

SPECIAL AWGWAN IS SCHEDULED FOR MONDAY RELEASE

Women's Edition, Dedicated To Campus Men, Evens Score With Males.

PICTURE MAN OF MONTH

Theta Sigma Phi Supervises Publication March Issue Humor Magazine.

Dedicated to men and written by women, the prom issue of the Awgwan, student humor magazine, which was sponsored and supervised by Theta Sigma Phi, women's national honorary journalistic sorority, will appear on campus and downtown news stands on Monday afternoon, March 4. Members of the house groups will also receive their copies on Monday afternoon according to the announcement of the business staff.

Betty Segal, Omaha, member of the literary sorority, has worked as the active editor of the March edition of the magazine. Her only statement pertaining to the contents of this issue was, "This is our chance to even the score with the arrogant males and we have used the opportunity as best we knew how." Miss Segal stated that all members of the Theta Sigma Phi organization which is headed by Jeannette Lowrey, aided in the production of this special issue of the campus humor medium.

Besides its usual array of both humorous and serious subject matter the 'men issue' of the Awgwan features a man of the month whom the editors report as being the campus crack woman hater at the Husker knowledge factory. A full page picture cut of the master of feminine loathing adorns one section of the magazine. In addition to the humor of the picture assortment also includes two full pages of faculty and student photographs.

The blue and black cover of the prom issue was drawn by Alan Parker. Included among the articles pertinent to the noble dedication is one entitled "Blind Dates" and another on "Why I Want to Get Married." Editor Segal stated that since the women have the whip hand in this edition the Gore section has been strongly supplemented with more Gore.

German Exchange Students Relate Pleasures of Journey Home from Vacation Trip Through South U. S.

By LORAIN CAMPBELL.

Editor's note: This is the last in a series of articles taken from the diary of Miss Ingeborg Oesterling, German exchange student at the university, who recently toured the United States with two other German exchange students. The contents of the diary have been reproduced in the original English to indicate the novelty of expression and word arrangement.

We took our last bath in the Gulf of Mexico, near St. Petersburg. We wondered if St. Petersburg, with its large hotels, clean streets, and palm avenues, wouldn't perhaps be a quieter place to spend vacations than Miami, which is always so full of tourists and sophistication. We stood one night in the capital of Florida, Tallahassee, after having driven thru such dry, sandy country.

GOLD OVERSTRESSED CLAIMS PROF. ARNDT

Government's Borrowing Policy Bigger Factor Monetary System.

Gold is overemphasized as a factor in aiding business recovery, Prof. Karl M. Arndt told the Lincoln chapter of the American Institute of Banking in a talk given recently at the chamber of commerce.

The part gold plays in our monetary system is relatively unimportant, Arndt declared. "It does little to guarantee price stability in this country." He pointed out that the government's borrowing practices exert more influence on the monetary system than gold. The trend of credit expansion and government borrowing is a factor more important to the laymen, the speaker explained.

Prof. Arndt stated that the recent gold clause ruling of the United States supreme court was justified from an economic point of view.

PROF. VRAZ EVALUATES INSURANCE FOR RELIEF

Advantages, Disadvantages Outlined in Address Wednesday.

SETS UP CENTRAL FUND

Prof. Victor E. Vraz, assistant professor of personnel management, who was formerly on the faculty of Northwestern university, addressed the Men's Commercial club Wednesday evening. In his speech, he outlined the advantages and disadvantages of unemployment insurance, which today is one of the foremost topics in American political circles.

In discussing the advantages of the system Prof. Vraz said, in part: "Unemployment insurance should have a centralized fund, for this country has always suffered because of lack of organization. Unemployment insurance would be centralized only if it were centralized. By this method of centralization the states not so hard hit by depressions could come to the aid of their sister states."

Commenting on the disadvantages of the question, he said: "In what form will these funds be kept by the government? There is a need for a greater centralization of our banking system to afford safety to the employer. There is also the age old question of political influence upon the recipient, by those in charge."

Enlarging on the above, Prof. Vraz stated that there are many difficulties which would arise from this legislation. As examples, he pointed out the widely varied viewpoints of the laborer, the employer, and the consumer. He stated that it would lessen the number of smaller industries, as they would tend to merge, and that the consumer would eventually bear the burden of the federal payroll tax.

In regard to the present economic conditions, Prof. Vraz said, "The government should strive to recover business; it should make the dollar sound; and it should create a better credit system."

In conclusion, he said, "It is no longer a question of whether or not we should have unemployment insurance, but rather, how shall we create it? Should we centralize it? And should we discriminate between industries, or should we use the blanket system?"

JUNIOR-SENIOR PROM COMMITTEE TO MAKE FINAL PLANS FRIDAY

Ticket Sales Drive by Corn Cobs Well Under Way States Hill.

Junior-Senior Prom committee will meet Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock in room 8 of University hall to complete plans for the annual affair to be held Friday, March 8, in the coliseum. Ticket sales were well under way Thursday, according to co-chairman Irving Hill, president of Corn Cobs, which is backing ticket sales.

