DEADLINE FOR BARB TOURNEY ADVANCED

Teams Given a Chance To Atone for First Defeats.

Deadline for filings in the barb intramural basketball tournament is noon, Friday, Nov. 22, according to Director Harold Petz. Two tournaments will be held this year, instead of delaying the barb's most powerful sport until fraternities start playing. The play will begin immediately after Thanksgiving.

Barb teams will be given a chance to see what would happen "if we only had it to do over again," for the second tournament will be a chance to prove the merits for the winners of the first.

Players may check out basketballs for practice from the intramural office. A student has been employed to stay there at all times for their convenience. Teams may practice in the coliseum at any time when they may procure the floor.

Miss Mari Sandoz Guest of Honor at Tea in Book Store

When Miss Mari Sandoz first received notification that her biography "Old Jules," was winner of the Atlantic $5,000 Non-Fiction Prize, she could not believe that it was authentic. Indeed, it was not until one week after she received the first letter on June 13, when the announcement appeared in the papers that she felt certain that she had actually won the prize.

These facts the former Nebraska student disclosed at a tea given in her honor Thursday afternoon at the Lincoln book store where members of Chi Delta Phi, honorary literary society, served.

The author can sympathize with striving young writers because she has so recently had the experience of trying to sell a book. "Old Jules" was rejected by fifteen publishers before it won the prize. In 1933, it was also submitted in the Atlantic contest. In 1925, writing under a pseudonym, Miss Sandoz won honorable mention in the Harper Intercollegiate Short Story Contest.

Miss Sandoz is a member of Chi Delta Phi, Theta Sigma Phi, professional journalism sorority, and the Quill, an organization of city writers. She plans to spend some time in Lincoln writing on her next book.

SCHOONER ISSUE INCLUDES 19 NEW STORIES, POEMS

Literary Magazine to Be Issued Monday or Tuesday.

Presenting nineteen stories, articles and poems taken from over 700 manuscripts. The Prairies Schooner, Nebraska's well known literary magazine, will be issued Monday or Tuesday of next week, Prof. L. C. Wimberly of the English department and editor of the magazine announced.

Approximately 2,500 to 3,000 manuscripts are sent in to the Prairies Schooner a year, Professor Wimberly stated. The material in this quarter's issue was taken from approximately 700 manuscripts, which came from all parts of the United States and several foreign nations. Writers of other nations who have contributed material to the magazine have been from India, England, Philippine Islands, France and Canada, the editor said.

Considered outstanding by the staff because of its cosmopolitan content, this issue contains five stories, six articles, and eight poems written by university professors, former students and authors from throughout this country and foreign lands.

Two biographical sketches written by two university instructors appear in the magazine. Dr. Martin S. Petersen of the English department writes of William Allen White, and M. S. Ginsburg of the classics department presents a biographical sketch of Horace, a Roman poet.

Poems and sketches by former Nebraska students include three sonnets by Wilbur Gaffney, arts and science graduate; a sonnet by Loren Eiseley, graduate student in the arts and science college, and a sketch of dust storms of 1935 entitled "Spring of the Blizzards" by Rudolph Umland of Eagle, Nebraska, who is a former student here. A poem entitled "Memorial" by Charles Sloan of Colorado is also in the issue. In view of the present advocacy of pacifism is very appropriate for Armistice day, Professor Wimberly stated.

An inclusive professional organization that would unite journalists not only in newspaper work, but those in press association, syndicate, and magazine fields will be considered by the convention body. Three days of discussion on various journalistic topics are planned from Nov. 15 to 17 at the Urbana-Lincoln hotel. Featured speakers include John E. Stempel Mower, Chicago Daily News; Phillip Kinsley, Chicago Tribune. Those topics to be considered are research problems in journalism, creation of an alumni association, and a symposium "Municipal Government and the Press."

Biblemen Determined Repeat History and Down Foes On Home Field.

PITTSBURGH IS FAVORED

Scarlet Backs Hold Answer; Can Their Brilliance Trip Line Power?

By Dick Kunzman.

Everybody's picking Pitt. Not a single dissenting voice does there appear above the Panther-venered horizon in favor of Dana Bible's Cornhuskers, gone east in an attempt to crash into "big time" football, via Pittsburgh.

That, when you recall some of the power dynamos that Jock Sutherland has turned loose, and some of the things that have thereby happened to Nebraska, is probably only natural and to be expected.

Much Has Changed. But there's no time like the present on a football field, where things happen fast and frantically. Those unpalatable occurrences when Nebraska had all she could do to hang onto the Panther's tail, much less outrun him, are a long way removed from Saturday afternoon, and a lot of things have happened since then.

