Glenn Frank, President of Wisconsin University, Conducts Open Forum for Discussion of National Recovery Act

America's National Recovery Act must be accompanied by a program of reduction in farm mortgages, by an extensive program of credit for industry, and by a far more world-minded economic and political policy than we now have to pull us entirely out of the economic depression, Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin, told more than 1,500 students in the first open forum of the year at the State University recently.

The meeting was held in the Great Hall of the Memorial Union building, and the huge room was packed to the draped doorways with the hundreds of students and townspeople. Pres. Frank spoke for more than an hour, and then students asked him questions concerning America's new economic policies for more than a half-hour longer.

"The NRA alone is not enough," Pres. Frank told the students. "If reductions in farm mortgages, extensive public works, more credit for industry, and a more far-sighted foreign policy can be driven abreast of the NRA, the criticism of it as a good social policy but a bad economic policy would not be merited."

Political statesmanship has stepped into the breach with no other purpose than to stimulate American business, industry, and finance to live up to its most enlightened leadership instead of down to its least enlightened leadership. Pres. Frank said, adding that the NRA program is the result.

"With some of the program I do not agree," he asserted, "but Mr. Roosevelt will doubtless be the first to concur in readjustment of its details in the light of experience. Upon the achievement of its major objective—of stabilizing employment and spreading the national income widely enough through higher wages and shorter hours to create a dependable market for our industrial system—and Miss Jean Malowney were hostesses. Thirty members attended and Halloween decorations were used on the table.

A COVERED DISH dinner was arranged by alumnae of Alpha Delta Theta Saturday evening at the chapter house for active members, pledges and their mothers. The annual fall fruit shower was received by the house. Forty guests were seated at one large table which was centered with a large cornucopia and fresh fruit. Mrs. J. C. Jensen made the arrangements.

THE MONTHLY LUNCHEON of Alpha Chi Omega alums were given Saturday at the home of Mrs. F. J. Patz with Mrs. R. O. Johnson, Mrs. Max Roper, Mrs. John Hilder, Mrs. Blanche Anderson and Mrs. Frank Dice as assistant hostesses. Thirty members were present.

FROM THE NATIONAL Panhellenic congress, held recently in Chicago, Isabel Wolfe Hemenway, national president of Alpha Delta Theta, has returned to Lincoln for several days before her departure for her home in Cortaro, Ariz. Active and alumnae members of Alpha Delta Theta are planning a dinner to be given in her honor at the University club.

nalism, spoke on the work of Sigma Delta Chi in the research field, and his subject was continued by Ralph D. Casey, chairman of the department of journalism at Minnesota University.
Later E. Ross Bartley, alumnus of the fraternity and director of promotion for a Century of Progress, spoke on "Ballyhooing the Big Show." He explained the publicity procedure behind the project and discussed at some length the field of publicity.
A talk on "Press Time for Opportunity" was given by Eugene C. Pulliam, one of the founders of Sigma Delta Chi and now owner of a chain of Indiana newspapers. Frederick S. Siebert, instructor in the school of journalism at Illinois university and a former practicing attorney, spoke on "Confidence Violation Under the Law," recommending that Sigma Delta Chi sponsor legislation to protect press confidences. The concluding talk of the afternoon was given by Frank Luther Mott, director of the school of journalism at the University of Iowa, who spoke on the possibility of rating college daily newspapers.

session was taken up with committee reports. Moran, Nebraska delegate and chairman of the membership committee, presented the report of his committee at the final session Sunday morning.
Discussions Saturday morning included talks on editorial unity, typography of modern publications, editorial criticism as a constructive influence in public affairs, and a review of the fraternity's history. Principal speakers were Frank Parker Stockbridge, editor of the New York American Press, and Marlen E. Pew, editor of Editor and Publisher.
Saturday afternoon delegates witnessed a model initiation in which two undergraduate students and an associate member were inducted into the organization.
Most of the representatives left Chicago Sunday afternoon and evening to return to their universities.

