HUSKERS PLAY TIGERS

Missouri Expected to Give Kansas Stiff Battle for Loop Title.

While the Huskers are playing host to the Kansas university basketball quintet Tuesday night at 8 o'clock in the Coliseum, other Big Six schools are also engaging in tilts or preparing for later contests.

Coach Edwards' Missouri Tigers, who stand high in their chances of capturing the Big Six conference title according to estimates of sports writers in the Valley, experienced little if any trouble against Kansas State the other night in spite of the fact that Coach Frank Root had Ralph Graham in the lineup for the first time this season.

In the scrap the Bengals came out on top, taking away a 32 to 20 victory. The Tigers pulled away in the last period when Johnny Cooper began to find his basket eye.

Later in the week the Iowa State Cyclones are scheduled to meet the Kansas Aggies at Manhattan. The game is due to be played Friday. The following day, Saturday, the Husker basketball team will engage in another difficult fray when they play the Missouri Bengals in the Brownemen's third Big Six contest.

Wegner Leads Scoring. Wegner, Iowa State's giant center, leads the scoring at the end of the first week of conference basketball. Bud Parsons and Kenneth Lunney, Nebraska, and Jorgensen, Missouri, are next in line, the trio being tied with ten points each to their credit.

FAVORITES WIN CLASS B CAGE TILTS MONDAY

Close Contests Mark Third Round of League Play In Hoop Race.

Favorites enjoyed a big night at the expense of the underdogs in Class B intramural basketball Monday evening. In every league the favorite teams won deciding conflicts, and league leadership is settled for the present.

In League I Alpha Gamma Rho and Delta Sigma Phi remain undefeated leaders, the former with two victories and the latter with three. Both won by forfeits from Delta Sigma Lambda and Sigma Phi Epsilon, respectively. The two teams meet Wednesday in the deciding game of the league.

Games Hard Fought. Phi Kappa Psi and Pi Kappa Alpha fought hard for their wins and undefeated records in League II. The Phi Psi won from Chi Phi 13 to 6, while the Pi Kappa Alphas edged Farm House in the closest game of the evening, 15 to 14.

In the other League II game Phi Delta Theta forfeited to Sigma Alpha Epsilon. By an oddity Phi Kappa Psi and Pi Kappa Alpha do not meet until the final game of the league schedule.

