

D. X. IN TEXAS FOR CONFERENCE WITH ATHLETIC COUNCIL

President Benedict Against Proposed High Salary For Head Coach.

Dana X. Bible, head football coach and athletic director of the university, left early Monday morning for Austin, Tex., where he has been invited to confer with Texas university officials Wednesday in regard to accepting the position of head coach and athletic director.

Departing on the Zephyr, Coach Bible is expected to investigate conditions at Texas before attending the board meeting Wednesday. Late Saturday night he talked via telephone with Dr. J. C. Dolley, president of the Texas athletic council, and agreed to meet with the board.

Coach Bible issued the following statement before entraining:

"I have talked to Mr. Dolley, president of the athletic council of the University of Texas. After my conversation with him, I have agreed to go to Austin for a conference Wednesday with the athletic council, board of regents and president of the university.

"I have no other statement to make at this time, and will have none until after the conference."

Deliberate Ten Hours.

It took the Texas board of regents ten hours to deliberate as to which coaching candidate should be invited to the conference, altho all reports from Austin pointed to Coach Bible as the logical choice. The regents issued the following statement:

"The board of regents, after long and careful consideration, has unanimously invited Dana X. Bible to come to Austin Wednesday for a conference with the university officials to talk over details of a possible contract of employment as intercollegiate athletic director and head football coach.

"As is generally known, employment of Mr. Bible in this capacity will entail a higher salary than has been customary in the athletic department at the university. Dr. Benedict (president of the university) has the highest opinions of Mr. Bible personally yet doubts the wisdom of this change in policy. He will, of course, give Mr. Bible the fullest cooperation in case he enters into a contract with the university."

Opposed to Salary.

President Benedict has declined to comment on the situation, but it is generally conceded that he is opposed to paying any football coach a larger salary than the highest paid faculty member. The president has an annual salary of $8,000 and $5,000 is the maximum for professors. Retiring Coach Chevigny received a $5,000 salary plus $2,000 expenses.

UNIVERSITY OF NEBRASKA SCHEDULE OF EXAMINATIONS

FIRST SEMESTER 1936-37

Laboratory classes meeting for several continuous hours on one or two days may avoid conflicts with other classes of the same nature by arranging that their examinations occur as follows:

Classes meeting on Monday or Tuesday may be examined on the date scheduled for the first hour of their laboratory meeting; Wednesday or Thursday classes on the second hour of their meeting; Friday or Saturday classes on the third hour.

Please note that in this schedule special arrangements have been made to conduct unit examinations for all sections in the following subjects: (1) English 0, 1, 2, 3, and 4; (2) English 11; (3) French 1, 2, 3, and 4; (4) Spanish 51 and 53; (5) Business Organization 3 and 4; (6) Education 30. If students have regularly scheduled examination conflicting with the above especially arranged schedule, arrangements to take such specially scheduled examinations at another time should be made with the department concerned on or before January 20. For example: if a student is scheduled for an examination which conflicts with a specially scheduled examination in French, arrangements should be made with the French department to take such French examination at another time.

Foreign Languages Necessary To Complete Mental Training, Says Vassar College President.

much earlier stage in education across the water, because international pressures compel Europeans to be familiar with at least two modern languages besides their own. This need in America, tho it exists, is by no means so immediate, and the study of modern languages is therefore with us a cultural rather than a vocational requisite.

"Surely at the present time, if ever, a knowledge of modern languages can be defended as essential in a society-centered curriculum. Only a parochial view of society would limit it to American frontiers. Thus the advocates of the modern languages, among whom I am glad to enroll, need not retreat to 'individualism' as a justification of their branch of learning.

"The success and importance of the modern languages in the colleges for women are due to their recognition as instruments of internationalism. Foreign study and travel, international clubs, the use of the living language in drama and composition, all provide a most important element in the cultural atmosphere of the institution, and one worthy of the best professional guidance.

"Even the proponents of the logical and metaphysical aspects of philosophy as the core of a university curriculum must concede the necessity of expert training in the various modern languages in which philosophy and science have been developed, as the verbal element in the idiom of philosophical thought must inevitably precede its comprehension.

"Whether child-centered, curriculum-centered, or society-centered, the modern American needs at least one modern language not his own in his mental equipment. It is probably true that linguistic study has occupied too great a share of the time of the secondary school. Including the study of the native language, many students have hitherto brought to college from eleven to thirteen out of the sixteen year units, into which the four year high school course has been divided, of linguistic study. History and science have been the chief sufferers, and doubtless this situation should be corrected by a more equitable division of the time of the student.

