Reporter Laments Fact That Beauty, Glamor, and Interest in Valentine's Day Nearly Given Way to Cynicism

By DAMON SANDEN.

Cupid's, lace, bows and arrows, romance, spring, perfume in the air, glamour, beauty, love in bloom. The occasion? Valentine's day. This term has a wide variety of meanings. It should mean, at least, it was intended to mean, all of the above, glorious days, dreamy nights, spring, romance and beauty. It was somewhat sacred and haloed. Times, however, have changed.

To the children, it means one of the highlights of the year, at which time every youngster tenderly carries a valentine to school, deposits it in an immense box, placed somewhere in the room for that purpose, and eagerly, expectantly, and anxiously awaits the end of the day, when said box will be opened and the valentines distributed—and woe unto him who is unfortunate enough to be left entirely out of the gaiety. It means joy, rejoicing, and many after school fights, to see who has the

Student Law-Breakers Not Unknown To Campus Cop, But Offenses Center Around Harmless Parking Troubles

Spring crime situation on the campus centers on parking offenses! Officer Reglar, campus cop, says that crime activities around the campus were very quiet except for the student parking difficulties. "Maybe more people are taking their cars out of storage. Maybe more students are getting cars—or maybe it's just spring," smiled the campus policeman.

His chief problem is that of student parking in faculty row. The campus guardian of peace and order explained that this probably happened, not thru a premeditated criminal intent, but as one last gallant effort to reach an eight o'clock class on time.

The student is warned on the first offense, but is given a tag and told to appear at the police station when he is caught again. On his first appearance at the station, the offender is merely "registered" and warned, but if he finds himself there again, it costs him exactly $5.70. It is needless to say that few offenders appear the second time, according to Officer Reglar.

When asked about any recent crime activities on the campus, Officer Reglar tilted back in his chair and grinned amiably. "Sure somebody broke into the Daily Nebraskan office last Saturday night." Investigation proved that nothing was disturbed and that he was not alarmed over the occurrence.

In his small office in Social Science annex Officer Reglar has kept

COMMENTATORS TO REVIEW FIRST TWO YEARS OF NEW DEAL

Actors Dramatize Events in Governmental Policies Since March, '33.

Four news commentators will play prominent parts in the two-hour program, "Of the People, By the People, For the People," to be broadcast over the WABC-CBS nationwide hookup Monday, March 4, starting at 1:30 p. m. E. S. T. Boake Carter, H. V. Kaltenborn, Edwin C. Hill and Frederic William Wile, all of whom manned microphones at President Roosevelt's inaugural, will weave the elaborate radio review of the New Deal's first two years into a unified whole with running stories of the outstanding events since March 4, 1933.

The remarks of the commentators will be interspersed between direct reports by members of President Roosevelt's cabinet and other government officials on the problems they have faced since assuming office. All the talks will be welded by use of a unique production technique calling for brief dramatizations of the past two years' important events in each governmental division. A large cast of actors will present these dramatizations in the New York studios of CBS. Musical interludes will be supplied by the service bands.

In addition to pick-ups from the offices of cabinet members, Columbia plans to make other pick-ups from a senate committee room, the house of representatives in session, the supreme court, a battle-ship, the working quarters of one of the government's alphabetical units, and the white house.

Vice President Garner and Speaker Byrns have already accepted invitations to speak during the program. The approval of Dr. John W. Studebaker, head of the United States department of education, has been given the program, and school superintendents throughout the country are being urged to declare busy-holidays so that pupils may gather in assembly halls to hear the broadcast.

TWO PLANS NOW ENTERED IN PRIZE AWARD CONTEST

Committee Receives Ideas for Prom Girl Presentation Until Feb. 25.

Two plans for the presentation of the Prom girl have already been entered in the $10 prize award contest sponsored by the junior-senior prom committee, according to Clayton Schwenk, member of the presentation sub-committee. Ideas will be received by the committee until Feb. 25, when selection of entries will be made for the prize.

Suggestions for students with entries were offered by Schwenk, who urged that ideas be submitted as soon as possible, so that entrants may discuss their plan with the committee in order that possible changes might be made before the closing date of the contest. Simplicity should be the feature of every plan, he stated, and those involving the least expense will receive greatest consideration.

Expenses Under $35.

Provision should be made in the presentation scheme for the junior and senior class presidents to participate in the ceremony. Expense should be kept under $35, including all material and construction costs. All plans should list the materials needed, and the author of the winning plan will have the privilege of directing the construction of any sets or properties according to his own ideas.

Any students or persons not in the university are eligible to enter ideas in the contest, it was pointed out. Plans may be submitted to Schwenk at the Kosmet Klub offices in University hall any afternoon up to the date of the deadline except Thursdays.

Two Bands Considered.

Two nationally known dance bands are already being considered by the orchestra committee, according to committee member Don Shurtleff. Selection of the band, which is being made thru a national booking agency, will probably be announced in the next two weeks, he stated.

DR. KURZ APPROVES SCHOLARSHIPS FOR FRENCH STUDENTS

University Has Not Accepted Scholars From France Previously.

Offering a Nebraska fellowship in France would assure some university graduate of a Franco-American scholarship next year, states Dr. Harry Kurz, professor of romance languages. It is not now the custom of this university to receive French students, either on fellowships or part-time assistantships. Since prior consideration is given applicants representing institutions which offer fellowships few Nebraska students are favored.

Offered Each Year.

A number of fellowships are offered each year by the Ministry of National Education and the Universities of France to American college and university graduates who wish to study in the institutions of higher education in France. They were established in appreciation of those offered by American colleges and universities to French students. Franco-American Fellows are required to attend the universities to which they are assigned during the entire academic year, from the first of November to the middle of July.

The French Ministry of National Education in co-operation with the Office National des Universites et Ecoles Francaises offers through the Institute of International Education each year a limited number of teaching assistantships in the French lycées and écoles normales. The function of an assistant is to give lessons in conversational English to the French pupils not in excess of ten hours a week. The assistant occupies an academic position which is just below that of the professor's salary connected with these positions, but the assistant receives room, board, light and heat from the school.
