SMASH RECORDS IN TICKET DRIVE

Sales Pass 1,200 Mark as Students Rally to Support Of Athletic Ticket Campaign; Barb Sales Show Big Increase Over Last Year.

SATURDAY NOON WILL MARK DEADLINE SALES

Trip to Missouri to Be Awarded Six High Saleswomen Tassels Selling Thirty-Five Tickets to Receive Pass for Grid Games.

Breaking all previous athletic ticket sales records for a corresponding period, Tassels, girls' pep organization, enter the fifth day of their athletic book campaign today with more than 1,200 sales to their credit. Indications were that the end of the drive Saturday noon would see the establishment of a new record for total sales.

Upwards of 275 tickets were sold Wednesday and Thursday noon, with competition between Tassel sales teams growing keener as they approached the home stretch. The team headed by Mary Edith Hendricks continued in first place while those under Florence Burman and Jean Brownlee were second and third respectively. Roma DeBrown continued ahead in the race for individual sales with more than one hundred to her credit.

Booths were opened in Social Science, Andrews hall, law college and on the ag campus Thursday to accommodate students who had not had an opportunity to buy tickets. It was thought that last minute demands for tickets Friday and Saturday morning would swell the total considerably. Announcement was made by Anne Bunting, president of Tassels that all girls selling over thirty-five tickets would receive a season ticket free, while the six high saleswomen will receive free trips to the Missouri game. Girls who had sold over thirty-five to date are Gretchen Schrag, Elizabeth Shearer, Jane Bedson, Roma (Continued on Page 3.)

TO THE STUDENT BODY:

Tonight is the first rally of the year. The Huskers are facing one of their toughest games of the season when they go on the field tomorrow against the Texas Longhorns, and need the backing of the entire student body. If tonight's demonstration is whole hearted, I am sure that Nebraska will win. Every student on the campus should attend tonight's rally, which will start at the Temple building at 7 o'clock. With the display of enthusiasm that has been shown during the past few days by many students, there is no reason why this rally should not be one of the most spirited in the history of the school. One hundred percent co-operation in getting behind the team will produce victory. Let "Smear the Steers" be the watchword on the campus.

LLOYD LOOMIS, Member of Innocents Society in charge of rallies.

Innocents and Mortar Boards Strongly Urge Support Of Tradition.

"Hello Day," an effort to promote a better feeling of co-operation among all university students, which is being sponsored by women's organizations, today, is being supported by the Innocents, according to Byron Goulding, president of the group.

The origin of "Hello Day" was in Ann Arbor, several years ago. According to Jean Alden, president of the Y. W. C. A. "Since 'Hello Day' has been successful on many other campuses, there is no reason why it should not be successful at Nebraska if everyone co-operates," she said. "I hope every one will use 'Hello Day' to work up Cornhusker spirit for the Texas Game," stated Ruth Cheney, a Mortar Board member.

HENDERSON ELECTED AG FORMAL CHAIRMAN

The Ag student's formal party, according to the report, is sponsored jointly by Ag club and the Home Ec club. Helen Smrha, Home Ec club's president, will assist Henderson as co-chairman of the committee. None of the other committees were appointed at the meeting Wednesday night. According to Henderson, he has already discussed preparations for the formal with Miss Smrha, and they are ready to go to work at once. The first few committees, he said, will be announced this week. There are both men and women on each committee for the formal. The home economics students, according to Henderson, are chiefly interested in the selection of the girl who will be presented as the Farmers' Formal Queen at the party. The "Queen" is selected by vote of the girls in the college.

NEBRASKA SPIRIT SOARS AS CORNHUSKERS PREPARE FOR BATTLE WITH TEXANS

Lee Penney, Star End, Has Broken Nose and Cheek Bones.

O'BRIEN MAY NOT START

Texas Squad Will Arrive in Lincoln This Afternoon At About 5:30.

A broken nose and fractured cheekbone placed Lee Penney, considered one of the best ends in the midwest, in the infirmary Thursday where he will remain until after the Longhorn-Husker melee which is to take place tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Nebraska Memorial stadium. Penney received his injury in Wednesday's scrimmage against the freshmen. It was believed at first that he would be able to see action in the Steer conflict, but an X-ray revealed that the cheek bone was also fractured. Doc McLean, Husker trainer, thought Penney's condition far too serious to even consider playing him.

