

NORTH DAKOTA TEAM FIRST HOLIDAY FOES FOR HUSKER QUINTET

Visitors Bring Strong Squad For Basketball Clash Saturday Evening.

Nebraska's holiday basket season opens Saturday night with North Dakota university coming south for a tussle with Coach Browne's lads in the coliseum. The Nodaks will arrive in Lincoln on the lead end of a successful winning streak which has earned them victories over the three opponents they have met on the maples to date. Defending champs of the North Central conference, they are given the edge over the Huskers.

Their invasion, however, will be the signal for a concentrated up-rising of all Husker forces, for last year they subjected Nebraska to its most ignominious defeat of the season—50 to 22 on the northern maples. The Nodak team is almost intact from last year's championship quint, although two most important cogs of their machine are missing.

Nebraska's mix with North Dakota will be the second home appearance for Coach Browne's well-meaning youths. It is the opinion of the experts that it will be a tough evening for Husker basketballdom and for enthusiasts who bet their wad on the home boys. Not only is their team a combination of veterans, but the new stars which have appeared on the Dakota horizon are all too promising, as far as opponents are concerned. The Nodak team has always been known as one of might and power, even when graduation hits them hard.

Nebraska will undoubtedly resort to the teams which have played in the two previous games, namely Harry Sorenson at center; Bud Parsons and Harvey Widman at guards; Henry Whitaker, and Lester McDonald, Leland Hale, or Howard Baker, at forwards. Revenge will be the Husker's byword, revenge for last year's humiliation.

The Husker hoop aces will have their only chance at Yuletide pleasures from Dec. 22 to the 28, for after the latter date they must take to the maples again in preparation for their game with Minnesota here the 29th. Two years ago when the Brownemen met the Gopher quintet they were soundly trounced and again last year the Minnesota squad doubled the score on the hapless scarlet quintet when the two teams met on the Minneapolis floor.

Almost immediately following the Gopher encounter the home team will start the New Year by clashing with the Stanford Indians here on the coliseum court. The Indians will be making their biennial tour of the eastern basketball courts at this time.

After the Sanford tilt the Brownemen will journey to Decatur, Ill., and meet Milliken university, a newcomer on the Husker's schedule. Then south to St. Louis where they will engage St. Louis U., whom they beat last year 29 to 25 here. After that the Huskers will settle down to the main business at hand, stepping out in Big Six conference frays. The one exception will be the game with Denver university here Jan. 26. The conference season will open with Nebraska playing host to the Iowa State cagers Jan. 12.

HAWKEYES WIN IN EXTRA SESSION GO

gether, Barko and Rosenthal accounted for better than half of their team's points, the former gathering eight and the latter eleven. Blackmer came thru with seven tallies.

Both teams started slowly, Nebraska holding the first half lead till late in the period, when a concerted drive, led by Barko and Rosenthal, put the Hawks ahead with a 5 point halftime margin, 14 to 9. The second half was put to good use by the Huskers, who crept up on their foes steadily, finally tying up the contest 14 to 14. This was the signal for Iowa to turn on the heat, and they poured it on, holding a 24 to 18 lead with less than five minutes to go. In those five minutes, however, Parsons hit on a long one, and Baker dropped a freak shot thru the hoop from under the basket. Widman then shot and missed a chance at tying the score when the ball rimmed the basket. A few seconds later, however, Widman took a pass, shot, and the ball landed squarely in the net, making the count 24 to 24.

In the extra period, Blackmer scored after two minutes of play, and Rosenthal dribbled thru two Brownemen for an underhand pot shot that cinched the game. Blackmer followed with a tip-in that added to the margin, and Grim sealed things up with a free throw. Whitaker scintillated for the Huskers on his floor work, and was high point man on Browne's quint with 7. Parsons, guarding ace of the fray, was second high with six. McDonald accounted for 4, and Sorenson, Baker, and Widman 2 each. Hale contributed a free throw to the Husker cause.
