quarter back last season, but the mental strain involved in playing that post bothered him, so Bauer's return means optimism.

Steve Hokuf left his end post to be filled, while Lee Penney is to be back for another fling at the gridiron sport as a wing man. There is plenty of quantity as far as the Hokuf vacancy is concerned, but the quality is doubtful, so there is some cause for worry here. Veterans returning are Kilbourne, Joy,

TWO NAMED ON COMMITTEE

Prof. H. F. Cunningham, chairman of the architecture department, have been named members of the committee in charge of the University club's annual gridiron dinner.

The dinner will be held March 29 in the dining room of the club. An entirely new setting for the dinner is being planned, members of the committee have announced. The group will meet today at the club to continue arrangements for the event.

inches. Archie receives his name as a tribute to the late Hector Maiben of Palmyra, a liberal donor to paleontological work in Nebraska.

The remains of this Columbian mammoth were uncovered some years ago in Lincoln county about fourteen miles north of Curtis, Neb., on the H. S. Karriger farm. It was projecting from a wall at the bottom of a small canyon. Mr. and Mrs. Karriger, the discoverers, dug out and preserved the remarkable specimen but not before some of the bones had been pounded up to furnish lime for the large flocks of poultry on the Karriger farm. When the discovery was made that the bones were an unusual find the remaining ones were dug out and cared for with due appreciation.

It was a question for a while whether the new find should make its home in the Colorado or the Nebraska museum, according to museum officials. The director of the Colorado museum finding, however, that the group in Nebraska was the first to enter ne-
