Jack Crawford Will Play for Event; Students May Dance Until 12.

With approximately six hundred couples expected to attend, campus attention is focused on the third annual Mortar Board party at the University Coliseum tonight, which heads the weekend social activities with Jack Crawford's Victor recording orchestra playing.

The advance ticket sale, according to Willa Norris, president of Mortar Board, has been very good, indicating that with the sale of tickets at the gate tonight there will be one of the largest crowds in the three years since the party has been given. Ticket sales have been conducted by Tassels Mortar Boards and members of Alpha Lambda Delta, freshman honorary organization for the past week.

Type of Dress Optional. Formal dress for the party is optional. Since a formal party has been scheduled for the same night members of the committee in charge of the event have announced that either formal or informal dress will be proper for the party.

A new feature in the form of program for dancers will be innovated on the campus tonight. (Continued on Page 4.)

HOUR DANCES ON AG CAMPUS GOAL OF NEW POLICIES

Committee Acts to Permit Use of Activities Building.

With the major purpose, promotion and encouragement of hour dances on the ag campus, the committee on student activities at Ag college recently adopted a series of policies concerning use of the college activities building.

"We wish to promote more fellowship between the two sexes, particularly between those whose courses separate them after the freshman year," stated Dr. C. E. Rosenquist, chairman of the committee. According to Dr. Rosenquist the committee feels that any well chaperoned party like the hour dances would be a worthwhile means of getting engineers, members of ag college and home ec majors to meet members of the opposite sex. Such functions would be especially expedient at the present time when so many students cannot afford to attend the mixers, he stated.

Extend Use of Building. Another of the new policies makes the building available for use by organizations other than ag groups. In the past there have been many requests for use of the building by exclusive groups and clubs. These have previously been refused, but now will be granted if dates do not conflict with non-exclusive events. The Ag executive board passed this resolution. The board retains control of Ag mixers. Faculty Members Give Views on Pro And Con Aspects of Administration's Efforts Toward National Recovery

Editor's Note: The following article represents the opinions of a few faculty members on the pro and con aspects of the Roosevelt administration's efforts toward national recovery.

Opinions, both favorable and unfavorable regarding the policies of the government in an effort to bring the country out of the depression, were expressed by faculty members of college of business administration. They agreed, however, that for the most part, time would alone tell the outcome to the programs which are being sponsored by the government.

The main points expressed by the faculty members are as follows: 1. If all the economic policies that have been adopted tentatively, by the present administration were carried to their logical limits, every economist and so-called economist would be banished from the land. Fortunately we may escape that disaster because many of the policies will be abandoned before too much damage has been done.—Arnold.

2. The problem facing the Roosevelt administration since March has been to bring back into customary channels a steady flow of purchasing power. Once the steadiness of the flow is established, its

DECEMBER ISSUE OF PUBLICATION HONORS COLLINS

Alumnus Contains Eulogy Of Late Assistant To Barbour.

Dedicated to the late Frederick G. Collins, who before his recent death was assistant curator of the university museum, the December issue of the Nebraska Alumnus will appear about the first of the week, according to Harry Becker, editor of the publication.

The leading article in the magazine is in appreciation of the work done by Mr. Collins, and is written by his co-worker, Dr. E. H. Barbour, curator of the museum. The frontispiece is a picture of Collins at work at his desk. A dedication for the book has been written by Prof. E. F. Schramm of the geology department, who was closely associated with Collins in his work.

Article Concerns Frye.

Following the policy of the magazine, that of including in each of its numbers an article about some member of the faculty who has been with the university a long time, this issue carries a story by Prof. S. B. Gass, of the English department, about Prof. Frosser H. Frye. This feature has been continued by the editors because of the interest which has been shown by the alumni.

"Why We Should Have a New Army" is the title of the monthly article by the chancellor on topics affecting the university. Contrasting with the story by the faculty is a description of the Student Council by William Eddy, a member of the student governing body.

Gives Reading Review.

Gilbert H. Doane, librarian of the university, continues his regular review of reading material which makes its second appearance in this number. Because of the active interest of the alumni, a question and answer section has been incorporated in this department.

CLUB DISCUSSES NRA AT MEETING THURSDAY NIGHT

Malcolm Leads International Relations Group in Survey of Act.

DEFEND ADMINISTRATION Round Table Talks Concern Operation of National Recovery Plans.

With the discussion led by Norman Malcolm, graduate student in the department of political science, a comprehensive view of the Roosevelt administration's National Recovery act was made at a discussion held at Social Science hall last night under the auspices of the International Relations club.

The discussion of the meeting centered largely around the administration as it is carried out by the federal government. Pointing out that the labor charges against the N. R. A. are in many instances justified, Gerald Agens, graduate student in philosophy, opened the discussion.

Broady Defends N. R. A. The general advantages of the recovery act were taken up in a talk by Vincent Broady, who declared that the act was primarily doing what it was originally scheduled to do.