Nobody ever remembers what happened before the depression anyway, so it might not be a bad idea to forget that well worn phrase about Nebraska not having beaten Pitt since 1921. In that event, after you've forgotten that Nebraska and Pittsburgh were ever seen in the same stadium together, things take on a slightly different aspect.

There's a Possibility. It might even be possible to hazard a guess that maybe, with a little luck and the breaks, and the right frame of mind, and other such essentials that aren't always in appearance,—well, don't laugh, but Nebraska might just possibly win.

That possibility assumes something like popular toleration when you recall what Nebraska almost did to Minnesota earlier in the season. Few people outside Minnesota like to remember that game or anything connected with it, but the fact remains that the Huskers ought to have, and nearly did, capitalize on George Roscoe's fumble on the 2-yard line to carry the ball across in four downs.

Break Did It. Nebraska got in that position with the aid of an unexpected piece of good luck, but they also got out of it—the wrong way on an unexpected piece of bad luck. Regarding the subject of whether Sam Francis, Jerry LaNoue, or Mussolini could have granted that they could have—crashed thru that Gopher line, and forgetting whether it should have been done on first, fourth or tenth down, there's little question that Nebraska would have made those two yards but for a bad break when Lloyd Cardwell got a poor pass from center and couldn't get started on that end run. Pitt can't be any stronger than Minnesota was, and with the aid of a bit of luck going their way the Huskers (Continued on Page 4)

27 COEDS ENTERED IN 1936 QUEEN CONTEST

Cornhusker to Announce List of Entrants Today.

Twenty-seven entries in the Nebraska Queen's contest had been made at the Cornhusker office late Wednesday afternoon, the final date of filing, according to Eugene Pester, yearbook business manager. Each sorority was entitled to one candidate for every twenty annuals which it purchased.

An announcement of the complete list of candidates will be made today when a checkup on results of the sales campaign will be completed, Pester stated.

"Judging from the large number of candidates which have been carefully selected from over 2,000 university women, the Cornhusker staff is sure that an outstanding queen section will be had for the 1936 yearbook," Faith Arnold, editor stated.

Carl Laemmle, jr., Hollywood producer of Universal Pictures, will judge the beauty queen section and pick the six most beautiful girls on the Nebraska campus.

Three New Electric Clocks Keep Watch In School Buildings

For the benefit of those people who are unobserving, for those who have not had the chance to be unobserving, and perhaps those who have been observing, the university is the proud possessor of three absolutely new 1935 streamline model electric clocks.

The prestige and efficiency of the Social Science Library, Library hall, and the Daily Nebraskan office have been enhanced by the addition of new timepieces.

When the present school year was in the first few weeks of its existence, students using the Social Science library were placed at a disadvantage by the prominence of an old dusty clock that never ran. Now students can be entirely at ease while studying without experiencing fears of being late to class.

The reactions in the Nebraskan office are still in the experimental stage as the luxury of an efficient clock is so unusual that surprise has so startled the staff that coherent opinions will, undoubtedly, not be ready for the Thanksgiving consumption.

According to John Seaton, university superintendent, any time an old clock breaks down a new electric clock is installed in its place as it is more reasonable and economical than fixing the old clock.

Competing for the world's championship in livestock judging will be 21 or 22 teams from the major agricultural colleges in the United States and two teams from schools in Canada.

GIRLS' SWIM GROUP ACTIVES ENTERTAIN PLEDGES AT PARTY

Various Skits Pantomimed For Entertainment of Members.

Active members of Tankerettes, girls swim society, entertained the pledges at a party Wednesday afternoon. For the entertainment of the actives the pledges who came in costume, pantomimed various skits such as "The Greedy Dog," "Angling Bunnies" and "The Fox that Fished with his Tail." Addis Cole, Adrienne Griffith Vera Wilson and Cora Fox were complimented on clever costumes.

After the pantomiming the pledges were instructed to swim across the pool like the animal which they had been assigned. They were also to make the characteristic noise of the same animal. Following this a crew race was held. In this the girls sat on long planks and went across the pool.

Pledges were then taken to the W. A. A. room on the third floor of the Armory where a picnic was held for them. The room was decorated to represent an old-fashioned picnic.

During the picnic each pledge told where she had learned to swim and of her experience since she had learned to swim.

The girls were formally pledged after having passed a series of try-outs since the beginning of school. They were told about plans of the club for the remainder of the semester and of the organization of committees of the club. Pledge ribbons were a scarlet fish on a cream background.