Replacements for Penney will be Roby, who will start in the fray, and Milne, Virgil Yelkin was scheduled for a chance at that end but it was revealed that he will be ineligible due to scholastic difficulties. O'Brien, who has been nursing a bruised shoulder will undoubtedly get in the game but it is not known for certain whether he will start. Thompson has been substituting for him in the tackle berth and it is probable that he will be given first chance.

Leland Coppel, second string Varsity tackle, another victim of the broken nose plague for which the Frosh are wholly responsible, will not participate unless the nose is urgent. A special helmet is being prepared for him, however. This injury jinx which descended on the Scarlet and Cream in such a startling and scathing manner is expected to slow up the Varsity offense to a considerable extent. If the Bohn Hilliard gets thru the Nebraska line there will be no one on the Nebraska squad with the exception of Roby, who can hope to catch him.

PLAYERS GIVE REHEARSEL AT REFORMATORY

Clever Three Act Comedy Opens With Ramsey In Chief Role.

That the three act play, "The Late Christopher Bean," is one of the cleverest comedies to be produced by the University Players was demonstrated Thursday evening by a performance at the state reformatory. The players open their season with a week's run of this comedy beginning next Monday.

Ray Ramsey, veteran of many players' successes, brings another able characterization to the local stage in his work in this play. Clara Christensen, also well known for her dramatic work, displayed considerable comedy ability in the featured feminine role. The principal feminine character part was capably handled by Dorothy Zimmer, who has assumed numerous leading roles in the players' productions.

Competent support of the leads was furnished by the rest of the cast, which included Mae Posey, Phyllis Sandin, Louren Gilbert, Irving Hill, Armand Hunter and Joel Epstein. The play was adapted by Sidney Howard from a French comedy by Rene Fauchois, but has its setting in New England with the characters being natives of that region. Action of the play centers about a scramble on the part of art critics and commercial buyers for a number of valuable paintings, which remained in the home of a country physician after the death of the artist.

"Smear the Steers!" Ardent followers of Cornhusker football will take the first steps toward bulldozing the Texas Steers in the first all-student pep rally of the year tonight at the scene of the Saturday game—the stadium. Elaborate plans for one of the biggest and most stirring pep meetings in the history of Nebraska football have been arranged for this evening's program under the direction of the Innocents society.

As a climax to a week of impromptu but spirited pep gatherings, all students will assemble at the stadium tonight to meet the members of the Nebraska football team and promise them full support against the University of Texas team in the inter-sectional battle tomorrow afternoon. ## HUSKERS LAUDED IN FOOTBALL YEARBOOK

Sports Writer Predicts Bible Team Will Again Win Championship.

PRaises NEBRASKA LINE

Nebraska's grid squad came in for another boost this week with the appearance of "Football," a 100 page illustrated annual publication. Heading the list of articles about the Cornhuskers was "Beware of the Valley," by Frederick Ware, sports writer for the Omaha World Herald. "Mentors and followers of eastern, southern and coast cleveans are hereby warned to beware of squalls in the Valley district and to bring along their own portable cyclone cellars." "Nebraska has been almost the only representative of the Valley states in consistent major inter-sectional combat. It may be force of habit that causes competitor coaches, sports writers and other serious observers to agree almost unanimously that Colonel Dana X. Bible will celebrate his fifth year as head professor of the Cornhuskers by bringing another championship to Nebraska."

The Huskers should have a more consistent offense than last year when they lost once to Minnesota, 7 to 6, and were tied by Pitt. Their defense, which was among the best in the land, should be every bit as good. An old party of whom you may have heard, named "Pa" Henry Schulte, who learned about football from Yost on the point-a-minute Michigan team back about 1905, looks after the line and will see to that. The Annual also lists a number of future All-Americans for 1933, among whom are George Sauer and Warren DeBus of Nebraska. The magazine devotes a full column to Sauer, saying: "Rugged and rangy, ever ready, George Henry Sauer loves football with every ounce of his 197 pounds. He is the sort of a back around whom (Continued on Page 3.)
