Fight Song Contest Reopened

Do you want a new Nebraska fight song? Do you think it's about time the university selected one song that everyone can learn and will join in singing at the games?

Mortar Boards and Innocents, backed by the Daily Nebraskan, are launching a contest in which you, the student body, are to be the final judges in selecting a real Cornhusker fight song. Twenty dollars are offered to any composer whose composition receives the greatest number of student votes.

Students have an advantage in the contest—they know what their fellow students ask for in a school song. They know that an original, novel idea molded into a battle cry will win more plaudits than the trite verses found in every teacher's college hymnal.

Collaborate with your roommate; button-hole a musically inclined friend and give him your ideas; and don't forget to cast your vote on the entries which will be printed in the Nebraskan when they come pouring in.

Van Royen Finds Differences European, American Colleges

In comparing continental and American universities Prof. William Van Royen, assistant professor of geography, who has made a study of the subject, has disclosed many distinct differences. Not only are no definite assignments made, but no records or grades are kept for any student in the foreign schools.

"Each student, however, must take a preliminary examination each six months or so before he may receive credit," according to Van Royen. "If he passes this test to the satisfaction of his instructor, he may come in for the comprehensive exam."

Courses in the foreign schools are on the whole lectures but some are seminars where discussions are held. Students, if they wish to succeed, must take detailed notes and investigate references suggested by the professor.

The comprehensive tests are given orally, as are the preliminaries. They are conducted by a professor who sits at his desk and asks questions for two or three hours on things which the students should know.

'DOC' M'LEAN STILL IN CRITICALLY ILL STATE

Athletic Trainer Confined To Hospital Suffering Kidney Ailment.

Condition of Martin J. "Doc" McLean, Cornhusker athletic trainer since 1922, was reported slightly improved but still very critical late Tuesday night. He is in the Lincoln General hospital, stricken with a kidney ailment.

"Doc" McLean came to the university under the regime of Coach Fred Dawson, succeeding Jack Best as muscle rubber for Husker athletes. At that time, he was in charge of the department of hydrotherapy at the state hospital, a position which he still holds.

Training for his profession, he studied at Johns Hopkins university at Baltimore, and later at Notre Dame. National recognition of his ability as a trainer has often been shown in interstate and national competition, when all college men came to him with their kinks.

"At the Drake or Illinois relays," recalled Athletic Director John K. Selleck, "Doc's corner was always full of stars who wanted him to work on them."

During his fifteen years of service at Nebraska, "Doc" has never missed a football game or track meet that any of his associates can remember. He accompanied the team on all football and track trips, and helped out the basketball and minor squads at their home engagements.

Regular polling places will be maintained on the downtown campus in the first floor lobby of Temple theater, and on the ag campus in Ag hall. Polls will open in the morning at 8 o'clock and will close at 5 o'clock, according (Continued on Page 4.)

Miss Claudia Moore Convinces Girls of Dancing's Benefits

Convincing girls that dancing is one of the most fascinating occupations in the world has taken a great deal of the time of Miss Claudia Moore, dancing instructor of the university. Not wasted, however, does she consider this time because she has given enjoyment to a number of university women.

Her chief interest at the present time is in getting Orchestration women's dancing club, started for the year. She reports that it is now rapidly advancing in the regular Wednesday evening practices.

Miss Moore has studied dancing in the University of North Carolina, the Bennington Summer school, and under Doris Humphrey and Charles Weidman, recognized leaders of the contemporary dance in America. Weidman, a former Lincoln man, was formerly with Ted Shawn, but he now has his own troupe which tours the eastern part of the country. The Humphrey-Weidman team has appeared with the New York Philharmonic and the Philadelphia Symphony orchestras, and in the New York Theatre Guild. Their students danced in "Life Begins at 4:40," in an attempt to prove the value of dancing in the theatre.
