

NEBRASKA CAMPUS SOCIAL WHIRL

NOW ITS VACATION.

Everyone seems to be making plans for spring vacation, manipulating "rides home" and finding it much more interesting to talk over a coke or cherry pineapple, about who will visit what sorority sister or fraternity brother than delving into the mysteries of Chaucer or the intricacies of the scientific mind. At any rate, despite wintry winds and an abundance of fur coat wearers still shivering in their boots and wishing for the appearance of "Old Sol," plans for spring are definitely growing apace on the campus and there are still a few optimistic souls who predict that "it won't be long now."

COMPULSORY DRILL AT CALIFORNIA CONTINUES

Board of Regents Rules Over Protests of Students.

By College News Service.

BERKELEY, April 6.—Compulsory military training for students in the first two years at the University of California, both on the Berkeley and Los Angeles campuses, will continue as a part of the university curriculum as the result of the latest ruling by the board of regents.

After considering student protests on the subject, the board issued the following statement: "The regents have again considered a proposal that instruction in military science and tactics be made elective rather than compulsory, and have concluded that there shall be no departure from the regulation now in force."

"This determination they believe to be in accordance with the legal and moral obligations which rest upon them as the governing body of the university, and they believe no other would be consistent with the terms of the trust established thru the adoption of act 9 section 9 of the constitution."

"Moreover, they deem the existing regulation to be a sound expression of academic policy. They are constrained to add that no statement of preference upon a matter of the sort here considered, however persuasive or from whatever source, can relieve them of the responsibility and duty of final decision which the law specifically reposes in them alone."

CONNING THE CAMPI

By Arlen Crenshaw

By the time a student enters college he usually has outgrown those qualities which convert public school teachers into semi-official policemen.

Since he is paying for higher education, he feels that he should be able to make his own decisions about best acquiring that education. Instead he is surrounded with much the same type of supervision that developed his "do it behind the teacher's back" attitude in public school.

One example of this type of restriction at Carnegie is the requiring of excuses for class absences. Obtaining an excuse is simple at Carnegie and there is no good way to prevent it from being easy. But even if they were hard to get they would still be useless. Excuses merely indicate that the student has missed an instruction period, and both he and the instructor realize that.

Most instructors object to being policemen, and certainly the student objects to being policed. When a student misses a class the instructor expects him to make up his work. If the student has deliberated "cut" the class he will realize this and make it up.

Written excuses are a bother to everybody concerned. They belong back in the days when Johnny had to bring a note from home so Miss Smith, the school-marm, would be sure he hadn't played "hokey" and gone to the old swimming hole for a dip. Colleges are supposed to prepare men and women for responsible citizenship. Perhaps if congressmen had to bring a note from home every time they failed to show up for a session things would be run better, but from a college student's viewpoint, this would be just as silly as the present practice of requiring absence excuses at Carnegie.—From the Carnegie Tartan, Carnegie Tech; distributed by College News Service.)

who will make the trip will be announced next week.

Dr. C. E. McNeil of the business college staff will lead a discussion at the public utilities section meeting of the Midwest Economics association convention in Des Moines, April 9 to 11. The discussion will deal with holding companies.

Mrs. Minnie Thom Decker, graduate in Home Economics from the university in 1929, visited the Home Economics department Thursday, April 2. Mrs. Decker was director of Y. W. C. A. cafeterias in Topeka, Kas., and in Worcester, Mass., before her marriage.

Each Puff Less Acid A LIGHT SMOKE

OF RICH, RIPE-BODIED TOBACCO

Over a period of years, certain basic advances have been made in the selection and treatment of cigarette tobaccos for Lucky Strike Cigarettes.

They include preliminary analyses of the tobacco selected; use of center leaves; the higher heat treatment of tobacco ("Toasting"); consideration of acid-alkaline balance, with consequent definite improvement in flavor; and controlled uniformity in the finished product.

All these combine to produce a superior cigarette—a modern cigarette, a cigarette made of rich, ripe-bodied tobaccos—A Light Smoke.
