SCHOOL SUSPENDS VACATION

'Depression Week-End' Used As Substitute for Usual Holiday.

Chapel Hill, N. C.—When authorities at the University of North Carolina suspended the customary spring holidays on account of the recent bank holiday, they substituted a "depression week end" to keep spirits up. Checks were accepted for Saturday and Sunday picture shows, a free dance was attended by over 2,000 students, the baseball regulars and yannigans staged an exhibition game, the student union entertained at a tea, and "a good time was had by all."