According to members of the committee, the presentation plan, submitted by William Flax, which won the prize for the best idea, promises to be one of the most artistic and unusual ever attempted on the campus. Every candidate will be honored to some extent in the presentation, according to Clayton Schwenk, chairman of the committee in charge of presentation plans.

Faith Arnold, orchestra chairman, feels that music as played by Arlie Simmon's and his college band, which is coming to Lincoln direct from Chicago for the prom, should draw as large a crowd as has attended any one of the other major parties on the campus in past years.

She went on to say that with a well known orchestra providing the music, with tickets priced at the low sum of $1.25, and with the suspense and curiosity aroused by the filing of seven candidates, she feels that all factors of the party would indicate an exceptionally large attendance.

Tickets will remain on sale until March 8 and a ticket booth will be maintained at the prom. Ballots for prom girl have been placed on the desks and votes can be cast only at the party. Voting closes at 10:15 and the presentation has been set for 11 o'clock. Mayor Fenton B. Fleming, former Governor Charles Bryan, and Prof. E. W. Lantz, student council advisor, will supervise counting of the votes.

It might be too late for us to help the present class, but our plans will be of value to future groups."

Rosenblatt—"It is my firm belief that a strongly organized senior class is of the utmost importance to the University of Nebraska in that such classes form bases for (Continued on Page 3.)

WORK ON W.A.A. CABIN BEGINS FIRST OF WEEK

Building Will Be Available To All University Women.

Work on the W. A. A. Cabin, which will be located about three and one-half miles east of Cotner boulevard, will start Monday according to an announcement made Thursday by Sara Louise Meyer, member of the W. A. A. board. The building will be available to all university women.

Plans for the cabin, which were ready last spring, were drawn by Maxine Packwood, W. A. A. cabinet member, assisted by Salmir A. Solheim. Surveying for the project was done under the supervision of Benjamin F. Hemphill, architecture instructor, by students in his department.

Profits from the W. A. A. cancellations will pay for the cabin and the furnishings which are to be taken care of in five or six weeks.

The building is to have artificial log siding and will be 27x39 feet in size. It will be divided into a living room, which will have a large fireplace, a bunk room containing four double bunks, and a kitchen which will have a large storage and wood closet. Across the front of the cabin will be a 8x35 foot porch. The porch will be open at first but it is the intention of the organization to have it screened later.

The cabin will be located on one acre of ground on the M. L. ohnson farm. The land is divided irregularly by Stevens Creek, with the larger portion of land on the cabin side. A road will be built to the site with the university donating the cinders.

The lease for the site was drawn by H. H. Foster, dean of Law college, assisted by L. F. Seaton, operating superintendent. John K. Seleck also helped with arrangements. The lease was signed by the Board of Regents, which action automatically makes it the university property. John Kaiser is the contractor.

Beth Taylor is chairman of the W. A. A. cabin committee and is assisted by Halene Haxthausen, Maxine Packwood, Jean Brownlee and the club sponsors, Mabel Lee and Matilda Shelby.

Dating Expense--Should It or Should It Not Be a 50-50 Proposition; Opinion Of Students Differ Reporter Finds

By DAMON SANDEN.

Editor's Note: Starting with the depression in 1929, when the bottom fell out of everything, so to speak, the question of 50-50 dates has been of especial interest among university students. The subject has more or less died down in the past few months, but a recent survey of the campus shows that opinion is still divided on the subject.

Hundred dollar a month allowances, millionaire fathers, playboys, and five thousand dollar cars are without question a thing of the past on this, and practically every other campus. In fact, masculine pockets are so empty today that much debate has taken place on the question, "Should expenses be 50-50 on dates?"

Conditions have reached a place where, in many cases, a man is forced to save his pennies ahead of time in order to take the "object of his affections" to an important social function. The question now arises as to whether or not it is fair to force men to bear the entire burden of the expense on these occasions.

With only a few dissenting voices, feminine opinion on this campus has declared itself firmly and absolutely opposed to the idea. The men, however, are less well organized, and lively argument has ensued, both for and against the question, while many remain non-committal, firmly declaring that it makes no difference to them.

Most Girls Oppose Idea. One fair coed stated, "I think that if a fellow can't afford to take a girl any place he should stay home. This is no more logical than that a man should expect his wife to support him after they are married--unless, of course, such action is absolutely necessary. Knowing masculine vanity as I do, I think that if the practice were actually adopted, the men would be the first to rebel. It would take away from them their sense of superiority and masculine supremacy, which seems to be so necessary to their existence. It would make them mere gigolos, and they wouldn't like it."

Another expressed her views as follows: "There is no reason why dates should be 50-50. If it comes to a question of actual expense, dates, in the long run, cost a girl more than they do a fellow. She must constantly buy new clothes while a fellow can get along with (Continued on Page 2.)
