Ivy Day to Have New Features Societies to Continue Old Traditions

Tradition will receive new ramifications in the presentation of Ivy day to take place this year May 7. The festivities will adhere to customs of the past, several new features are to be included that will add to campus interest in the occasion.

Innocents society, for the first time, has offered its assistance to Mortar Board in presenting Ivy day. Members of the men's honor society, with President Dick Schmidt in charge, are responsible for the preparation of the Ivy day grounds and for all general arrangements.

Personnel Changed.

Personnel of the ivy and daisy chains, which open the ceremony of the May queen presentation, is slightly changed this year, with only one representative from the freshman, sophomore and junior classes in each sorority house instead of two from each class. All senior women are eligible to carry the ivy chain, the custom in the past.

Departure from the tradition of a women's chorus singing the Ivy day chant is made so that the chant will be sung by members of the two chains as the procession comes onto the Ivy day grounds. Every woman chosen to be in the chains must attend the two rehearsals preceding Ivy day to be held on Monday and Tuesday, May 4 and 5. Herman T. Decker, professor of music, will train the group.

Other Changes.

Apart from the May queen ceremonies, changes have been made also. Judges for the inter-sorority contest sponsored by A. W. S. will be from out state, instead of being chosen from Lincoln. It is made possible for every sorority in the contest paying an entrance fee. The judges will also serve for the interfraternity sing which is sponsored by Kosmet Klub.

WIEMAN TO PRESENT CLOSING ADDRESSES FOR RELIGIOUS WEEK

Students, Faculty Hear Three Talks Today and Thursday.

Conclusion of Religious Emphasis week activities will take place today and tomorrow, when Dr. Henry Nelson Wieman, professor of the philosophy of religion, gives his closing addresses before assemblies of young people, university faculty members, and the Federated Church Women's group.

Climaxing his series of three addresses scheduled for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, Doctor Wieman will speak before young people at the University Episcopal church at 7:15 tonight. The subject which he will discuss will be in summary of the discussions which have been held on the two previous evenings and will deal with the topic of "Religious Living and the Social Conflict."

Faculty members will conclude their series of meetings with Dr. Wieman this noon, at a luncheon to be held at the Grand hotel. "God and Social Evil" will be the theme of the speaker's talk at the gathering this noon.

Yesterday afternoon, Doctor Wieman spoke at a joint convocation for students of both the city and ag campuses, developing a topic on the general subject of "Religious Adequacy for These Times." The convocation, sponsored on the university campus by the Religious Welfare Council, which has been in charge of plans for the past week's meetings, was held in place of the regular vesper services on both campuses.

The concluding meeting at which Doctor Wieman will appear is to be held on Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock, before members of the Federated Church Women's organization.

To Dismiss Romance Language 11 O'clock

All classes in the romance language department which meet at eleven o'clock today will be dismissed in order to permit students and faculty members to attend the funeral services of Instructor J. P. Weller. Last rites will be held in the chapel of the Castle, Roper & Matthews mortuary at eleven o'clock this morning.

Prof's Lack Personal Interest Students Express Their 'Pet Peeves'

Discussion of irritating professional idiosyncrasies is increasing on the campus. It is growing as rapidly as the miniature Niagara Falls which threatened for a while to inundate the Nebraska offices, during the downpour Tuesday afternoon.

Great dissatisfaction seems to center around many professors' lack of personal interest, not only in their students, but in the courses they are teaching. Students object to paying hard-earned cash for classes which professors frankly admit that they are instructing because of the monetary returns. The cynicism that accompanies such a frame of mind is totally unappreciated by students. "Confidence" shown in students thru huge assignments, which are expected to be made in detail, is perfectly transparent as overbearing tendencies of teachers who revel in irony.

Impart Nothing of Value.

"Haughty demeanor" is another one of the trials and tribulations of students who attempt to gather information from instructors who act as if they knew everything and refuse to impart anything of value to waiting pupils. Professors and assistant professors who closely resemble mechanical robots, and appear to have time for nothing but business also tax the powers of toleration of the campus boys and girls.

One college wag is "mad" because of the professors' insistence that he come to class. Another lad does not like teachers who tell

Dr. R. L. Valentine to Conduct Interviews of Bizad Students Today

Seniors and graduates of Business Administration college interested in entering the bond business as salesmen, will be granted interviews with Dr. R. L. Valentine Wednesday in Prof. Bullock's office in S. S. 306.

