The orchestra engaged for the affair played at the Graystone ballroom in Detroit and Cincinnati, at the Sherman hotel in Chicago, at the Hotel Shreveport in Shreveport, the Eagle ballroom in Milwaukee, and the Club Madrid in Louisville. Contributions in Welfare Campaign Received Thursday

Y. W. Plans Concerted Drive Among Greek Houses on Campus.

First contributions in the relief campaign sponsored by the University Y. W. C. A. in conjunction with the Daily Nebraskan were received Thursday at the Daily Nebraskan office, according to Dick Schmidt, business manager.

The response thus far has been small however, Schmidt said.

A concerted drive among fraternity and sorority houses is planned for next week by the Y. W. C. A. committee. Posters will be prepared at a meeting of the committee this afternoon to place in fraternity and sorority houses, accompanied by typewritten announcements for bulletin boards.

The committee is headed by Kathryn Winkquist.

Students are urged by campaign officials to take all old and discarded clothing to the Y. W. C. A. office in Ellen Smith hall, the Y. W. C. A. office in the Temple building, or the Daily Nebraskan office.

Members of the freshman commission groups of the Y. W. C. A. have been appointed to mend the clothing and make it ready for distribution. Two girls from each group will then obtain names of families in need from the community chest, and with a social worker, will visit the families.

Hearty approval was given to the plan by Miss Amanda Heppner, dean of women, who urged students cooperate in the drive to furnish relief for Lincoln's needy families.

Cooperation of organized houses was also asked by Elaine Fontein, president of the Y. W. C. A.

"Either the head or a member of each fraternity and sorority should take charge of collecting clothes in his house. This would greatly facilitate the drive, which is worthy of the support of every student."

The first honor roll listing names of organized houses which have cooperated in sending clothing to aid in the drive will be published in the Sunday issue of the Nebraskan.

Of the 409 students registered, more than half, or 215, secured teaching positions; 60 found other employment; 54 returned to school; 12 have not reported; and 68 are unemployed.

For the year preceding, 171 of 548 enrolled remained without positions. The figures of employment do not include those securing FERA jobs, R. A. Moritz, director of the bureau, said.

"It is safe to say that the outlook for 1935 is as good or better than it was for 1934 and that the percentage of placement during the coming year will in all probability show an upward trend," Director Moritz predicts.

Only one person in ten who held doctor's degrees and had registered with the bureau are unemployed. Of those holding bachelor's degrees 45 out of 226 are without employment now; while last year 106 out of 291 were in that list. This year 7 of 86 who had not completed work for degrees are not employed, compared to a record of 22 out of 95 a year ago.

Fred Nicklas Receives First Place for Feature in Daily Nebraskan.

Awards for the best news and feature stories appearing in the Daily Nebraskan during the second semester last year were announced Thursday night at the journalism banquet which was held at city Y. M. C. A. This affair is sponsored annually by Theta Sigma Phi, women's professional journalism sorority.

Prof. Gayle C. Walker, director of the school of journalism, announced the awards, presenting the cup for the best news story to Jack Fischer, Valentine, Neb., senior in the school of journalism, and revealing Fred Nicklas, senior in arts and science college as the winner of the best feature story award.

An article entitled "University Makes First Job Grants," written on Feb. 13, took first place among the news stories for Fischer. Second place went to a story written jointly by Bruce Nicoll and Burton Marvin, which reported a speech delivered by Prof. Stoke at the Sigma Delta Chi banquet last year. Third place in the news story division went to Burton Marvin, while honorable mention was awarded to stories by Arnold Levine and Burton Marvin.

A feature story on the fake shooting in the law college written by Nicklas on Feb. 25, received first place among the feature stories. A feature story on Ellen Smith hall by Ruth Matschullat was awarded second place. Third award went to Robert Bulger, with Sarah Louise Meyer, Leila Shockley, Margaret Easterday, Burton Marvin, Virginia Selleck, and Richard Moran receiving honorable mention.

"Prairie Schooner" Theme.

Awards for the best news and feature stories written during the second semester of the preceding year are presented annually at the banquet for journalism students given by Theta Sigma Phi each fall. This year the banquet was built around the theme of the "Prairie Schooner," and program speeches were based on the titles of stories in the Schooner. Each guest was presented with a complimentary copy of the magazine which contained the program of the evening.