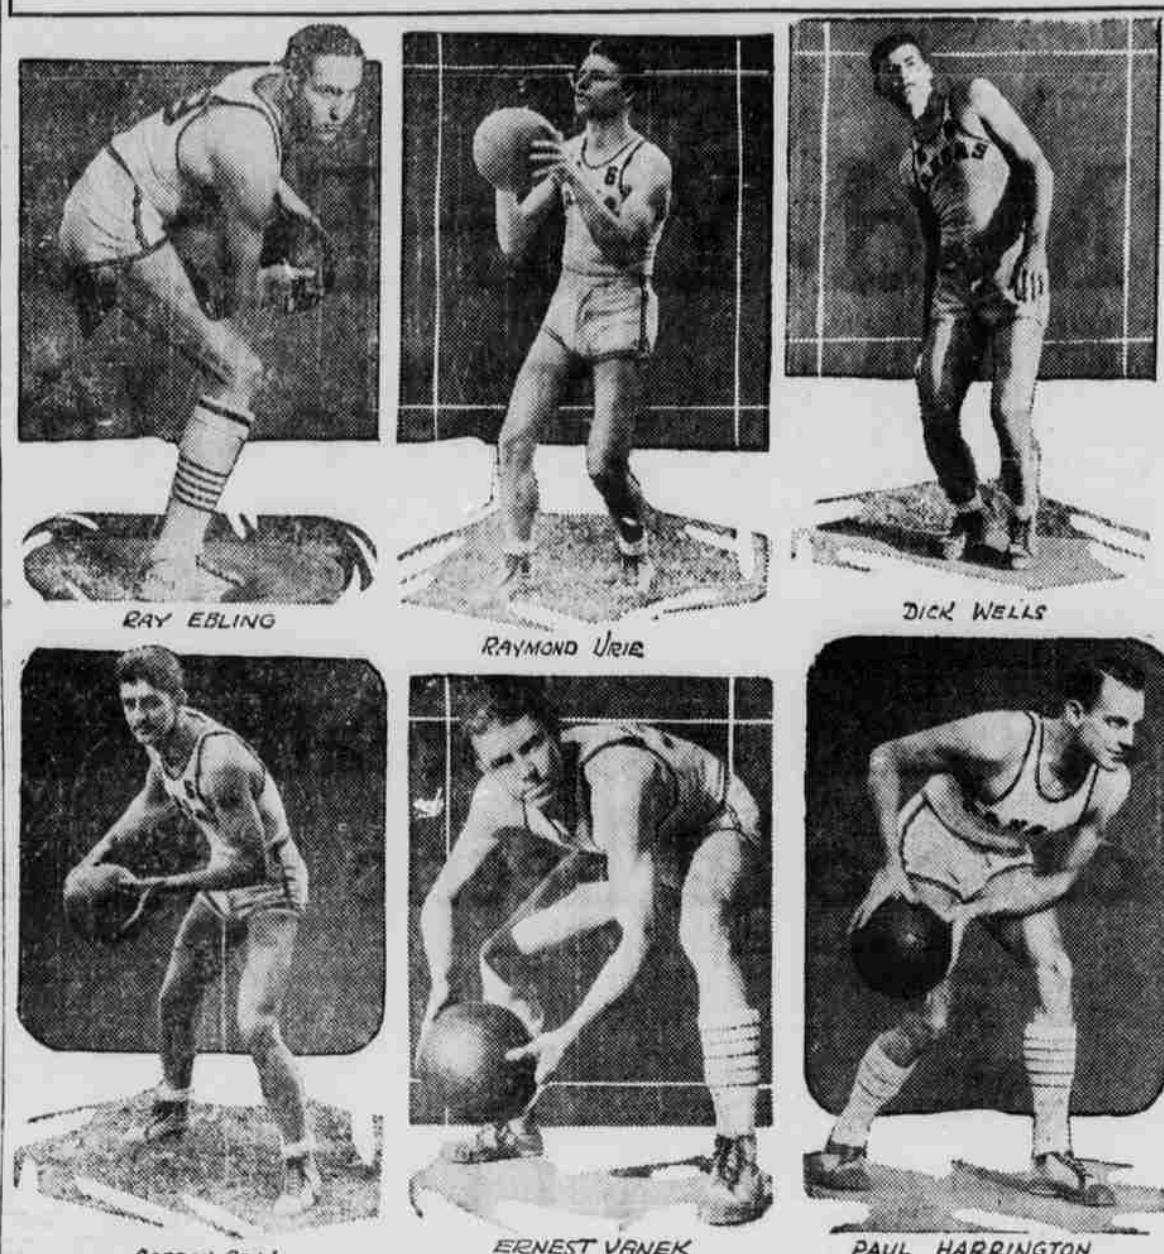

In League III competition Delta Tau Delta and Phi Sigma Kappa retained their undefeated laurels, the former by trimming Delta Upsilon 17 to 9, and the latter by a forfeit. These two leaders also do not meet in competition until the last game of the schedule.

Sigma Nu entrenched itself firmly in first place of League IV by noting out their closest rivals, Beta Sigma Psi, 15 to 12. Sigma Nu needs but two more victories to assure itself of the league title. In the other games Acacia won from Alpha Tau Omega by a forfeit, and Tau Kappa Epsilon and Beta Theta Pi failed to show up for their game.

An unusual number of games were forfeited during the evening. Five games were decided by this means, and considering that many of them were important games, the number is indeed surprising.

Independent league basketball will not begin until the start of the second semester, the first games being scheduled for Jan. 2. This late start is due to the fact that the athletic office does not wish in any way to interfere with final examinations, and instead of playing games during examination week, all activities will cease. Class A games postponed because of the Mortar Board party Dec. 15, will be played next Thursday, Jan. 11. These games will

These Six Men Are Jayhawk Threats

Here are some of the players from Coach "Phog" Allen's team who will meet the Huskers in tonight's battle for the Jayhawkers' inaugural tilt in the Big Six conference race. Incidentally it is the Husker's second Big Six game and their first home game of the season.

The men are: Paul Harrington, the only senior on the outfit and a two year letterman on the team. Playing his third year he is extremely dangerous in the pinches and is a clever floor man. He is stationed at the guard post.

Raymond Ebling is the most outstanding player on the team from all reports. So far this year he has scored thirty points. Having played only four games and not all the time in these, this is quite an achievement. Ebling plays at the forward post.

Occupying the other forward position is Raymond Urie, letterman from Ellis, who is such an excellent basket shot that he caused Coach Allen to move Harrington back to guard so he could take over the forward post.

Richard Wells, also a letterman, has been transferred from the forward position to the center post. Wells is six feet and two inches high and weighs 201 pounds. Gordon Gray, still another letterman, is outstanding in both dribbling and passing and is quick to analyze the attacks of the enemy according to reports. He occupies the other guard post with Harrington.

Vanek is the sixth man who is also a veteran back from last year's squad. Vanek is fast and aggressive and was considered one of the outstanding guards of the team last season.

