All State High School Music Course

By Lamoine Bible.

A hearty stamp of approval was placed on the all state high school orchestral and chorus course by a group of students in that course who were interviewed on the campus this week.

In addition to proclaiming that it is great training in music-although rather hard training-they declared enthusiastically that it was a lot of fun.

In a number of cases it was also noted that according to their present plans these students will go on with their music training after they leave high school and the school of their choice was in all cases the University of Nebraska—unless they moved. Roger Answalt, high school sophomore from Aurora, paused long enough on his hurried way to class to declare that the course was a fine thing. "I'm learning a lot about music," he stated. His younger brother Don, eighthgrader, asserted that it was a lot of fun. "We have to work awfully hard, but we also have time for a lot of swimming and tennis."

After being convinced that the reporter wasn't some kind of salesman, Dale Gans, junior from Alvo, and Max Pattison, gradu-ate from Gering, declared themselves heartily in favor of the idea. "It's a good idea," said Gans, while Pattison summed it up with the words, "Great-it couldn't be better." When asked about going on to school Pattison stated that he would probably enter the university.

Jimmy Lawson, senior from David City, although rather reti-cent about breaking into print, asserted that the course was 'good training—not only in music, but along a social line. The friends I have made here are worth a lot." He also hoped to take up music later on as a regular student at the university.

His campus companion, Wayne Krieger, senior from Lincoln, seconded the statement, and also declared that since taking the course he has become more certain as to what he can do in music.

A pair of Lincoln girls, June Schwarz and Frances Platt, senior and junior respectively, characterized the course as "swell" and "great." Then they both added, "but rather hard work." According to present plans they will both continue their training in music at the university-"unless we move," as one of them
