Little Gods Galley

By Lewis Cass.

Marion Smith, president of the A. W. S. board, leaned forward over the soft drink she had been sipping, gave the blue felt hat she was wearing a little adjusting, and admitted although a trifle abashed by an interview that at one time in her life she had been in love, that her favorite food was steak and French fried potatoes, and that she did not care for Nebraska picnics because there was never any food.

Miss Smith qualified the statement concerning picnics by describing the outings her family takes each summer to the shores of Lake Superior and commented that Nebraska picnics could never compare to the Michigan kind.

At the present time she likes all the fellows she knows awfully well.

Esther Anderson Describes Three Month European Trip

By ED MURRAY.

Most people in the New World have a soft place in their hearts for some haven in the Old that still harbors and holds intact their respective races. People want to see the culture cradles from which America's hybrid civilization originally started. A check-up on the references made to Europe in English literature would be a satisfaction to many Americans. Hence many people would like to travel in Europe.

Planning a European tour would differ with the individual, but some of the things that a lot of people would undoubtedly enjoy seeing on such a jaunt are described by Miss Esther S. Anderson of the Geography department, who spent three months traveling in the tourist haunts last summer. Her trip cost less than a thousand dollars and she stated that she hit the high places.

Condensed sketches from her story of a summer's fun follow: "From New York we went directly to the Azores, a small group of rugged islands off the coast of Spain and Portugal. We landed in Ponta del Gado on the Fourth of July and we were the only ones who knew what the day meant. The streets were very narrow and the buildings were characteristic of the Mediterranean region; they were made of a plaster or stucco compound and mostly white in color. Besides the pineapple plantations the hills were patched with farm plots. Among the flowers of the vicinity were many beds of huge sweet peas, the biggest I've ever seen."

"After a half a day's row up the Tagus (Tago) river along which we saw much tropical vegetation, we arrived in the old city of Lisbon. The striking thing about this half old and half new city is the manner in which the inhabitants use their heads. Women carry great baskets of fish on their heads. I saw one man balancing from two to three dozen shoe boxes on his head and another carried two mattresses and two pillows."

"Going on to the historically famous Gibraltar, we were in for a surprise. The rock is not a sheer wall as pictured by the insurance (Continued on Page 3.)

BERNICE MILLER RESIGNS POST AS Y.W. SECRETARY

Program Leader to Resume Work in Community Sociology.

Announcement was made Thursday of the resignation of Miss Bernice Miller, general secretary of the Y. W. C. A., to be effective at the close of this school year. Miss Miller is leaving her position at the university to return to the field of community recreation and adult education.

Miss Miller came to the university five years ago from Chicago where for five years she was Metropolitan Secretary of Physical Education and Recreation, supervising that work in the five branches of the Y. W. in that city, as well as in the camp for business women on the south shores of Lake Michigan.

Preceding her work in Chicago, Miss Miller was in South America at Montevideo, Uruguay, where she was associate organizer of the new Y. W. in that city. She is a graduate of the university and is now completing work in sociology for her master's degree. She is writing her thesis on "The Leisure of 195 Lincoln Women, Wives of Professional Men."

During her stay on the campus, Miss Miller has led the Y. W. a social program and the esteem in which she is held is shown by the statements of her associates. "Mrs. Roscoe Hill, president of the Y. W. advisory board, stated, "During the time Miss Miller was secretary of the Y. W., exceptional progress has been made in the campus organization. Under her leadership a wider field of interests has been opened to the membership and the program of the association has grown to include intensive study of current social and economic problems."

"Miss Miller has developed a social program which offers opportunities to all students, especially those who are unaffiliated," remarked Elaine Fontein, last year's president of the Y. W. "The social dancing classes, the annual hanging of the Green dinners and the noon lunches, activities now offered in Ellen Smith hall, have become realities thru her initiative and assistance. Miss Miller has stimulated students to be alert to their responsibilities in participating in world-wide affairs," she continued.

ELECTION STRIFE SEEN AS FACTION BREAK RUMORED

Green Toga Member Said to Apply for Progressive Membership.

LEADERS NONCOMMITTAL

Student Council Eligibility Rules Expected to Cut Candidate List.

BY POLITICUS V.

Early rumors of threatened factional strife were justified, it appeared Thursday, as word that one of the most prominent members of the Green Toga faction had seceded, was wafted about the campus. It was understood that the seceding house had applied to the Progressive fold for membership and that, failing in this, it will place one or two independent candidates in the field.

Leaders of the Green Toga and Progressive groups were non-committal but representatives of the house in question attested to the veracity of the situation.

With this single exception, both factions reported smooth sailing and it was believed that definite staves for each side would be made up by Friday morning.

Strict adherence to the eligibility rules contained in the student council constitution was expected to cut somewhat of a swath in the ranks of favored candidates. Members of both factions had awaited recommendations of the council's eligibility committee, only to see their proposals set aside by the ad-

BELL TO LEAVE FOR RESEARCH WORK ON KODIAK ISLE MAY 15

Expedition Hopes to Uncover New Traces of Primitive North Americans.

Dr. Earl H. Bell, professor of anthropology, will leave May 15 for Alaska, accompanying Dr. Alex Hrdlicka, director of the Smithsonian Institute, on a field research trip on Kodiak island. The expedition is sponsored by the Institute, which hopes to uncover new traces of the aborigines of the island.

That the trip will yield more than the results of study was the opinion of Dr. Bell, who stated that one of his primary purposes in making the trip is for personal accomplishments, such as the delicate fossil ivory carvings already discovered. Traces of the Indian's path from Asia into North America may be detected, as Kodiak island, according to Dr. Bell, is an "Ellis island" for stopping over during migrations.

Much of their information will be obtained by digging "kitchen middens," which includes discarded food, tools, and dead bodies of the inhabitants. By examining the different strata, they hope to find the degree of change that took place in physical characteristics of the skeletons.

RELIEF STUDENTS TO OBTAIN JUNE SALARY

One-Third of Regular Pay Allowed Workers for Next Month.

Students employed on the Federal Emergency Student Relief will be allowed one-third of their regular monthly allotment for June, according to a notice received by Edgar A. Boschult, director of the university workers.

After working out one-third of their regular monthly budget, a student is requested to submit a time card as soon as he has completed his work. The deadline for these cards to be turned in to the relief office is 5 p. m. June 10. Checks will be available the day after the cards are in the office.

All departments have been asked to notify their workers of this announcement. Workers are requested to wait until the last day of the month to turn in their time cards, thus insuring an equal distribution of the relief fund.
