INSPECTION DATE LISTED

Inter-Company Competitive Drill to Be Staged On May 24.

According to the military department, the annual federal inspection of the university regiment of the R. O. T. C. will be staged on March 10 and 11.

Inter-company competitive drill has been set for May 24. It will consist of exhibitions of work in company drill, platoon drill, and individual competition among members of various companies. The compet will start about 1 o'clock and continue until all companies have completed all of the movements scheduled for them.

According to Col. W. H. Oury, the program of the compet will be approximately the same as last year. Members of the instructing staff of the military department will judge the competing units. Awards will be made to the winners of the various events. Blue, red, and yellow bars will be given to members of the companies winning first, second, and third places in the compet.

DRAMATIC CLUB HOLDS ANNUAL PLAY CONTEST

Twenty-Five Dollars to Be Awarded to Author of Winning Show.

With plans laid for its second annual play writing contest, Lee Young, president of the Dramatic club announced yesterday that plays for the contest are being called for. To be eligible for the contest, entrants must be students in the university, he explained. The contest, one of the traditions of the organization, was revived this year when three original plays were produced in the Temple theater February 29. The idea of the contest, Young pointed out, to encourage and stimulate interest in the art of play writing on this campus.

A twenty-five dollar prize will be awarded to the author of the best play produced. Rules set up by the committee in charge make it necessary for authors to submit their creations to the dramatic club this spring. The committee will choose the three best from those submitted and they will be produced in the Temple next fall. First, second and third places will be made the same as this year, by a vote of the audience.

Zolley Lerner, who was when he submitted his play a university student, took first prize in this year's contest with "Kaddish." Dorothy Cook and Margaret Deming carried off second honors with "The Winning of Harry Jones."

A definite dead-line for the plays has not yet been set. Young stated that it will be announced in the future.

Jury Selection Finishes Preparation For Fifth Test Case in Law College

With a jury having been selected Tuesday from a panel of eighteen, the taking of testimony got under way Wednesday in the fifth test case of the year being held at the Law College.

The case involves a civil suit for damages arising from an accident near Des Moines, Ia., in which a seventeen year old boy was killed. The youth, while riding a motorcycle, was struck and killed by a motor car driven by a salesman for a Des Moines cement firm.

Attorneys for the plaintiff, the heirs of the boy, are Reginald Miller and Dick Ricketts, while those representing the defendants are James Doyle and Willis R. Hecht. Prof. Lynn Coffman is serving as judge.

The highlight of Wednesday's proceedings was the effort of Ricketts to extricate himself from a situation in which he found one of his own witnesses, Milton Foe,

APPLICANTS MAY FILE WITH COLLEGE HEADS FOR TUITION AWARDS

Financial Status of School May Prohibit Giving Scholarships.

Applications for tuition scholarships for the fall semester may now be filed with deans or directors of the various colleges according to an announcement made Wednesday from the office of the dean of student affairs. Students may secure forms at the offices of the dean of their college.

Dean of student affairs, T. J. Thompson, stated that it has not yet been definitely decided as to whether tuition scholarships will be awarded next semester, as the financial status of the university is very uncertain at present. Every effort however, will be made to continue them, he stated.

These scholarships, which have been given by the university each semester for the past five years, are awarded on the basis of scholastic standing and financial need. A university committee selects the successful candidates each semester.

Only tuition fees (not including non-resident fees) are included in the scholarships. Altho awarded for only one semester, they may be renewed upon student application.

INEXPENSIVE BEAUTY TO PREVAIL AT FAIR

Miss Klotz, Junior Member, Has Charge of Home Ec Exhibits.

Valentine Klotz, junior fair board member who has charge of the home economics exhibits in the coming farmer's fair, announced that the exhibits would be based on low cost beauty.

Three committees have made preliminary reports, she said. Dorothy Nuetzman, chairman of the committee on quilts, said the quilt exhibit would feature quilts that can be made with bits from the scrap bag, at a very low cost. The usual exhibit of quilts old and new, of every pattern available will be a part of the display. A new feature is the quilt which the girls at the new dormitory are planning. Quilt patterns will be given to visitors.

Vera Emrich, chairman. The committee on child care, headed by Vera Emrich, also reported. They plan a comparison of old and new ideas on child care; an exhibit of home made toys, and one of booklets and posters on child nutrition.
