AG CLUB'S PRESIDENT TO OUTLINE POLICIES

New System of Elections Up for Consideration This Semester.

At the first meeting of Ag club's soon to be called, John Loewenstein, president, plans to outline certain new policies designed to create more interest and activity in the club. No change will be made in the general constitution, according to Loewenstein, but he believes for one thing, that it would be advantageous to the club to change the mode of elections.

"Ag club officers being elected by ballot at the general election tends to draw the club into politics," he said, "I believe that situation could be corrected by electing our officers at regular club meetings."

Loewenstein said certain other activities of the club were not to be announced as yet.

Students who will assist Loewenstein in semester's program are Howard White, vice-president, and Bill Donahue, secretary. Elmer Parit, treasurer, is not in school this year, and a new appointment will be made.

NEBRASKAN MANAGER PLANS DISTRIBUTION

Booths Will Be Placed in Social Science and Agriculture Finance Office.

A new system of distribution for the Daily Nebraskan is to be established immediately according to announcement made Thursday by Bernard Jennings, business manager of the publication.

Two distribution booths are to be erected, one in Social Science building on the city campus, and the other in the Finance office in Ag hall on the agricultural college campus. From these two booths the papers will be allotted to the subscribers on the morning of the day of publication. The work is to be handled by the finance office on the outlying campus, and by Miss Julia Harrison at the booth in the north end of Social Science hall on the downtown campus. The hours will be all day at Ag and 7:45 a. m. to 12:15 at Social Science.

"The Daily Nebraskan is a student enterprise," stated Jennings, "and should be made more easily available."

The paper is to be given to students free for the first two weeks of school in order that they may get a full idea of the place of the publication in school life. After the two weeks have passed the Nebraskan subscriptions will be put on sale.

Present plans call for the erection of a temporary booth, with the possibility of building a permanent stand if other organizations desire to operate under the new distribution plan.

The booth is to be located at the north end of the first floor hall in Social Science building. Previously organizations and publications have conducted distribution in the center of the corridor, but it is hoped that congestion at the middle door might be relieved by the change of location.

With the substantial increase in advertising revenue for the Daily Nebraskan making the outlook for the year a bit more optimistic, the staff is publishing a larger paper after having reverted to the standard size last year.

Slight Slump Expected In Ag Chemistry Class

Registration in freshman chemistry courses at Ag college will probably not be more than 125, instructor R. C. Abbott predicted today. The students registering in his course last year slightly exceeded that number.

"The largest registration I've ever had," Abbott said, "was 214 students. The number has decreased about twenty per year the last few years."

WAR OF RETALIATION WILL NOT BE STARTED

Cushing Says Nebraska Will Accept Teachers From Colorado Schools.

The state superintendent's office will not start a war of retaliation against Colorado teachers having school contracts in Nebraska, by refusing to honor their certificates according to an announcement made recently by Deputy H. L. Cushing.

In spite of the fact that the state superintendent of Colorado is at the present time practicing such discrimination against teachers from Nebraska, Cushing declared that such a measure would work a hardship on some Nebraska school districts, as well as teachers from Colorado who are not to blame.

"We may appeal to the next legislature to adopt some reciprocal policy, but we do not feel like undertaking it on our own initiative," Mr. Cushing declared.

The trouble started originally last week when a graduate of the Nebraska Teachers college was refused a certificate in Colorado to teach in rural schools. At that time Cushing wired the state superintendent of Colorado that if that state continued its discrimination Nebraska would find technicalities in its laws to exclude Colorado teachers. The Colorado superintendent denied charges of discrimination, saying that the law applied to all candidates, regardless of where their education was received.

Second Women's Co-Operative Hall Established on University Campus

Scholarship and Personality, Need, Reputation Are Selection Basis.

Under the joint supervision of Dean Amanda Heppner and Miss Elsie Ford Piper who has charge of housing a second co-operative house is being organized. The new dormitory will be run on the same plan as Howard hall, the only change being that freshman women will be permitted to live there.

