MAYBE YOU'VE HEARD OF WORLD series enthusiasts—we certainly have. Within this past week everywhere one goes the topic of conversation seems to be something about Tigers and Cardinals. On the streets radios blast things about this inning or that—with Dizzy or his little brother, Daffy, pitching or running or something or other. Even in the "Rag" office some ten or twelve people nearly moved in a radio so their work wouldn't detract from their play. Now that it's all over a few wonder what ever made them think Detroit was so good and say (very sadly indeed) that never again will they make up their mind about anything before it happens.

The junior law student officers are: Seymour Sidner, president; Jack Coupland, vice-president; Harry West, treasurer; Walter Nolte, pep-disperser; and Mary Quigley, sergeant-at-arms.

SPORTSING

By LLOYD HENDRICKS The California Daily Bruin, official student paper of the University of California at Los Angeles, carried a football forecast of the Nebraska-Minnesota game last week. Four of the Bruin coaches picked Minnesota to win by anywhere from six to fourteen points, while one placed his hopes on Nebraska to win by six points.

The Oklahoma Sooners held to a scoreless tie until the fourth quarter finally managed to complete a pass to Coker, Oklahoma right end and to clinch the game and win by 7 to 0 over Centenary of Texas.

Centenary had the fumble obstacle to hurdle in the game, the Gentlemen making five bad plays. Oklahoma fumbled only twice during the game.

Oklahoma has a tough game next Saturday when they face the Texas Longhorns. Texas, fresh from a victory over Notre Dame, will be out to break Oklahoma's winning streak. Jack Chevigny, the Longhorn mentor, was a student under the old master, Knute Rockne, at Notre Dame, and should be able to teach his team a lot of the strategy used by the premier Rambler coach.

Nebraska vs. St. Mary's is a pleasant idea and it should make a good game if it could be arranged. "Slip" Madigan, St. Mary's grid mentor, is famed far and wide for his power house teams.

The Gaels have things out on the west coast pretty much their own way until they clash with Southern California or Stanford, and they sometimes pull surprises there too. The line at the St. Mary's school has always been noted for its beef. When they weigh in, the scales fairly groan at the burden.

About half of the Nubbins squad showed up for practice Monday after their game with Wayne. Short description talks of the future Nubbin attack were given by Coaches Hubka and Petz. No workout was on schedule but a few of

The next game Nebraska B will play is at Wesleyan a week from next Saturday. Next Friday night Wesleyan plays Wayne, the same team which beat the Nubbins earlier in the season. The Nubbins are scheduled to meet the varsity freshmen team Friday.

skirmish with Iowa. Corrections aplenty were made, and Iowa plays as they diagnosed themselves in the eye of the camera were gone over and discussed thoroly. Tuesday afternoon was spent in a long defensive workout, and concentrating both on offensive and defensive work, but chiefly on defensive and blocking.

Some two-score selected Princeton students were back in their classrooms today following an excursion last month into Canada aboard the specially constructed Pullman car, Princeton, owned by the University.

Nebraska's running attack had failed to function, a common enough triviality during that game, and Sam went back to punt. The Minnesota safety man had heard things about the kicking ability of his big boy, and drifted back about fifty yards. Surely he couldn't kick farther, against the wind. His first kick was almost pathetic. Rushed by the Minnesota forwards, he dribbled a bounder about fifteen yards down the field, recovered by a Scarlet linesman. The safety man came in about five yards to await Sam's next attempt. The ball was passed, hit left foot swung, and the new pigskin started on its way. Rising, rising, soaring into the upper reaches, the ball went on. It passed the safety man, arms stretched in vain, mouth hanging
