POLITICAL LEADERS' AMBITION PRODUCED CIVIL WAR--SELLERS

Professor Denies Clash of Economic Interests as Cause of Conflict.

Ambition of political leaders rather than the clash of economic interests produced the Civil War, Dr. J. L. Sellers, professor of American history at the university told the Mississippi Valley Historical association at their twenty-ninth annual meeting in Austin, Tex., Saturday.

Secession occurred, he said, on account of the distrust of a republican administration that had been elected upon the issue of non-extension of slavery. False issues directed to sectional partisans built prejudices and ill founded convictions that became irremediable. Dr. Sellers pointed out.

The meeting was held upon the invitation of the University of Texas and the Texas State Historical association.

Humor, Pathos in French Film

Naturalness of Actors Features Play

By Ed Murray.

Not the wide-eyed camera posers that are Hollywood's children, not sweeter-than-life little things that are coached to the distraction of dramatic art, not the million dollar dolls that set the fashions for the nation's offspring—no, just the humor, the pathos, and the childish loveliness of dirty-faced, innocent kids ferreted from the poverty haunts of Paris and living, not acting, in a French picture.

Such were the players, little stars that will probably never scintillate for the world again, in La Maternelle, known in English as Children of Montmartre, which was brought to the Varsity theater Saturday by Le Cercle Francais. This is the last of the French movies this year to be sponsored by the University club, and by

WORLD HERALD MAN SPEAKER AT BANQUET OF SIGMA DELTA CHI

Editorial Stories to Replace Spot News, Due to Radio Says Morrow.

Stating that news of an editorializing and interpretative nature will undoubtedly appear in the newspapers of the future with radio handling the "spot" news, Ed Morrow of the Omaha World-Herald editorial staff addressed members of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic fraternity, at an initiation banquet in the Lincoln hotel, Friday evening.

Newspapers may dismiss their present policy of presenting only the facts and tend more to analyze the more important news, Morrow pointed out. A better class of readers will then be attracted by the newspapers.

Plans for the organization of Sigma Delta Chi alumni groups in Omaha and Lincoln were discussed by Russell Briggs and Carlton Stoddard, Omaha newspapermen. Also considered was the possibility of establishing an active chapter at Creighton university.

Seven new members taken into the organization preceding the banquet were George Frey, Don Wagner, Lynn Leonard, William Kaiser, Arnold Levin, Willard Burney, and Ed Murray. Toastmaster for the evening was Eugene Dalby, president of the active chapter.