Violet Cross, Theta Sigma Phi president, presided at the dinner. The program consisted of short speeches by campus journalists. Alice Beckman, editor of the A. W. S. Opened the program with "A Few Words on Words." "Survival of the Fittest" was the topic upon which Bruce Nicoll, business manager of the A. W. S., spoke. Burton Marvin, editor of the Daily Nebraskan, spoke on "Unpersuaded," and Carlisle Meyers, managing editor of the Cornhusker, on "Night in the Pullmans." Prof. Gayle Walker concluded the program with the topic, "Oxcart," and the presentation of the awards.

General arrangements for the dinner were in charge of Betty Segal. She was assisted by Harriet Rosenfield, who was in charge of the publicity and tickets, and Helen Kropf, who was in charge of the program.

Approximately 65 attended the event.

People Today Want Literature Like A Good Meal—Pleasant, Not Too Heavy, And Easily Digested, Says Prof. Fay

"Today we ask of literature just about what we would of a good meal—that it be pleasant, not too heavy, and that it be digested without too much trouble," declared Bernard Fay, of the college de France, in addressing a capacity crowd at the second all-university convocation Thursday morning in the Temple. Professor Fay, who received his doctor of letters from the University of Paris and is at present professor of American civilization in the college, spoke on "Literature in the Modern World," and briefly outlined the evolution of literature in its verbal form.

According to Professor Fay, literature in the beginning was creative. The Greeks called literary men poets—those who created. In the middle ages those who composed songs of permanent value in European countries were the Troubadours (taken from the

OMAHA SINGERS BRING OPERA HERE SATURDAY

Madame Thea Moeller-Herms Students to Present 'Der Freischuetz.'

PROGRAM OPENS AT 8:15

The German grand opera, "Der Freischuetz," will be offered by a cast of student singers and players of Madame Thea Moeller-Herms of Omaha, Saturday evening, Dec. 8, at 8:15 o'clock in the Temple theater. A brief concert of German songs will precede the opera presentation.

Originally a three act opera by Karl Maria von Weber with the text by Friedrich Kind, it has been condensed for this presentation to two acts, but the story moves along smoothly and nothing essential has been removed.

Translated, the title "Der Freischuetz" means "The Free Marksman." The setting of the story is in Germany in the days when hunting was the chief occupation. Based on an old German folk tale, the opera is typically German. It is wound around Samiel, the wild hunter, who is none other than the evil one himself, and who provides free bullets which never fail. However, the person using them must pay the price, which is his immortal soul.

Significant as the first truly German opera ever produced, "Der Freischuetz" was presented at the Royal Opera house in Berlin in 1821. It was given at the beginning of a new era of romanticism and freed the German musical stage from the Italian tradition. Previously the German stage had been predominated by the Italians, the music, the plays, and the actors coming from Italy.

The Omaha people who will appear in the cast are: Elouise Jenner as Agathe; Therese Peter as Aennchen; Robert Herring as Max, a young hunter, and Joseph Reifert as Samiel, the wild hunter. Bridesmaids are: Marjorie and Gertrude Johnson, Olive Musil, Betty Anderson, Anne Onak, and Louis Tenfel.

In the concert prelude Carl Tenkhoff will sing "Die Uhy" by Lowe, and "Die Beiden Grenadiere" by Robert Schumann. Mignon Althaus will sing "Oxcart."

BIBLE, BROWNE LEAVE FOR BIG SIX SESSION

Seek to Bring Conference Championship Meets Here in Spring.

Coaches Dana X. Bible and Harold Browne and Dean T. J. Thompson left for Kansas City, Missouri, Thursday evening, as Nebraska University's representatives at the annual meeting of athletic directors and faculty representatives of the Big Six conference.

Thru these men, Nebraska will extend invitations for the Big Six outdoor track and field championships, which have always but once been held in Memorial Stadium at Lincoln, and also for the annual indoor championships in basketball, golf, swimming, and tennis meets.

The assigning of football officials for the coming year and arrangement of winter and spring schedules will occupy the athletic directors. Coach Browne will attend the basketball rules meeting conducted by Dr. Forrest Allen of Kansas University.

"I also expect to make a fight for four football officials," the Husker mentor declared. "The trend of the game is such, and I refer to the lateral pass, that three men cannot possibly see all that is required of them by the football code."

SCHOONER POSTS CASH AWARD FOR SLOGAN CONTEST

Best Epigram Will Be Used In Advertising Campaign To Popularize Book.