Nebraska's All America Fullback Lauds Players on East-West Teams; Commends Action of Gail O'Brien

Nebraska's All-American fullback, George Henry Sauer and Gail O'Brien weren't trying to "put one over" on their friends Sunday morning, but there were some disappointed people at the Burlington station to meet the 8:59 train from Kansas City. The two Huskers came in at 7 o'clock instead. Their train was routed through Nebraska City which brought them here two hours ahead of time.

New Year's day game in which he carried the West team to victory, Sauer declared, "It takes eleven men to make a football team" and that "the players on both sides were as fine a bunch of fellows as I've ever met."

Lauds O'Brien. George had nothing but praise for his pal's actions in the mix. "I thought he was as good a tackle as definitely settle the question of league championships. Final games will be played Monday and Tuesday of next week, according to tentative arrangements. Wednesday will see no action whatever, and this inactivity will continue until Feb. 2.

Nebraska, in opening its home schedule against such a powerful basketball quintet as Kansas promises to be this year, will not only be required to overcome physical handicaps such as the superior height the Allenmen possess but also mental handicaps. Heretofore rated as the underdog and spoken of rather cynically as to their ability the Husker public has a serious inferiority complex to overcome.

I speak of the public in the second instance because it is the support the student body lends to the team which either makes or breaks it. In past years the students have not designed to attend basketball games in spite of the fact that a great many of them possess athletic tickets which admit them to the games without any additional charge.

Kansas, for example, points for their basketball season every year and eagerly anticipate the actual games. Coming closer home take an example from Nebraska. Interested extremely in the gridiron picture, the Nebraska fans as a result attend the opening games with intense interest. This interest leads to the development of that particular sport and athletes point for a position on the squad.

In basketball, however, an entirely different attitude is present. Fans feel the squad has no chance and do not attend. As a result not as many people go and the players themselves lose interest. If basketball fans want the games to be played up more, they themselves should attend with conscientious regularity. It could easily be built up on a par with Kansas.

This year the Tassels are putting on skits between halves which should interest some students at least. Also during many of the games Mr. E. C. Quigley will refer to this should be an additional inducement to attend. A ball game is seldom dull, even for the ladies, with Mr. Quigley officiating.

IT SEEMS TO ME by RYAN IRWIN Nebraska, in opening its home schedule against such a powerful basketball quintet as Kansas promises to be this year, will not only be required to overcome physical handicaps such as the superior height the Allenmen possess but also mental handicaps. Heretofore rated as the underdog and spoken of rather cynically as to their ability the Husker public has a serious inferiority complex to overcome.

HUSKER MATMEN MAY CONTEST YM GRAPPLERS SOON

Frosh-Varsity Meet Also Possibility According to Coach Adams.

Coach Jerry Adams, wrestling mentor, announced possibilities of a match between the Y grapplers and the Cornhusker musclemen in the near future. Coach Adams declared it would be the first real test in competition and would be a measuring stick by which to forecast the results of the coming collegiate meets.

With a large capable squad, Nebraska grapplers plan to invade the mat camps of Kansas, Kansas State, and Iowa. Other bouts are being negotiated with the only definite collegiate meeting taking place in the Iowa gym, Feb. 15. The Cornhuskers will send four or five representatives to the National A. A. U. meet to be held at Ames, and will send the entire squad to represent the Scarlet and Cream at the Big Six conference bouts to be held at Missouri March 2 and 3.

"A freshman-varsity meet which is being contemplated for the near future will offer a colorful mat spectacle and qualify the boys for teams to represent the school," said Jerry Adams. This match will possibly follow the "Y" matches.

exceptionally sharp basket eye, is a clever dribbler and an accurate passer. Ebling is 6 feet, 2 inches and weighs 174. However, even with this height, he has not qualified for the center post.

The pivot position goes to Richard Wells, who also stands 6 foot 2 inches in the air. Fast and yet weighing 201 pounds, Wells is an excellent man on defense. Last year Wells played at the forward post but was transferred to the pivot post with the loss of William Johnson, all Big Six conference center, who graduated last June.

Raymond Urie, a letterman from Ellis, is the other Jayhawk star forward. An excellent basket shot and showing rare deceptive dribbling ability, he is a hard man to guard. Equally good on the defense his 6 foot and 175 pounds handicap him in no noticeable manner. Having scored a mere 22 points in the four games to date, it is believed by Dr. Allen that he will find his basket eye soon.

The other man on the Kansas squad needing mention is Gordon Gray, a letterman starting his second year as a regular guard on the Jayhawk team. He is outstanding for dribbling and passing, and is quick to analyze the offensive charge of the opponent. Weighing 176 pounds he is the third member of the team who stands 6 feet 2 inches above the maples.

With such a formidable array of talent representing K. U., the Brownemen are expected to have more than a tough time holding them in leash.