Following the introductory speeches by Broady and Agens, a round table discussion was continued by persons attending the meeting, following the lines opened up by the introductory speakers. This discussion was directed by Norman Malcolm.

The purpose of the round table discussion is to enable the interested people to obtain a comprehensive view of the situation under the recovery actions of the president and congress. Benetie Hoffman, graduate student in the department of political science, presided over this phase of the meeting.

The question dealt with was especially significant, it was stated, in view of the criticisms leveled against the president and his recovery act policies. A similar discussion was held by the group recently when they discussed the relative merits and criticisms of United States recognition of Russia, while negotiations were being carried on in Washington.

VAN PELT GIVES EXPLANATION OF NRA'S OPERATION

Constitutionality of Act Depends on Supreme Court Decision.

Whether the NRA will be declared constitutional or not by the Supreme Court depends on their recognition of the state of national emergency caused by our economic crisis, according to Robert Van Pelt, United States district attorney and NRA counsel, who addressed Prof. T. T. Bullock's economics class in Social Science hall yesterday afternoon.

The constitutionality of the act has been attacked because of the alleged dictatorship it sets up, he stated, and because it suspends some property rights. However, the constitution does grant congress, he continued, the power to provide for the general welfare of the people, to preserve their republican form of government, and to regulate their money values. These powers should justify the existence of the NRA.

Explains Johnson's Tactics. The vigorous enforcement of NRA legislation by General Johnson prompted Mr. Van Pelt to state that Johnson was a graduate of West Point and the youngest brigadier general in the army since Civil war days, which fact explains his militant tactics.

The only complaint in the Lincoln district that was referred to federal authorities concerned a walkathon, whose employees worked more than thirty hours a week. Since no code had been devised by last summer for the walkathon industry, and the blanket code could be enforced only by public opinion, the dancers continued unmolested. A violation under a code would make the violation (Continued on Page 4.)

LEVINE RATED AS THIRD

Eight Freshmen Talk on Price Fixing by United States Government.

Arthur L. Smith, jr., of Lincoln and Herbert Kaplan of Omaha tied for first place in the annual Long trophy contest, under the sponsorship of Delta Sigma Rho, honorary forensic fraternity, Thursday evening. The tie is the first in the history of the cup which has been awarded for six years by E. H. "Red" Long to the best debater of the freshman class.

Arnold Levine, Rosalie, was awarded honorable mention by the judges as the third in a field of eight contestants. The other men competing were Clayton Ankeny, Lincoln; Robert Funk, Lincoln; Albert Stein, Omaha; Jack Roberts, Lincoln; and Carl Matschullat of Page.

Freshmen Debaters Judge. The judges selected from varsity debaters of past years were Joseph Ginsberg, local attorney; Ewart M. Hunt, local business man; and C. K. Morse, secretary-treasurer of the Nebraska high school Debate League.

The question used in the discussion was resolved: That the government should adopt a policy of price-fixing. The work of the debaters on the proposition was entirely individual and the judging was made on that basis.

Smith had two years debate experience on the varsity team of Lincoln high school. Kaplan was a two year man in debate at Omaha (Continued on Page 3.)

Some of Representative Students on Campus Express Opinions Concerning Council's Varsity Party Proposition

With heated debate concerning the varsity party proposal being waged in the Student Council session Wednesday afternoon, and the meeting finally being adjourned with the plan tabled until January, a wealth of student opinion, both favorable and opposed to the plan has been aroused.

According to indications of arguments and declarations in the student council meeting, the opponents of the plan are for the most part in the Barb group, and the proponents of it are the Greeks. However, if various statements of representative students on the campus mean anything, the Greeks do not favor it as a group. The Barbs, however, according to individual statements made, and group opinions such as those of the Barb and Interclub councils, are solidly against the proposal, which would mean the divesting of the Barb council of its control of the All University parties.

Students Give Opinions. A number of representative students on the campus made statements concerning the question Thursday afternoon. Bernard Jennings, business manager of the Daily Nebraskan, and an affiliated student, says, "I do not believe that the parties as they are now being conducted could be improved upon by vesting the control in a committee, half Barb and half Greek, as the student council proposes to do. The crowds which are now attending the All University parties represent a cross-section of the student body, the price is low, the orchestras are good, and all students are welcome to attend. With the affairs being conducted satisfactorily as they are at present, there is no necessity for change."

Norris Favors Plan. Willa Norris, president of Mortar Board, and affiliated, favored the plan as set forth by the campus governing body. In her statement Thursday she declared, "I believe that the proposed system of conducting Varsity parties would be very desirable and effective. There is a need of actual all-student dances on this campus, and a committee made up of an equal number of Barbs and Greeks would be well qualified to develop the parties to that ideal level.

Burton Marvin, president of the Barb council, stated, "I am opposed to the proposed plan of conducting Varsity parties. At present the functions are being conducted (Continued on Page 3.)
