

WEATHER PROHIBITS OUTDOOR SCRIMMAGE IN MONDAY WORKOUT

Candidates See Full Time Action in Saturday's Chilly Game.

With the snow on the ground prohibiting a work out on the south field, Coach Bible's spring football candidates for next fall's eleven, were confined to indoor practice Monday afternoon.

In a half hour's chalk talk Coach Bible pointed out errors made in Saturday's chilly scrimmage, and lectured further on plays which he presented two weeks ago preceding last week's outdoor work.

Considering the weather conditions the game Saturday, the first full time scrimmage of the four weeks session, was fairly satisfactory, and revealed a few fine performers. Ralph Eldridge's 60 yard run to a touchdown after intercepting a pass late in the final period was the only score chalked up during the afternoon. Besides his fine scoring run the Norfolk husky put up a fine performance and he looked like a first rate backfield man.

Most of the afternoon Saturday was spent in running off one play, an off-tackle thrust, which the various elevens have been carrying out in good fashion during the past week. George Sauer looked the best among the ball carriers on this play, lugging the pigskin for sizeable gains several times. Consequently it appears that he will next year be in the role of principal ball carrier for Nebraska as he has been the past two years.

Every once in a while pass and reverse plays were mixed with this off-tackle formation and on one attempt, with Jerry LaHone packing the ball after receiving a lateral, a 40 yard gain was chalked up, the longest of the day from scrimmage. All of the lines were clicking in fine fashion, a bevy of veterans being back to lead the forward wall in play.

Iowans Use Library Much More This Year

AMES, Ia.—Students at Iowa State College are using the library nearly a third more than last year. Whether this increase in use of books is because students are more serious minded or whether they have less money to spend on recreation is not known.

Students are each using an average of 36 to 40 books a year at the present time, Charles H. Brown, college librarian reported, as compared with 30 books last year. A recent survey showed that about 1,800 persons each use an average of three books a day this year.

DRAWINGS MADE FOR HORSESHOE TOURNAMENT

Interfraternity Matches to Commence on Next Tuesday.

The drawings for the interfraternity horseshoe tournament have been completed and the first matches are scheduled for Tuesday, March 28. Rudolf F. Vogeler, director of intramural athletics, has set forth the following rules under which the tournament is to be played.

1. When two teams meet both of whom have no courts, the university courts north of the coliseum may be used. Managers call their opponents and set the time of play. When both teams have courts, we suggest the singles be played at one house and the doubles at the other.
2. Teams consist of two singles and one doubles combination. Each singles match scores one point, the doubles match two points. In case of a tie score, the two singles players play a doubles match with the opponents' two singles players, the winner of the set deciding the match.
3. Scores and names of contestants must be turned in to the intramural office by the winner of the match within 24 hours after scheduled match has been played. Failure to do this entails a loss of match to both teams.

The tournament will consist of four leagues and the drawings for each league are as follows:

CONFERENCE CATCHES

BY BURT MARVIN.

Athletic Director M. F. Ahearn of Kansas State states that he has a cracker-jack baseball team there but can't get any team to play the Wildcats at Manhattan. It isn't because they don't like the town, but simply because few schools find it financially possible to keep baseball on the sports slate. Kansas and Nebraska have abandoned the diamond sport, Iowa State is unable to slate a game for the Manhattan field, so Missouri is the only one thus far scheduled on a home and home basis. Baseball once was a regular thing on the Big Six athletic docket, but it has gone with a lot of other things since 1929. It's too bad somebody can't see whether or not it really is a "cracker-jack" nine at Kansas State.

Basketball is to hold sway again this week-end in the coliseum when the Nebraska state high school championships will be held Thursday, Friday, and Saturday. The tourney is rather late this year, because the bank moratorium wouldn't permit the officials to run it off a week ago, the date for which it was originally scheduled. Two classes, A and B, will hold tourneys, the size of the schools determining which class they compete in. Small schools ranking as class B entries could upon request enter class A ranks previous to the B district tourneys a week ago. Crete high is the defending champ, and looks good again this spring after a poor start early in the season. The tournament this spring is somewhat of an experiment, during which it will be found whether or not fans have forgotten the cage sport after a few weeks of lack of it.

Lon Stiner, Husker football captain in 1926, is a favored candidate for the head coaching position at Oregon State college next fall. Paul Schissler, another Nebraskan, has served as mentor there for the past five years, but received his walking papers following last fall's campaign. Stiner is rated as one of the greatest tacklers who has ever played for Nebraska. They seem to have quite a bit of faith in his ability out on the coast, and the school paper speaks of the prospects very optimistically.