LIMIT MOTTO 6 WORDS

'Literary' Must Not Appear In Entries; Editor Wants Plenty of Punch.

$7.50 is the prize money offered by the Prairie Schooner for the best advertising slogan submitted to its Christmas budget epigram contest, which is being held for the purpose of obtaining a motto to be used in the campaign to popularize the magazine, according to Prof. L. C. Wimberly, editor of the publication. The competition is open to anyone and no restriction is placed on the number of contributions per person. The only rules of the contest are that the slogans shall not exceed six words nor contain the word literary. Entries may be brought or mailed to the Schooner office in Room 121, Andrews hall.

Prof. Wimberly explained that the word literary is being banned because it connotes an over-sophisticated or high-brow meaning which he feels has lessened the magazine's popularity in the past. He said, "Because the Schooner is a quality fiction magazine and has often been called an outlet for the finest writing of the prairie country, does not mean that it contains only professional dissertations. On the contrary it is noted for its highly readable, humorous interest stories as evinced by the many reprints from its pages in leading newspapers and anthologies."

He further explained that both the magazine's readers and contributors are of a decidedly cosmopolitan character. Wishing to get slogans dealing with every possible angle of the Prairie Schooner's merits, Prof. Wimberly refused to be more definite as to the desired content of the slogan.

The winning epigram, which is to be selected by members of Sigma Upsilon, national honorary literary fraternity, is to be used solely for advertising purposes. At the close of the contest on Dec. 17 the slogan that is chosen will be introduced on the campus on a facsimile of the new Schooner cover bearing the name of the winning contributor. This slogan will also be employed on the publication's letter heads and for other advertising purposes.

H. P. Behlen, Schooner business manager, stated that this contest is a part of the intensive advertising campaign which is being carried out to push the circulation to a new high for the winter issue. This drive which has been in full swing for some time includes radio advertising, circular letters, and a personal contact sales campaign by Gamma Alpha Chi, women's advertising sorority, as well as by two agents in New York City, Behlen explained.

Behlen further stated that to date this effort to put the publication across to the public has been highly successful. The subscriptions alone have boosted the circulation 15 per cent and 5 per cent more copies of the current issue were printed to meet news stand demands, making the total number of copies of this issue 20 per cent greater than that of any previous issue. As a result of this boom in circulation the Schooner has been able to return to the superior square back binding which was abandoned during the depression.

"What we want is a peppy slogan with plenty of punch," he said. "We want to keep the Prairie Schooner rolling towards its rightful place in the ranks of first class fiction magazines."

Always a highlight on the campus social calendar, the ball, with its colorful grand march and presentation of the new Honorary Colonel, has been eagerly awaited by the student body.

Louis Panico and his famous broadcasting artists have been secured to play for the ball, and military department officials declare that Panico, who is considered perhaps the outstanding trumpet player in this country, will bring one of the best bands here ever to appear on the campus.

Plans for presentation of the Honorary Colonel and also for the grand march call for the most impressive ceremonies ever witnessed here. C. unit in the nation, will, together with their dates, participate in the grand march which promises to be a glittering parade of formal fashions and military review at the same time. They will pass in review before Col. Charles Galloway, his staff, and the Honorary Colonel, immediately following the latter's presentation.

Colonel Identity Secret.

Method of presentation of the honorary colonel has been kept a secret along with her identity, but she will be one of three girls, Marjorie Smith, Roma DeBrown, or Violet Cross.

Lending further color to the occasion will be the presence at the ball of celebrities representing the state, the city, and the university. Heading the list of patrons for the event are Governor and Mrs. Charles W. Bryan, Chancellor and Mrs. E. A. Burnett, Chancellor Emeritus and Mrs. Samuel Avery, Mayor and Mrs. Fenton B. Fleming, Dean and Mrs. T. J. Thompson, Dean Amanda Heppner, and members of the board of regents and their wives.

Novel decorations, appropriate favors, newly designed programs, and innovations in lighting effects will further add to the gala atmosphere of the event.

Permission has been granted to extend the closing hour of the ball to 12 o'clock. Radio stations KFOR, KFAB, and KOIL will carry a 45 minute broadcast describing the grand march and presentation of the honorary colonel.

Tickets have been priced at $2.00 for those dancing in formal attire, $1.25 for those in military uniform.
