After printing the often-repeated but scientifically unreliable statement that one kiss shortens the life by three minutes, the Silver and Gold, student newspaper at the University of Colorado, responded to popular clamor by recommending 175,000 kisses as a reasonable quota for a lifetime. The editor estimated that forty-eight kisses per week would shorten one's life by a year, but assured readers that "it's worth it."

One way of solving the problem of an overcrowded profession—When the Columbia school of journalism decided students should report at 7 a. m. daily so they might become acclimated to the working hours of newshawks on afternoon papers there were quite a few who suddenly lost their hair for journalism.

WOMEN MARKSMEN TO MEET CREIGHTON HERE

Teams Fire Non-Competitive Match Because of W.A.A. Rule.

Members of the Creighton girls' rifle team will fire on the Nebraska rifle range Saturday, March 30, at 1:30. The match, originally scheduled as competitive firing between the two teams will be fired on non-competitive basis, it was learned yesterday.

W. A. A. rules prohibit inter-collegiate competition for university women, hence the Creighton team will appear here as guests, of the Nebraska team and will fire with them for the sport of it. Special arrangements for the match were completed recently by Maj. C. E. Spear, officer in charge of the rifle teams, after it was found that competitive matches between the two teams could not be fired.

TRACK STARS FOCUS EFFORTS ON KANSAS RELAYS NEXT MONTH

Lawrence Cinder Classic Promises Galaxy of Athletes.

LAWRENCE, Kan., March 20.—With the indoor track season ending this week, attention of the sports world turns to the outdoor cinders and field, and a realization that the Kansas relays are but a month away.

Already, in many camps, athletes are being groomed for the Kansas classic, and preliminary reports indicate that some excellent athletic competition will be shown on the afternoon of April 20.

Elmo Hewes, halfback on the Oklahoma team last fall, is working on technique, hoping to perfect himself for the decathlon, with the possibility he may take to Sooner; the third Kansas relays decathlon crown.

Up at Minneapolis, Wayne Slocum is following a rigid program of training for the two-mile run. Mondays he jogs around the track for three or four miles. Tuesdays he does several half miles at racing speed to learn pace. On Wednesday he does a mile and a half at uniform pace, and adds a few sprints. Thursday's hard workout is followed by a Friday rest, ready for the real contest of Saturday.

At Iowa City, James Owen, sprinter, is setting a fast pace on the indoor tracks, equalling the American indoor record of 6.2 for the indoor 60-yards at Minneapolis Feb. 23. Owen was national interscholastic champion while running for the Maplewood, Mo., high school. He has a long, effortless stride, and maintains excellent form throughout his race.

Coach John Jacobs at Oklahoma is also working on a couple relay teams which he expects to enter in the Kansas relays. He has the makings of a powerful medley group, with Bart Ward, Big Six 440-yard champion for the 440-yard leg of the medley; Dick Chaney, lanky sophomore for the 880; Lorin Moody, Big Six indoor half mile champion for that section; and Floyd Lochner, Big Six conference indoor two-mile champion, to run the anchor mile. Their hope is to better the 10:14 mark set at the Penn relays in 1933 by Manhattan college.

Coach Jacobs also has a shuttle relay team in the making that, in preliminary estimates, is a half-second better than the Kansas State team that set the world's record at 1:01.7 here last year.