Spring basketball practice is to be held in the coliseum for the second year, and prospects appear plenty bright. Men returning are Hub Boswell, Paul Mason, Ken Lunney, George Sauer, Leland Copple, Bud Parsons, Bob Belka, George Wahlquist, and Madison Letts. A bunch of promising B team and freshman players are also due to be on deck for next winter's play, Coach Browne stating that in the yearling ranks are men who will make varsity players step plenty to hold their positions. Let's hope the record is a bit better than that compiled during the last two years.

STUDENTS TO STUDY YUCATAN COLLECTION

Mammals to Be Shipped From University of Kansas.

LAWRENCE, Kas.—The collection of Yucatan mammals, ranging from monkeys to bats, a part of the collection in the Dyche natural history museum at the University of Kansas, has been shipped to Washington, D. C., where it is to be studied by members of the biological survey of the United States department of agriculture. Drs. E. A. Goldman and E. W. Nelson, members of the survey, are preparing a book on the mammals of Mexico, and turned to the Kansas collection, some of which are rare specimens, for the study. Exchange of material among museums for study is not uncommon, said C. D. Bunker, curator of mammals at the university.

Among the commandments for freshmen listed in the Utah Chronicle, is "Thou shalt not keep thyself in the presence of woman for it is not good."

Quarterly convocation, for economy means, will be abolished at Ohio State university this year.

By taking first place Farm House gained 150 points, which will be added to their total in the race among the houses for this school year's intramural sports championship. Each fraternity entering at least two contestants in each event received 50 entrance points, and those taking the first four places received additional points. Phi Sigma Kappa totaled 130, Sigma Nu 115, and Beta Theta Pi 100 points.

Hayseed and Haywire. By George Round.

College of Agriculture students were "tickled to death" (to use that trite old phrase), that it is sloppy and mushy out. They have a reason—and a good one. With but few exceptions scholars in that college come from the farm and well they realize that farm crops need moisture for the coming year. So while the students on the uptown campus curse about the weather, the Ag students are happy.

"Woody" Tolen is on the uptown campus now... Both "Chersey" Balzer and "Hi" Lambertus, star Husker athletes, belong to an Ag fraternity... Tom Snipes who played on the winning amateur basketball team in town last week end... And now Professor H. K. Douthit, supervisor of short courses at the college, has a Harvard university graduate taking his Farm Operator's course. We say congratulations to you Harold.

Close co-operation between all students on the Ag campus was the big factor in the success of the recent Coll-Agri-Fun frolic. However, it's success was only patterned after that of Farmer's Fair each year. No other college on the University of Nebraska campus can boast of such true co-operation among students.

Farmer out in the state the other day paid a $200 burial bill in silver dollars. Perhaps it is hoarding... Mildred Stanton, another reader or one of the two, asks if we have quit writing this "hokey"... Berniece Rundin asks the same question and so does Ruth Mallory... Even Aileen Neely, Mortar Board of yesterday, says she misses it and that is somepun'...

Henocracy, so they tell us, is the latest fad. A poultryman in the south is raising 50,000 hens in an empty fashionable hotel in Florida. There the hens are so scientifically raised that they do not even see the eggs they lay. As soon as they are laid, they roll down a trough into a "gathering basket." The old job of finding the newly-laid eggs has even disappeared. But we must remember that this is all taking place in a former fashionable hotel...

BIG SQUAD REPORTS FOR SPRING DRILL

Twelve Oklahoma Aggie Lettermen Will Be Available.

STILLWATER, OKL.—A list of nearly 100 men reporting regularly for spring football practice at the Oklahoma A. and M. college was announced today by Coach Lynn O. Waldorf. This is the largest number ever to report for Aggie spring practice seasons.

Sixty-one Oklahoma towns and two other states, Kansas and Louisiana, are represented in the Aggie spring grid squad. In addition to the men reporting for the spring drill, Waldorf will have available next fall a dozen lettermen now out for other spring sports, giving him the largest squad in Cowboy history.

A goodly number of the men now out will see action at Oklahoma City March 31 when the Aggies wind up their spring training period with a game against the Oklahoma City University Goldbugs.

PROF. KEIM WILL SPEAK

Instructor to Talk Before Phi-Weekly Meeting of Phi Sigma.

Dr. F. D. Keim, professor of agronomy, will speak on "Genetics Since the Time of Mendel" at the regular bi-weekly meeting of Phi Sigma, honorary biological fraternity, on Wednesday evening, March 22.

Dr. Keim will supplement his lecture with illustrative material on the genetics of corn and wheat plants. The meeting will be held in Beasey hall 118, and students interested in botany and zoology are urged to attend.

The old-fashioned lunch box, long associated with grade school boys and the "greener" freshmen, is fast becoming a vogue on the campus of Minnesota university.