As in the case of Howard Hall residents of this new cottage will be selected on the basis of scholarship, real need, personality and the reputation which they have established either on this campus or in high schools which they may have attended. Applications for residence are made at office of the Dean of Women. This dormitory is required to be self-maintaining and so is neither a loan or charity project. It aims to increase the resources of the women students who are partially or wholly self-dependent.

OVER 100 STUDENTS WILL LIVE IN DORM

Dr. Williamson Announces More Residents To Sign Up Later.

Over 100 students have already registered to live in Carrie Belle Raymond hall this semester and, according to Dr. Elizabeth Williamson, social director of the dormitory, the list is not complete as yet.

In discussing the increase in the number of women living in the hall, Dr. Williamson declared it was due to two things. First of all the dormitory has operated so successfully for one year that girls are anxious to be residents. A substantial reduction has been made in rates for board and room and this was listed as the second factor.

Thursday evening there will be a meeting of hall residents. At this time they will outline their year program and elect the house council. Members of the house council are: M. E. Kinsinger, dramatics; Elmer Gunggaard, sports, and Kay, amiable, music, has been selected as house proctor.

GREEK CHAPTERS CLOSE SEMESTER RUSH WEEK WORK

Rushes and Fraternity Men Welcome End of Hectic Rushing Period.

MANY CRITICIZE RULES Active Summer Campaigns Evident for First Time; Fewer Men Rushed.

Nebraska fraternities brought a hectic week of rushing, and drastically changed rules, to a close Tuesday night, with various opinions being advanced by the several fraternities as to the success or failure of the new system. Rushes and fraternity men alike hailed the end of the strenuous and confusing rush period with relief, and were busy filling their respective preferences in the Interfraternity Council office Wednesday morning.

The faculty committee faced a weighty task as it set about its work of reconciling rusher's choices with the fraternity bid lists, while at fraternity houses, a condition of semi-suspense prevailed during the afternoon as they awaited the results of the committee's work. As usual, a number of men were known to have been definitely "spiked," but in many other cases, the rusher's choice remained an unknown matter with the fraternity and one of some concern.

"Spikes" Must Be Permanent. Realizing that under the preferential system, they must "sell" the rusher permanently and make their rush sticks stick with him, fraternities have waged a more intensive and more concentrated campaign than in previous years, and competition, perhaps keener than ever before, has been apparent throughout the week.

An aggressive campaign during the summer was found on the program of many fraternities who had hitherto placed little emphasis on pre-rush week activities. The number of men being rushed this year is somewhat smaller than that of last year, but indications are that over twelve hundred men have been entertained at the various houses since Saturday.

Numerous criticisms of parts of the new system have been voiced during their progress of rush week as loopholes for minor infractions appeared. The rule against a fraternity man communicating with rushers at any time other than during his own house's date with him, was a consistent target for "spikes."

Another which was received with an almost equal amount of dissatisfaction was the one forbidding (Continued on Page 2.)

FLEMING ANNOUNCES CAR LICENSING RULING

Traffic Problem Requires Out-of-Town Students To Register.

University students driving automobiles bearing license plates of their home county will not be required to purchase Lancaster county license plates, Mayor Fenton Fleming announced Tuesday. It had been previously announced that Lancaster plates would have to be on every student car.

"Student cars with out of town licenses will be checked and registered," the mayor said. "We are trying to clear up the traffic problem and students with out of town licenses often violate Lincoln traffic regulations. They are not given tickets because of their licenses. We will merely get a list of student cars to register and give them the same treatment that we do Lincoln residents."

It was announced thru the office of Roy L. Cochran, state engineer, that student cars with out of state licenses would be given as much time to obtain Nebraska licenses as the state from which they come gives Nebraska drivers.

