Sales campaign for the 1935 Cornhusker ended Saturday, according to Maynard Miller, business manager of the publication. Sales have exceeded those of last year and members of the staff expressed themselves as being highly gratified with the results.

The fact that the book will be increased in size and that the price has been reduced accounts for the larger number of sales, according to those in charge.

Six Cornhusker Queens chosen by McClelland Barclay, noted magazine cover designer, will be featured in the book. There will also be humor and feature write-ups, and a picture section including a total of forty-five sororities and fraternities. ## PRINTING DELAYS WOMEN'S EDITION HUMOR MAGAZINE

March Awgwan Will Appear Tuesday or Wednesday Editor Announces.

Featuring ancient, modern, and ultra-modern gripes of all woman kind concerning men, the Prom issue of the Awgwan will be released either Tuesday or Wednesday, was edited by Theta Sigma Phi, women's national honorary journalistic sorority, and dedicated to the males of the Nebraska campus. The humor publication will not be put on campus and downtown news stands until later instead of Monday as was previously announced, because of a delay in the assembling and printing.

Among the surprises of the March edition will be a full page cut of the man of the month, who is reported to be the acme of perfection in the art of woman hating by the editors. Articles in this issue that are expected to throw light on dedication are "Why I Want to Get Married" and "Blind Dates." A men's fashion page including two pictures of campus "dress kings" and some pointers on the subject by Smith Davis further emphasizes the preference given the masculine division of the race.

Betty Segal, a member of Theta Sigma Phi, working as active editor of the "men's issue" stated that since the women were the humorists on this occasion they have done their darndest to even the score with their time tested enemies. The Gore section is plenty salty and much larger than usual, she said.

The cover for the Prom version of the campus humor medium was drawn by Alan Parker. Stories were contributed by Jean Walker, Betty Segal, and one anonymous writer. Besides two full picture pages of faculty and student photographs, this edition includes a page of poetry written by university girls.

Informality Is Sponsors' Tea Dance Keynote

Whirling from one pair of arms to another every two or three steps to the music of the dance, "leaving" with any number of different men and meeting practically every officer in the regiment was the order of the day for the coeds and sponsors who attended the sponsor's tea dance Friday afternoon at the Cornhusker hotel.

For the first time this year, a stag line waited on the edge of the dance floor capturing girls who danced only to release them again to other swains who might manage to get half way around the room before being "cut." Informality was the keynote of the affair, for strangers became acquainted in no time at all, and almost every girl danced with at least three men she had never seen before.

A university orchestra provided the music for the occasion, and about three hundred guests and sponsors were present. Violet Cross, honorary colonel; Charles Galloway, cadet colonel, and Colonel and Mrs. W. H. Oury received the guests. Presiding at the table and assisting were Mrs. Edward H. O'Connor, Mrs. John P. Horan, Mrs. Charles Speer, Mrs. Leonard Lilley, and Miss Eve Littlell.

SCARLET TRIMS WILDCATS IN LAST BASKETBALL FRAY; FOOTBALL NOW COMING UP

Cleats Meet Giving Pigskin As 1935 Husker Squad Takes the Field.

PRACTICE OPENS MONDAY

Coaches Make Replacements for Seven Graduating Regulars.

The dull thud of leather cleats meeting giving pigskin, clash of charging bodies and staccato signal barking of anxious field generals will again dominate the Cornhusker sports drama when Dana X. Bible leads his first football squad of 1935 into practice sessions on the stadium sod Monday afternoon.

"As spring practice goes, so goes the fall campaign," said the Huskers' head mentor as he surveyed the written list of material for future operations—a list of 75 or more hopeful huskies. "Our practice drills this year will last through the middle of April, longer than any we have had for some years. In that time we (the coaches) are going to be able to get a good line on how our men will shape up when fall comes around. We're going to get acquainted with our men, experiment with each one, find out where he's best suited to play, and get him firmly entrenched in a knowledge of his position before next fall."

Drill Lasts Until April 18.

Spring football will begin Monday and last until April 18, spring vacation. Drills will be handled by Head Coach Bible and his assistants, Harold Browne on the ends, Link Lyman on the line, and George Henry Sauer working the backfield. Henry F. Schulte and Ed Weir, ordinarily line coaches, will devote their time to the track team. Lyman, the most recent addition to the football tutoring force, will arrive in Lincoln Sunday and take over his duties Monday afternoon.

