MUSIC IN RURAL AMERICA NOW ON UPTURN—NORTON

That music culture in rural America and small communities is on the upturn, was the opinion expressed yesterday by Mr. William W. Norton, nationally prominent educator in music, who is in charge of the orchestral work of the all state high school music course now in session at the university school of music.

"Music as an integral part of community and public school life is becoming more and more pronounced," declared Mr. Norton who is supervisor of music of public schools at Flint, Mich. "During the depression many schools kept music in their curriculums at the expense of other departments."

Mr. Norton attributed this tendency to the fact that communities are beginning to see in public school music and vital factor in determining the course of the next generation which, according to present indication, should find itself occupying more leisure time than has been the case during past generations.

"Limitations in facilities for training in music are very often evident in small communities. With this in mind, then, these special university sessions have been planned to offer boys and girls unlimited opportunities to further their development in music," he stated.

Mr. Norton expressed great satisfaction with the large enrollment for this year's session and felt that "in the future these sessions may be carried on in a much larger scale."

"Contrary to general opinion," Mr. Norton stated, "music in public school systems over the country is coming to be looked upon

5 OHIO MEN HERE FOR POSTPONED CONCLAVE

Military Group Not Sent
Notice of Change
In Date.

All the way from Columbus, Ohio, to Lincoln for exactly nothing. That is the unhappy circumstance which confronted five members of the Ohio State university chapter of Pershing Rifles, honorary military society, who had journeyed here for a convention of that organization.

The conclave, originally scheduled for June, was postponed until the first part of August and through some mixup at the national office, which is located at the university, notification of the change was not sent to the Ohio chapter.

Members of the expedition consoled themselves, however, over their morning cup of coffee and started out Wednesday on a sight seeing tour of Lincoln. Chief interest among the group seemed to lie in the new Nebraska state capitol.

"Realizing the need of a full program of extra-curricular activity, the summer session administration will endeavor to provide a recreational program, which will find favorable response in every student," he stated.

MUSIC COURSE FOR HIGH SCHOOL BOYS, GIRLS ATTRACTS 94

Officials State Enrollment
Is Nearly Double That Of Last Year.

With ninety-four boys and girls, coming from Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, and Nebraska, enrolled in the university's second annual all-state high school and orchestra course, the first week's work of the four week course was nearly completed Thursday.

The enrollment this year, authorities stated yesterday, nearly doubles the figure of last year, and led officials to believe that this year's course would prove most successful.

In general charge of the session are Mr. William W. Norton, nationally prominent orchestral conductor, and Mr. George R. Howerton, well known choral director. They will be assisted by the regular faculty of the School of Music.

Under present arrangements the boys and girls are housed in separate dormitories located at 1433 R street for the boys, and 405 University Terrace for the girls. The boys' dormitory is supervised by Mr. Lowell De Voe, superintendent of schools at Plattsmouth. Miss Frances Stowell, superintendent of music at Canon City, Colo., is in charge of the girls' dormitory.

In addition to regular class sessions held at stated periods during the day, a full program of entertainment and recreation has been planned for the students enrolled for the special session. Included on the program are picnics, parties, and several athletic events including the use of the university swimming pool. Recreation for the session is being supervised by Miss Bonnie Spanggard for the girls, and Bob Raugh for the boys. While details of the program could not be learned yesterday it was made known that a detailed and comprehensive recreation program was in store for the students.

A conference of leaders prepared to suggest the ways and means of helping youth bridge the gap between the school and employment was called on June 1 and 2 by Commissioner George F. Zook, department of the interior, office of education, Washington, D. C., according to an announcement in the University Extension News Notes. Weekly copies of these notes are being published this summer for the first time in several years.

In explaining the need for bridging this gap between school and employment, Mr. Reed, director of the university extension division, pointed out that during the depression many thousands of young people who had been graduating from schools and colleges faced little chance of securing employment. He also mentioned that lack of employment is threatening to break the morale of these mounting millions of young people who rightfully want their chance.

As a result of the conference in Washington some activities were outlined as being put into practice during past months as a means toward the worthy use of the time of unemployed youth. A few of these activities consisted of setting up basement rooms and providing employment for unemployed girls; employment of artists, draftsmen, craft workers and assistants in the preparation of a variety of museum exhibits; operation all theyear around of seasonal camps to supply young people with vocational and avoca