"Moreover, it may well be questioned whether foreign language instruction has produced results commensurate with the time spent. Of this, modern language teachers themselves are well aware and have spent much time to restate and realign their objectives. Improvement has everywhere followed the adoption of these new aims. A Vassar student with one year's undergraduate study of German obtained the doctor's degree at a German speaking university this year after only two years of study, attending all lectures and offering herself for the final examinations in the German language. The success of the junior year in foreign universities has proved the ability of American undergraduates to make full use of their modern training.

"To sum up, modern languages are the indispensable instruments of internationalism, of comparative culture, and of the correction of chauvinism and parochialism in our national philosophy. They increase the vocabulary of thought as well as the literature of understanding. While recognizing that linguistic study is only one way to culture, American educators will be wisely advised in view of our geographical isolation to maintain modern languages on an equal footing with the social studies, the sciences, and the fine arts as one of the four main traveled roads to culture."

to penetrate the cautious Husker defense.

The last two minutes of the game were perhaps the most exciting and breath taking of the contest. Remy's under the basket field goal sent the Sooners ahead 32-31 after a 30-all tie had remained for several minutes. Parsons sank another field goal to boost the Husker stock by a single point, but Nelson swished a gift shot thru the hoop to make it 33-31. Connelley iced the game with another gift shot, even tho the Huskers attempted two frantic mid-court tosses that went wild, while the big clock showed one half minute to go.

Kovanda Looked Good.

The lad that received a tremendous ovation was Bill Kovanda, young Elk Creek forward, whose smooth floorwork and outstanding defensive play won him the plaudits of the fans. In fact, all nine of the Huskers turned in good performances but were rather shy in cashing in on the breaks that came their way.

By virtue of this victory, Hugh McDermott's Sooners move up into second place with three wins to one loss, trailing Kansas whose two conference games have gone to the Jayhawkers. Nebraska's record shows victories over Mizzou and Iowa State and Monday's loss to Oklahoma. Next home game is Feb 15 with Kansas State.

Now that Dana X. Bible is down in balmy Texas where oil and money gush freely, contemplating the change of his address from Lincoln to Austin, the task of speculating on a successor presents itself. It is not with much relish that this column performs such an ignoble function, mostly because of the fact that we'd regret D. X.'s departure keenly.

But the facts have to be faced. Texas is making him a proposition so lucrative that he could hardly refuse. After all, Coach Bible is not coaching football solely for his health. It is his livelihood, his bread and butter, and if the chance to get a little cake out of the deal appears, why not?

D. X. is over 45, oldest coach in the Big Six. Should he go to Texas for five or ten years at a greatly increased salary, he'll be able to retire inside a decade and make himself immune to the howls of the perennial grid wolves who can, and do, make coaching a mighty unpleasant task at times.

If he accepts the offers of Texas U., who will take his place? Will Harold Browne advance to the head coach job? Basketball might prevent this. Will Roy "Link" Lyman be promoted from line coach to head coach? Possible, but not probable. Perhaps Browne and Lyman will be handed the reigns together in an attempt to give them an opportunity as headmen before the university imports some other grid mandarin.

Speaking of importing a coach, how about some former Cornhuskers who have made good at other institutions? Francis Schmidt of Ohio State? Fred Thompson of Arkansas? Guy Chamberlain, who was recently voted as Nebraska's greatest gridder ever and who is now farming in Blue Springs, may be the man to coach Nebraska's football men. However, he has been out of the football business for some time, which fact may have soured him as a potential coach. "Chamey" enjoyed all sorts of success as a manager of pro grid teams.

Radical speculators have named Jock Sutherland of Pitt as a successor of D. X. The canny Scot dentist would never leave Pitt as long as he gets honors and victories galore at the Cathedral of Learning. Howard Jones of Southern California has been mentioned, along with Fielding Yost of Michigan, Bernie Bierman of Minnesota (never!), and numerous others.

Job of picking D. X.'s successor—if one is ever needed—will fall upon the athletic board of control whose recommendations are placed before the board of regents for final approval. As soon as D. X. tells the world he is shifting to Texas—if negotiations are completed at Austin—Nebraska's athletic board will assemble for drawn-out affairs of state.

Dr. Harry Kurz, chairman of the department of Romance languages, received a belated letter from his friend Prof. Juan Sespugues, a philosopher and at present a journalist in the city of Madrid. The letter, which shows that it has been examined as to content, was dated Dec. 17. According to the writer, Madrid is not lacking in food and coal. The residents of the city are proud of their stubborn defense and will continue to repel all attempts at capture. The Madrid educator deplores the selfish pacificity of European democracy in allowing the war to continue. Dr. Kurz hopes to visit Spain next summer.