Coach Bible made no qualms about pointing out the weak spot in his team, one that will have to be worked out during the spring sessions if at all possible. "Our (Continued on Page 2.)"

Chances for Severe Shock in Middle West Are One in Every 20,000 Years Calculations of Geologists Reveal

By LORAIN CAMPBELL.

According to calculations, the chances of a severe shock in the mid-western section of the United States, covering an approximate area of 600,000 miles, are one in every 20,000 years, reports Dr. A. L. Lugin of the Geology department. "Although it is not probable, it is not beyond the range of possibility that Lincoln and Omaha may sometime be subject to a severe earthquake." The great plains region is considered by experts in this field to be the safest in the United States, having the fewest faults, or breaks in the strata. California is the most liable to shock—being literally "slivered" with structural weaknesses.

"Actual earthquakes are the results of increasingly intense tremors which arise from the grinding together of the two surfaces, as they draw apart from each other. If the surfaces are smooth, there will be practically no reaction on the surface of the earth; if it is rough there will be friction—the amount of which causes the variation of the intensity of the vibrations as they effect the top of the earth."

Tremors Widening of Fault. The tremors experienced Friday morning, according to Dr. Lugin, came as a result of the widening of a fault in the Nemaha under-surface mountain chain in this section of the country. The chain is one of the oldest known—beginning in Kansas and stretching through Nebraska, Iowa, north-east Minnesota and east to the mouth of the St. Lawrence river. The ridge was not more than 500 to 1,000 feet high in the beginning; then marine waters came into the region and flooded the area. During a long period of geological time, the Paleozoic era, there were many invasions of the sea—leaving much sediment, and breaks occurred in several places.

At the close of this period, the ridge had been completely buried in mud and deposits from the sea bottom. At the same time, the (Continued on Page 2.)

Tassels Present Songs At Husker-Wildcat Tilt

Once again the girls in the red and white sweaters provided entertainment during the half of a basketball game when they presented their own new Tassel song and sang two of the university's fight themes for the audience at the Husker-Wildcat battle Saturday night. Directed by Elizabeth Bushee and unaccompanied, the pep group presented "Fight Nebraska Fight" and a composition composed by one of their members. It closed its program singing "There is No Place Like Nebraska," with the help of a large "N" formed by the members, the accompaniment of Billy Quick's band, and the use of red and white cardboard in the hands of the girls.

The Tassels have sponsored the various entertainments provided at all the basketball games throughout the season.

Nominations for officers were made by a committee composed of three senior members of the W. A. A. executive council. Both candidates for the presidency have been active in W. A. A. Elizabeth Bushee, junior from Lincoln, was concession manager last year and treasurer of W. A. A. this year. Beth Taylor, junior from Lincoln, is cabin chairman of the organization this year.

PARSONS HIGH POINT MAN

Nebraska Holds Chance to Leave Big Six Cellar Position.

Cornhuskerland gave a great rousing cheer to Rollin "Bud" Parsons Saturday night, and Cornhuskerland's basketball team responded with another upset victory, 28 to 21 over Kansas State in the last cage game of the '35 season.

Parsons, competing in his last game for Nebraska, led his mates through a colorless battle for an opportunity to work their way out of the Big Six conference cellar position, and today there is a mathematical chance that Nebraska will be fifth and not sixth when the final league tabulations are computed.

The Huskers took the lead at the start of the fray, and were headed but for a few minutes near the end of the first half when the Wildcats forged ahead 8-9. Parsons opened the game with a dead in shot from the foul circle, one of the kind that go way up in the air, and then land in the netting with a welcome swish. The Kaggies came back on two baskets by Stoner and one by Freedland to go ahead, but Wainquist came to the Scarlet rescue with a bucket and gift shot, and the game was on ice.

Holding a 14-9 halftime lead, the Cornhuskers stepped it up to 16-11, 20-12, and finally made it 28-14. One minute remained to play when Frank Root's quintet, tiring rapidly under the heavy going, made one last, desperate effort, and tallied 7 points to bring the final count to 28-21. Freedland's last basket, a set up under the hoop rolled in as the gun banged.

Parsons received a tremendous ovation when he left the floor near the end of the game. He had scored 8 points and had led the Cornhusker fine defensive battle throughout the contest. Using an unorthodox 3-2 defense that baffled Iowa State's Cyclones the previous week, the Brownmen forced Kansas State to resort to long shots, and the Wildcats were (Continued on Page 2.)
