Kansas State seems to have taken a distinct aversion to Ne braska athletics, athletes, and everything about the Husker school that smacks of physical prowess. The Wildcats were not only content to cop the Big Six football crown from Huskerland,

but now they've gone and done it in track, too. Of course, Coach Henry F Schulte and his Red jerseyed scantyclads are not ready to give up the Big Six track title yet. Kansas State won an indoor dual, of conference and many more triangular and dual affairs left on the Husker schedule? Not much, says the Indian from his raised tepee in the stadium, not much. And you can take his word for

The invading Wildcats did take some of the wind out of the Nebraska high flying track kite, but was only the relay event that finally placed the score on the victor's side of the fence. And Coach Schulte is now pointing for the next meeting of the two schools, the indoor conference. There's still lots of hope, prowess, and whatnot left in the sunken camp of Husker trackland. That Kansas but that doesn't mean that Ne-braska's going to go down for Ward Haylett presented a wellrounded-out, strong track team last Saturday in the stadium. He had a couple of stars on that team to bring their record to the 7-point who look good enough for plenty level. With a half minute left to of points in the conference co. Whitaker by these two men, Kansas State seems right now to be the team to beat for the conference title.

But "Pa" Schulte's not afraid When the conference meet rolls around, there are going to be a lot more men entered in each event, and those men are going to cut in on the Kansas State and Nebraska performers. But when the final tabulations are down in the w 11 known and universally accepted black and white, the iron haired track menter still has high hopes of seeing his team on ten.

Coach Schulte is right up in the thru the target to set the crowd but literally. TEXANS MAY APPEAR ON SOONER SCHEDULE Oklahoma Baseball Mentor

Announces Additions to '35 Program.

NORMAN, Feb. 18 .- Four strong Texas teams may appear on the University of Oklahoma's baseball schedule this year in addition to three "Big Six" confer-ence opponents and the leading the leading state schools, Lawrence "Jap" Haskell, coach, announced today

"We have a home and home series with Texas Christian and assurance of two games each with Texas, Texas Aggles and Baylor on a week's trip provided we can get together on dates. Also, the Texas Aggies, Southwest conference champions, may come to Norman for a two game series right after we play Texas Christian Coach Haskell declared.

"We'll also play nine "Big Six" games, three each with Nebraska and Kansas State during a week's road trip early in May, and three with Missouri at Norman."

The Sooner prospects are only mediocre, Haskell confesses. Bill Winford, star sophomore pitcher of last year, has jumped to the Kansas City Blues. So has Adolph Stoup, burly outfielder. Gene Nance, star freshmen shortstop has been signed by the New Yor Yankees. Jimmy Craddock, crack sophomore right-hander, is ineligi-ble. And Roy Myers, probably ble. And Roy Myers, probably greatest centerfielder ever devel-

Haskell is trying to develop Johnie Hunter, former pitcher, into a catcher since Hunter has size, a good arm, and caught some last summer. He will be understudied by Joe Shapiro, whose sore arm is coming back; and perhaps by Kinnear, who has lots of chatter; and Tee Connelley of the Sooner basketball team.

The pitching staff will veteran, three e "Hook" Cole-Travis Hinson, sophomores, Merle man, Howard Parks and George Martin; and perhaps Ken Little of the Sooner spring football squad. Infielders include five veterans, Clarke, Hardwick, Amend, Cobb and Turner, and also Ira Monroe, experienced sophomore, and Edgar "Fudge" Warren, squad man; and two other sophomores, Allan Mars and Bob Watson. Delmar Stein bock, catcher, may be used in the infield this season. Outfielders available are Claunch and Brakebill of last year's team, and John Lewis, Jay Thomas, Rudolph Tone, Mac Boring and Connelley.

The Sooner squad has been practicing for two weeks now.