Dr. Valentine will give a talk of general interest at 9:30 a. m. if his schedule permits. As faculty member of Illinois university, Dr. Valentine taught corporation finance and allied subjects for a period of seven years. In his past visits to the University he has helped many Nebraska graduates secure positions in the business world.

W.A.A. TO ENTERTAIN AT OUTDOOR SKATING PARTY THIS EVENING

Students Will Play Various Games on Open Rink Near Campus.

At the time of the year when young and old turn to the outdoors for entertainment, the W. A. A. is sponsoring a Skating Spree to bring the students to the wide open spaces. At the rink at 17th and Holdrege, students will be privileged to roller skate from 7 to 8:30 Wednesday evening.

Music will be furnished for the skating which will be carried out in entertaining games and features.

"Couple-robbing" which resembles tag-dancing should by all means induce a large number of thrill seeking students," stated Sarah Louise Meyer, manager of the Skating Spree.

"The admission fee which is 10 cents for women and 15 cents for men, include the rental of skates. During the hour and a half skating party the public will be barred from the rink, making the party an all-university function.

The party is being held within walking distance of the campus, affording a large number of students the opportunity of skating.

In sponsoring this party the Women's Athletic association is gaining no profit but wishes merely to promote the previously well accepted idea of mixed recreational activity on this campus.

In case of unsettled weather the rink has a tent top which may be closed.

Prof's Lack Personal Interest Students Express Their 'Pet Peeves'

dirty stories—in a low tone so that only the front of the class can hear. In a more serious vein, the same person airs his grievances concerning the rhetorical inabilities of many professors. They seem to have forgotten one of the first rules of grammar which deals with the necessity of making complete sentences.

Too Many 'er,' 'Ah's.'

Students have been known to gather statistics, varying greatly in degree of detail, as to the number of times certain deliberate professors utter "er" and "ah" during a given class period. Then, of course, there are those who wear out a word, instead of the mutterings. An activities girl, who really doesn't have time to figure out such things, has decided that one word, mentioned five times an hour constitutes entirely too good a batting average, especially if the word is rather unordinary.

"Most of my classes are boring," decides one young lady, but she lessens this accusation by quickly adding that it is because her instructors talk in a monotone, laugh at their own jokes, and refrain from practicing what they emphatically preach. This last point is rather a sore one in the campus mind.

Perhaps the university instructors have disappointments in the many students who sit before them. Certainly those students seem to feel that too many professors fail to recognize the true value of the young men and women they are helping to educate.

MARSH CALLS OFF STUDENT FORUM ON SUBSIDIZATION

Fred Ware Unable to Speak Here Thursday; May Be Held Later.

Inability of Fred Ware, sports editor of the Omaha World-Herald, to be present to speak in defense of subsidization of athletics was announced by William Marsh, of the Student Council committee, as the reason for the indefinite postponement of the third student forum, originally scheduled for Thursday morning.

Herbert Gish, former director of athletics at the university, was to have talked against athletic subsidization at the forum. Because of the late notification, it was impossible to make arrangements for another speaker.

"We will hold the forum at a later date," stated Marsh, "as soon as a qualified speaker can be lined up to defend the policy of subsidizing athletics. We realize the importance and value of such a forum at the present time, and therefore members of the committee plan to arrange for a qualified speaker."

"Students have shown their interest in the two forums that have been held this year," declared Irving Hill, president of the Student Council, "and have expressed a desire for a student discussion on the subject of subsidizing."

NEBRASKANS TELL OF PAST EVENTS Activity 20 Years Ago Revealed in Files.

Curiosity about the student life of twenty years ago brought that very assignment to this reporter. The managing editor pointed to a stack of aging Daily Nebraskans and said, in part, "Find out for yourself."

Thus began a search through dusty files, yellowing with age, for the April 29, 1916 issue. Once found and examined, the writer reached the conclusion that Nebraska students were little different even in those pre-war days.

The Nebraskan of 1916 was a small, two-thirds size sheet. It was edited by Charles H. Epperson, 16.

Planned Council.

We learn that the Nebraskan was leading the fight for student recognition and control. Plans were being formulated for a proposed Student Council as the nucleus for a student governing body. Results of that campaign are well known to Nebraska students today.