Gentlemen may prefer blondes but freshmen at Ball State Teachers college in Indiana prefer brunettes, according to the results of questionnaires circulated recently on the campus. The ideal coed in the eyes of the first-year men possesses the following qualities: Brunette, bobbed hair, average size, talkative with a good line, good student and meek. The college hero in the opinion of the freshman coeds should have curly dark hair, brown eyes, average looks, and be tall, athletic, talkative with a good line, and meek in spirit, besides wearing smart clothes. The most overwhelming vote cast was in favor of the athlete. In a choice between the athletes, non-athletes and social butterflies, the social butterflies went entirely scoreless with non-athletes polling but a few votes. The talkative boys did not have such a great majority since the strong and silent type was held in favor by a great many girls.

At the University of California at Berkeley there are three co-operative boarding houses for women. Students unable to pay for room and board in cash terms are allowed to bring farm supplies, canned goods, etc. in payment. The latest adventure has been the refurbishing of an old Nursery home into a boarding house. Mother Goose pictures grinned at the would-be dwellers at their every turn and pictures of bright little toy walls. But now they are all buried artistically beneath layers of pastel tints of paint, and the girls have carried suitcases and boxes into their new home. Eleven girls are now living in this latest home and there is room for five more.

DUPLICATED NAMES CONFUSE REGISTRAR

Sage Favors Law Preventing Students From Having Identical Titles.

AMES, Ia., Oct. 16.—There ought to be a law, or something, to prevent students from having duplicate names in the opinion of J. R. Sage, registrar at Iowa State College, and his staff.

Two Robert J. Williamses and two Robert J. Browns are listed among this year's students, and Mr. Sage is seeking to avoid confusion by making sure that their entire middle names, rather than initials only, are included in the new college directory. The problem is complicated by the presence of two additional Robert Browns, but they have thoughtfully provided themselves with different middle initials.

Last year the college enrolled two Charles Frederick Clarks, and both of them were electrical engineering students.

At the University of Kansas one of the most important scrambles each year is the seeking of parking space in the designated campus zone. Each student with a car is required to obtain a tag which entitles him to a "stall." There are so many cars that a large number fail to receive such permits. What a situation! Here the student has plenty of parking space, but nothing to park.

At the University of North Carolina, boarding houses and restaurants offer free meals each fall as advertising. On one occasion this year an entire fraternity which owned its own dining room, walked into a restaurant armed with dinner invitations and proceeded to hold a chapter meeting.

Wisconsin University Offers 14 Libraries For Reference Work

University of Wisconsin students have the opportunity of using fourteen libraries in their work of obtaining an education at the state university, a survey of campus library facilities has revealed.

In addition to the local city library, there are six main libraries and seven branches which students may use. These libraries contain more than a million volumes on every imaginable subject, in addition to approximately half a million pamphlets of various kinds.

The main libraries are those of the University of Wisconsin, the State Historical society, the Wisconsin Academy of Science, Arts and Letters, the state law library, the legislative reference library, and the Madison Free library. Duplicate copies of books and pamphlets are kept by these libraries only in case of exceptional demand by the students and public generally.

The library of the University of Wisconsin, located in the main library building on the campus, contains about 447,000 volumes and 298,000 pamphlets, covering a wide variety of subjects. The state historical library, in the same building, runs a close second with 279,000 books and 298,000 pamphlets.

State law and legislative reference libraries are housed in the state capitol building. The law library contains more than 100,000 volumes, while the reference library has more than 60,000 books besides innumerable pamphlets and clippings. The Madison Free library has nearly 100,000 volumes.

The list of university branch libraries includes those in the biological, geological, agricultural, English, law, medical, and astronomy departments. Each of these libraries are located in the respective department buildings, to make them easily available to the students who are taking courses in those fields of study.

In order to instill spirit into the team of the University of Minnesota an Indian peace drum is used which produces a throbbing percussion which can be heard for miles.