Sergt. L. C. Regier, head of the campus police, declared he would start immediately to complete his list and registration of student cars to continue the work of the traffic clearance campaign. A number of students after the tentative announcement that they would have to buy Lincoln licenses, indicated that they would not drive their cars in Lincoln if this were carried into effect.

CHANGES MADE IN Y. W. CABINET FOR SEMESTER'S WORK

At a tea given by Miss Bernice Miller for the Y. W. C. A. cabinet Monday afternoon the following changes in this year's group were announced: Elaine Fontein will replace Willa Norris as head of the Vespers group; Violet Cross will head the Publicity staff to take the place left vacant by Elaine Fontein; Ruth Cherney will direct the Freshman Commission; and Louise Hawsack will be in charge of the Program and Office Staff. Beth Schmid will supervise the Project work for the year.

Muriel Moffat and Lucille Hitchcock, who had positions on the Y. W. cabinet will not be in school this semester.

Other business of the afternoon was a discussion of the advisability of joining the Y. M. C. A. in forming discussion groups for students.

Y. W. C. A. SWAP SHOP OPENS THIS MORNING

When the book is sold for the desired price, people in charge of the shop will call the owner and he in turn will report to the shop for his money. The Y. W. gets a commission for selling the book.

Beth Schmid has charge of the Swap Shop as well as other projects sponsored by the Y. W. C. A. She will be assisted by members of the cabinet and women interested in the organization.

Y. M. Cabinet Goes To Kinnikinnick Soon

TOTALS FOR FALL REGISTRATION ARE BELOW LAST YEAR

Registrants Number 2,872 With More Expected To Enroll.

MANY EXPECTED LATER Officials Say Weather and Uncertain Finances Are Causing Delay.

Incomplete registration figures for the first semester reveal a total of 2,872 students enrolled for the first semester, according to a statement released by university officials yesterday afternoon.

The total of 2,872 registrants includes only those who registered last spring and paid their fees before the first of September and those students, old as well as new, who registered in the coliseum Tuesday. The totals were: Those who paid fees before Sept. 1, 1,776; Tuesday registration was 1,096.

Registrants increase. Figures for the same period one year ago showed that 2,085 students registered the first day; 836 registered the second day last year, but no figures on second day registration this year were available yesterday afternoon.

The grand total of registrants for the first semester last year was 5,414 students. The number registered so far this year, 2,872, is slightly behind the second day total for last year, will be augmented by those registering from that day until approximately the first of October. Registration has not yet started in the graduate college or at the medical or nursing schools in Omaha, and figures will not be obtainable for some time.

University officials expect that the total registration figures for this year will be very close to the total for the first semester of last year, although definite figures will be known for some time.

Two factors contributing to the slight decrease in totals so far, according to officials, are weather conditions and the uncertain financial condition of a great number of persons planning to enter school. Late registrants are expected to equal the total to a greater degree than they have done in previous years.

As yet, complete figures for the different classes have been compiled, but work on this phase of registration totals will begin within a few days. No records were kept of the numbers in the coliseum, and those of last spring are not yet accurate. Registration in the various colleges will also be published at a later date.

ALL UNIVERSITY PARTY TO BE SATURDAY NIGHT

Complete Arrangements and Large Crowd Expected Saturday Night.

At 8:30 Saturday night the first all-university party will be held in the Coliseum. Final arrangements for this Get-Acquainted affair were completed at the meeting of the Bar Council Wednesday afternoon, and plans for future parties were discussed by the group.

The orchestra which will play for the dance is Joyce Ayres' ten piece band with Marjorie Whitney, who is a prominent Lincoln orchestra which has played in Lincoln and vicinity for several years, and for numerous student functions.

"We hope to see a large crowd out for the party Saturday night," says Burton Marvin, chairman of the Bar Council, "because we feel that with the proper support we can offer a set of real all-university parties this season."

The second dance this fall follows close upon the first one, being scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 30. The third party is set for Oct. 28, and is to be the first close night-university party. This party will be arranged as a variety party, and is to be held on Dads Day as an all-student function.
