ECONOMIC CLUB PICKS PROFESSOR KIRSHMAN

Leading Thinkers Propose to Frame Plan for Control of Business Cycles.

Prof. John E. Kirshman of the economics department has accepted an invitation of the Lions International to be one of a committee on economic guidance. The committee, which consists of about fifty leading thinkers of the country, has as its purpose to frame a plan or group of plans for the control of business cycles. Lions International, according to a letter received by Kirshman, now the leading service club association with more clubs on the North American continent than any other international association, and representing a cross section of the business and professional interests of the country, has become deeply concerned over what it considers "the persistent failure of our government and society to cope successfully with the problem of ever recurring business cycles."

In the opinion of the board of directors of Lions International, the causes of these depressions, though perhaps too fundamental to be entirely eliminated, can in a measure be brought under control. But there does not seem to be much hope that a worthwhile plan of procedure can come from the office holding class; nor does it appear likely that the business world can work out its own salvation.

Mock Court to Try Pathetic Case Of Ansel Vinson vs. James Shively

Will the cause of justice be maintained or will it be trampled to the ground in the courts of law? This is the momentous question confronting mock court this week. Prof. Ansel Vinson, alias James Shively is bringing suit against the Acme Buick company for $400. The events leading up to this climax are a trifle pathetic. For almost twenty years now the professor has taught English in this university, and has for years on end wearily wended his way to and from work on a bicycle, having for a brief interval had recourse to an old electric car which he found too rusty and violent for his modest needs.

On Jan. 31, however, this pedagogue decided to buy a second hand car and with this idea in mind went to the Acme Buick company where his eye was caught by a two-door Chevrolet, which he purchased for $400 with the understanding that the car had been driven only 500 miles. On Feb. 5 the poor man found that he had

JOHN HAEIN GIVES CONVOCATION TALK ON WORLD'S FAIR

Speaker Is Representative Of Chicago Exposition Committee.

"Youth in particular should attend the World's Fair—it will cause them to strike a happy medium between the social sciences and the applied sciences."

This was the opinion expressed by John Haein, official representative of the Chicago exposition committee, in an address before the fourth all-university convocation in the Temple Tuesday morning. Mr. Haein, who is completing a tour of the various schools and universities, talked on the progress of science in the last century which will be portrayed at the exposition this summer.

Youth Has Opportunity.

"Whenever a mess, as there is now, is created there are also many opportunities created," said Mr. Haein, "and youth has those opportunities. The new ideas to be (Continued on Page 2.)

GROUP TELLS DANGERS OF BUDGET REDUCTIONS

University Officials Appear Before Legislature to Present Arguments.

Members of a committee representing the university told the house of legislature finance committee that any reductions below Gov. Charles W. Bryan's budget recommendation would jeopardize the efficiency of the institution.

Representatives going before the committee were Marion Shaw of David City, president of the board of regents; Chancellor E. A. Burnett and Dean H. H. Foster of the law college.

Shaw stated that Governor Bryan's budget called for reductions at least three times greater than any in the past. He declared that he believed Bryan's recommendations had been made after a thorough study of the university's needs and that his figure was the minimum.

Cuts Are Threats.

Dean Foster declared that "every cut below the Bryan budget is a severe threat to the university." He also pointed out that the university and state appropriations are a minor item in the burden of taxation. If the university were completely abolished, the saving to the individual taxpayer would be less than 4.32 percent.

Foster stated that the proposed budget would reduce salaries three times as much as the 10 percent salary cut which the faculty members have already taken and that further reductions must come from salaries. These would have to be borne by about 400 employees.

Faculty is Loyal.

"The Nebraska faculty is loyal," Foster said, "but I fear that if any appropriation cut were made which would be of little benefit to the taxpayer but would hurt the employe tremendously, it would make it impossible for the type of efficiency that you want."

The danger that inflation and a rise in prices would bring further hardships on the faculty members and employes was pointed out by Foster.

Tuesday Checkup on Number Of Yearbooks Sold Shows Total of 850.

"Wednesday is the absolute deadline for purchasing copies of the 1933 Cornhusker, and positively no yearbooks will be sold after that date," Charles Skade, business manager, stated Tuesday.

A checkup on sales up to Tuesday showed a total of 850 books sold, which is below that of last year. Wednesday's sales are expected to boost the total.

"The contract for printing has been let, and the total number of books sold by Wednesday evening will be submitted to the printers Friday," Skade added. "Students desiring to purchase a Cornhusker will have to see a member of Tassels, Corncobs or the business staff Wednesday, or lose out entirely."

Cash Price is $4.50.

The yearbook sells at a cash price of $4.50, or may be purchased in installments of $2 down, $1 April 1, and the balance of $1.75 on delivery of the book. Checks will still be accepted in payment for books, Skade declared.

The Cornhusker staff has carried out economies wherever possible in order to make the profit-sharing plan effective among purchasers of the book. This has (Continued on Page 2.)

FIFTEEN WILL FINISH OPERATOR'S COURSE

Instruction for Prospective Farmers to Close With Graduation.

Fifteen Iowa, Colorado and Nebraska farm boys will be graduated from the farm operator's short course at the college of agriculture Thursday evening when the annual graduation exercises for the group are to be held.

Plans for the exercise were not complete Tuesday night but were expected to be announced in full Wednesday morning. Harold Oppinger, a graduate this year, is in direct charge of the program which will probably be held in the home economics building. A prominent Lincoln man is slated to address the group.

This week brings the 1932-33 short course to a close. Though the enrollment for both the first and second year groups fell off some this year, Director H. K. Douthit declared recently it was good considering the adverse conditions. It is expected that the course will be held again next year.