AMATEUR ACTS TAKE PLACE OF SNORPHEUM

Ag Follies Will Replace Fair Sideshow of Former Years.

Replacing the "Snorpheum," the Ag Follies, a medley of winning amateur skits, will be presented Saturday, May 9, the day of Farmer's Fair. According to Ogden Riddle, chairman of the follies, the acts have been planned to take the audience back to the days of the "big time carnival." In expectation of a large crowd the committee plans to arrange seating capacity to be held in the Student Activities building.

Riddle states that many of the acts are the best ones presented this year at the Orpheum theater and various private functions.

The program with the directing cast, Riddle, Don Joy and Bonnie Spangard, have been working on all semester includes: University Gym team in a three ring circus skit; Mrs. Tullis and the opera cast; Ziggens high school trio; Acrobatic dance by Wilda Tierman; Blues Singer, Harriet Lehr; Mary McDonald impersonating Kate Smith; Al Nore with a humorous reading; and Mel Eereman giving his roping act.

The national committee seeks guidance along the following lines: a theme for the twenty-six broadcasts, specific regions to be analyzed, approval of the present broadcast and suggestions for another form of dramatization or another presentation.

The broadcast is scheduled for April 29, at 12:30, Central Standard Time. The program may be heard over KFAB at Lincoln or KSCJ at Sioux City, Iowa.

APPRECIATION OF ART, RELIGION NECESSARY, MISS HEPPNER SAYS

Dean of Women Speaks at Closing Meeting of Charm School.

Discussing the importance of developing emotional life with the proper balance, Miss Amanda Heppner, dean of women at the university, spoke before members of the charm school hobby group at their final meeting of the school year, held last evening at 7 o'clock in Ellen Smith hall.

Miss Heppner opened her discussion by giving a summary of the most outstanding points of the programs which had been given at charm school in the past year, especially emphasizing the importance of having such a hobby group in aiding freshmen girls to become oriented to university life.

She continued by pointing out the necessity for the cultivation of the sense of beauty in the life of every person. "A common criticism which is made of our young people today is that they are lacking in the development of emotional qualities," Miss Heppner asserted.

Appreciation of art and the encouragement of religion were suggested by the speaker as being essential to the emotional development of a young man or woman. "One must develop his sensitivity in order to be alive to things about one," Miss Heppner stated. She continued by showing that right living, co-operation and good conduct represented a picture of beauty, while cheating, wrong conduct.

Former Student Now Dictator New Latvian Head Once Refugee Here

Twenty-eight years ago a young political refugee from far-off Latvia, a tiny country tucked in between Soviet Russia, Lithuania, and Estonia on the gray shores of the sea, with no money, no optimism, no anything but a determination, enrolled in the agricultural college at the University of Nebraska.

Last week, in 1936, this same little man joined the list of Europe's full-fledged dictators. Since he led a coup d'etat two years ago, the broad shouldered son of a farmer, Karlis Ulmanis has been a virtual dictator of Latvia with the official title of prime minister.

Last month he wrote a formal acquaintance requesting a new red and white Nebraska pennant to replace the one he has always kept with him since graduation in 1909.

Assume Title "Wadonis."

Under the newly published laws of the Latvian government, Ulmanis has taken the oath of office as president-premier and has assumed the title of "Wadonis." "Wadonis" corresponds to the Italian "Il Duce" or the German "Der Fuehrer."

His hold upon the Latvian government and his authority over the nation of 2 million people and land amounting to about one-third the size of Nebraska is now indisputable. His government has the backing of the military and the civil guards, although there is no visible expression of force.

During his years at the university, Karl Ulmanis (as his name was anglicized during his stay in

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR JOHN WELLER HELD AT 11 TODAY

Hospital Attendants Report Dr. Kurz' Condition as Satisfactory.

Condition of Dr. Harry Kurz, head of the department of romance languages, was reported satisfactory Tuesday following his flight from Instructor John P. Weller in which he was shot in the right wrist. Dr. Kurz was "resting well," hospital attendants at Lincoln General hospital declared.

