

LYMAN RETURNS TO NEBRASKA AS GRID LINE COACH

Former Husker Tackle Will Help Schulte Produce Forward Wall.

GREATEST PRO PLAYER

'Link' Takes Place on Staff As Addition to Husker Instructors.

Roy Lyman, considered the greatest tackle in pro football today and one of the greatest linemen ever to don the Scarlet and Cream mofeskins, will return to the site of his college triumphs on the gridiron as a coach next fall.

Lyman, known to the sporting world as "Link," will take his place on the Husker coaching staff as assistant line instructor next spring for the yearly spring session. Rumors of the possibility of his signing a contract with the Huskers have been thickly propounded in sporting circles, but nothing definite was known until Saturday when word of his actual acceptance of a Cornhusker coaching contract was received.

Just turning his thirty-sixth milestone in year, Lyman, during the 1934 season played professional football with the Chicago Bears, and was selected on the All America pro team as the outstanding lineman of the year, a distinctive honor he has enjoyed for the last three seasons.

His professional career has been a long one, starting in 1922 after his graduation from Nebraska. The first eleven to gain his services was the Detroit Bulldogs. After two years with them he graduated to the Cleveland team from which, in 1926 he was taken by the Chicago Bears, since to become the most valued cog in the forward wall of that mighty team.

He signified during the season that this was to be his last in professional circles and made known that he was willing to sign a coaching contract with Nebraska during the forthcoming. In addition, he was considered for the head coaching job at Missouri and for several important assistant posts in the east.

Coming to Nebraska with no high school experience, Lyman showed his adaptability as a lineman during his freshman year, and as a sophomore started every game for the Scarlet. He played tackle on the 1918, 1919 and 1921 Husker eleven, and was chosen on many of the college All Americans selected during that period. As a Scarlet performer, he is one of the outstanding examples of great tackles for which Nebraska has been noted in the past, and is mentioned as the greatest by many Nebraska followers and critics.

Lyman is not to supplant anyone on the Husker coaching staff. Athletic Director Bible pointed out, but will be an addition to the present group. He will confine most of his activities to dealing with linemen, assisting Coach Schulte in this respect.

As a football player, Lyman has participated in 280 games all told, including college and professional competition, considered a world record for an individual athlete.

F. L. Roth Rivals Wonder Man in Physics Lecture

Rivalling an imaginary wonder man, or the phenomena-producers of the "Strange as it Seems" feature, in his demonstration of Lissajous' figures, F. L. Roth, instructor in the physics department, entertained and enlightened members of the Physics club Friday evening in the lecture room of Brace Laboratory. By means of a set of lenses, reflectors, mirrors mounted on tuning works, and electrical apparatus Mr. Roth projected a great variety of symmetric shapes of light on a large screen. This exposition was carried on in accompaniment to his explanation of simple harmonic motion by reference to the forms that were first worked out by the French physicist Lissajous.

Mr. Roth first showed that these figures could be produced by the rotation of two pointers and an ingenious process of graphing. As he drew the circles, ellipses, figure eights, cycloids, etc. in various directions.

Husker Homecoming Balloon Discovered in Remer, Minnesota

Of the thousands of red and white balloons that ascended into the air when Nebraska made its first touchdown against the Bengals at the Homecoming tilt in Memorial stadium this year, only one was fated to return to the hands of its possessor.

One white balloon traveled about five hundred miles before it sank to earth, where it was found on Thanksgiving day by Thomas Hicks, a resident of Remer, Minn., who discovered it about two miles north of his home in a cedar grove. This emblem of Nebraska's victory, battered but unbroken, carried on its dusty white surface the name and address of Marjorie Smith, senior in the college of Arts and Sciences. Saturday Miss Smith received a letter from Hicks containing the balloon and asking when the balloon was sent and from where.

"I couldn't imagine who the letter was from," Miss Smith said, "and I never dreamed that the balloon would ever be returned. I'm going to send Mr. Hicks the account of how it happened."

A bill making it compulsory for the university to receive competitive bids and accept the highest for broadcasting football games next fall will be introduced at the forthcoming legislative session by State Senator W. C. Bullard according to word received from McCook, the senator's home.

Bullard declared that during the past two seasons when broadcasts of play by play reports of games have been prohibited, there has been considerable resentment in that section of the state. "The citizens of the state who support the university with taxes are entitled to the broadcasts, while the athletic department is entitled to every cent it can get out of broadcasts which generally advertise some private firm," the senator declared.

A passive attitude is to be maintained by the university athletic department in face of the impending legislation, it was stated by John K. Selleck, business manager of student activities and athletics. Selleck explained that during the three years which Nebraska has had a ban on broadcasts of games the attendance has convinced athletic heads that the move was strategically sound.

"Athletics at Nebraska receive not one cent of tax revenue," Selleck declared. "Revenue from football is the chief source of funds from which all sports of the school are supported."

It was further stated by Selleck that in addition to the monetary considerations Nebraska has frowned on broadcasts because of the belief that such broadcasts are undesirable. "We have found that play by play broadcasts do not give a true picture of what is going on in football games," he said.

MONDAY NAMED AS SCHOONER SLOGAN CONTEST DEADLINE

Cash Prize Will Be Awarded Person Submitting Best Epigram.

Prairie Schooner Christmas-budget epigram contest will close on schedule, at 1 o'clock Monday, Dec. 17, according to Prof. L. C. Wimberly, Schooner editor. Prof. Wimberly declared that although a great many slogan writers have submitted their ideas in the hope of $7.50 in dividends, he still expects a great many more mottoes to reach the office before the deadline of the contest.

The rules under which the competition is being conducted are that the slogans contain not more than six words nor the word "illegary." No limitation is placed on the number of slogans that each person may submit and the slogans may be mailed to the magazine's office in Andrews hall or presented there in person.

No statement as to the desired content of the slogan has been made throughout the contest, because the staff is in the hopes of getting an epigram dealing with some fresh angle of the Schooner's merits, the editor stated. He said, however, that the Schooner is a first class fiction publication, whose readers and contributors are from all classes and locations. The word literary has been banned because it signifies a too-sophisticated subject matter to many readers, he explained.

According to H. P. Behlen, business manager, the winning slogan will be used strictly for advertising purposes in the campaign that is being carried on to popularize the magazine. The slogan, which will be chosen by members of Sigma Upsilon, national literary fraternity, is to be introduced on the campus on a facsimile of the Schooner cover bearing the motto and the name of the author. It will also be used on posters, letterheads, and for other publicity purposes, he stated.

'Never Take a Job, But Create One' Is Earnest Advice of Dorothy Thompson Lewis, Town Hall Lecturer Last Week

"Never take a job, but create one" is the earnest advice given by Dorothy Thompson Lewis, prominent journalist and lecturer at the Town Hall series in Lincoln last week. "If there is one motto I want to give my son, it is that. We Americans have the wrong conception of work. It is merely a consideration of eight hours a day and so much a month. Work should be something that you want to do more than anything in the world. If you find something and do it, you can find someone to pay you for it."

And that is exactly what Mrs. Lewis did. When she left college, her first efforts to find a niche in journalism led her away from the type of writing in which she was interested. As she put it, she didn't want "to report fires," and so the first four years out of Syracuse university were spent in the capacities of publicity director
