ENGINEERS WAIT FOR STRATOSPHERE FLIGHT

Norris and Bingham Build Equipment to Follow Balloon Journey.

Ready and waiting for word of the takeoff by the huge stratosphere balloon are F. W. Norris and L. A. Bingham, assistant professors of electrical engineering at the university. They have designed and built equipment for receiving and measuring signals during the flight, which is expected to end over central Nebraska.

"The balloon will take off from the vicinity of Rapid City, S. D., in the early morning, and is expected to drift southeast," says the Nebraska Blue Print, university engineers' magazine, "reaching its maximum altitude about noon in the neighborhood of North Platte or Grand Island, 400 miles from the starting point."

Carry Transmitters.

Two ultra high frequency transmitters will be carried in the flight to send out signals continuously for observation and measurement. They will be suspended about 100 feet below the gondola, and send signals until the maximum altitude is reached; then they will be cut free and drift to the ground on parachutes.

Observers will be located along the territory to catch the location of the balloon at all times, says the article. In Nebraska 40 watchers will be located at points 30 miles apart. Each observer will locate the balloon with his transit at 15 minute intervals as long as it is in his range. If weather conditions are favorable it will be possible to see the balloon 60 miles.

"The work of directing the field observations," says the Blue Print, "for the state of Nebraska will be that of Willard J. Turnbull at the University of Nebraska. Mr. Turnbull is the state representative in Nebraska for the U. S. coast survey."

GUEST INSTRUCTORS WILL TEACH SPECIAL COURSES IN SESSION

having been superintendent of several schools in this state.

Dr. Helen K. Mackintosh, grade supervisor of Grand Rapids, Mich., is well known in the field of intermediate grade teaching.

William W. Norton is president of the North Central Music Supervisors' Conference and was on the staff of the Columbia teachers college. He has been eminently successful as supervisor and director of public school and community music at Flint, Mich.

Dr. Norma V. Scheidemann has spent a year abroad studying the psychology of exceptional children and their clinics. She lectured at several large European universities.

Sibel, Thurston.

Muriel V. Sibel is acting chairman of the department of fine arts of the University of Colorado. She is not only an experienced teacher of art but a practicing artist of recognized standing.

Flora M. Thurston, associate professor at Oregon State College, will offer courses at the university in family life.

Dr. Louis A. Wolfanger is instructor in economic geography in the Columbia school of business. He is a nationally known author and scientist.

Chase Going Woodhouse is known for her work in family economics. She is now with the Connecticut College for Women.

MARTIN WILL HEAD ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

Paul L. Martin of Sidney was elected president of the university alumni association at its annual roundup Monday, June 10. Eleanor Barbour Cody of Chadron was chosen vice president and Victor H. Halligan of North Platte was made a member of the executive committee for three years.

Five directors were elected to serve two years: Mrs. Helen Gray Robertson of Plattsmouth, Ford Bates of Omaha, Fred Richards of Fremont, William Sloan of Geneva and Clarence Wright of North Platte.

MUSIC OFFERED FOR SECONDARY STUDENTS

(Continued from Page 1.) of this year. The supervisor of music and the superintendent of schools must give recommendations. Each student will take part in chorus, band or orchestra, as well as receive instruction. Private lessons will be given either in voice or instrument. One hour of practice is allowed each day in the school of music. Concerts will mark the close of the session.

Non-resident boys will live at the Sigma Nu fraternity house, and girls will live at the Pi Beta Phi sorority house. Both houses will be supervised to look after the recreation and health of the students.

Upon the request of the superintendents of the various high schools a credit of one-half unit will be granted to high school students who complete the four-weeks special orchestra, band and chorus course satisfactorily, according to Director Kirkpatrick.