Funeral services for Instructor Weller will be held at 11 o'clock this morning at Castle, Roper & Matthews chapel. Rev. L. W. McMillin will officiate with Wilbur Chenoweth at the organ. Interment will be at Wyuka, Palbearers, associates on the University faculty, will be: Dr. J. A. E. Alexis, Assistant Professors H. H. Saenz and James Wadsworth, Instructors R. P. French, and Assistant Instructors Lloyd Teale and Wentworth Fling.

Classes Meet.

Classes of Mr. Weller and Dr. Kurz will be assumed by members of the romance department until further arrangements can be made, it was announced Tuesday. Classes will meet as usual.

As Dr. Kurz lay in Lincoln General hospital with his arm in a cast, he outlined the reasons for having urged dismissal of Weller. He charged that Mr. Weller had shirked his work and "thru pull and thru his friends sought to attach himself to an easy job at the university for life."

He said when Mr. Weller heard several weeks ago that he was going to be discharged he threatened him. Dr. Kurz stated that at that time he tried to persuade him to subordinate to continue with his graduate work and offered to assist him in securing some other sort of school work.

Reconstructs Scene.

In reconstructing the scene in University hall Monday, Dr. Kurz said Mr. Weller drew a revolver when the head of the department entered the office and pointed it at him during several tense moments of argument.

"He stood over me at my desk. I tried to quiet him. While we were talking, my associate, Mr. French, also an instructor in the romance department, came in to hand me a paper. Mr. Weller put his gun away while French was there. Then I made a dash for the door. I think one shot was fired as I was running out the door."

America) seemed solely interested in learning more about modern methods of dairying and farming. He is described by his former friend and instructor, Prof. A. L. Haecker as being "a thoroughly fine fellow, a brilliant student and unusually diligent. He rarely, if ever took part in student social affairs."

Impressed by Honesty.

"I was greatly impressed by his honesty and his sense of duty. Whenever he borrowed from me, he invariably insisted upon paying a regular 10 percent interest on the loan. He would not borrow on any other agreement as he refused, so he put it, to burden those who befriended him."

In letters to Prof. Haecker, Ulmanis declares that when the political upheavals have been straightened out, he will hand a democratic government back into the hands of the people. At heart he is sincerely in favor of seeing a democracy thriving in his little native country.

He accounts for the difficulty in keeping a democracy as being the result of the 20 individual political parties which exist. "They are always pulling and hauling to gain their ends. They make coalitions which do not hold, and then a new cabinet must be formed. This causes untold political unrest and dissatisfaction among the people."

Advocates Two Parties.

Professor Haecker explained that Ulmanis' education at Ne-

Dr. Stepanek Addresses PBK Members at Initiation Banquet.

"Youth must join in a fight to the finish against the fat generals of infantry and the fat captains of industry," Prof. Orin Stepanek told the members and 31 initiates of Phi Beta Kappa at an initiation banquet last night. The speaker emphasized the fact that many presses over the world are calling youth "bad names" is a very hopeful sign that youth is starting out to accomplish something.

Mr. Stepanek, of the English department, spoke on "Shine, Perishing Republic," and was introduced by Dr. R. J. Pool, retiring president of Phi Beta Kappa. His welcome to the initiates preceded the main address of the evening's program. Irving Hill made the response for the new members.

Grateful for Opportunity.

"The new members have in common with the old, a faith in intellectual pursuits and an admiration for those who have excelled in these pursuits," Mr. Hill stated. "We initiates are grateful that the opportunity has been conferred upon us to associate with those of like interests, but of greater skills."

"What then is to be done?" was the opening theme of Mr. Stepanek's speech, which followed the greeting and response, as he asked members of Phi Beta Kappa, "What are we to do for this patterned for those youth we have before us?" He mentioned initiates in various fields and pointed to the different guides in their professions which they might follow. Stress was laid on the necessity of choosing which of the many doctrines to follow.

Present Music.

His further advice was that those of "two and twenty" rediscover some living faith in the heritage called civilization left by preceding generations. The envy that some of our youth has for the youth of Russia, Italy and Germany he explained as the envy for the ability to believe and strive for ideals. Stepanek then referred to the suggestion made by President Robert Hutensin of Chicago that a youth party is what is needed in this country.

Musical selections on the program were given by Marcella Laux and James Fitch. They sang a duet, "Ave Maria" by Loretz. Mr. Fitch sang "Even Bravest Heart" from "Faust," and Miss Laux sang an aria from "Madame Butterfly."
