

Browne Comes Into His Own.

By Ed Steeves.

Last Saturday not only found a record smashing mob of 7,600 din-producing fans dislodging bleachers with excitement; it not only found the Huskers upsetting Kansas for its first championship stand; and not only found the Huskers shaking the long time Jayhawk heckling in the last home maple leaf of the year, but also kept Coach W. H. Browne's peerless record of advancement as clean as falling snow.

W. H. BROWNE

Seven years from Lincoln Journal ago Browne came to Nebraska U. as a freshman basketball and football coach after writing his own recommendation with myriads of champs at Lincoln high, his former post. Two years later he inherited the job as head basketball coach. In that year the Scarlet of Nebraska was only a dull pink as the Huskers came out dinked on the bottom of the pile as they usually did.

In Browne's first year at the helm he boosted his quint one notch, coming out fifth. In the next year he hoisted them another notch. Last year he made more rapid progress as he skipped and now place honors.

And second, he has in his fifth year of manipulating Nebraska maple leaves given them another skyward shove. This time it was a half notch as his forces placed. At this record in 1937.

With a record as presently advancing as the March of time, Coach Browne has all city barber shops aggravated because he so consistently keeps himself out of their cabbage range.

We could tell that John K. Selbeck, business manager, was pleased with Browne's deeds as we saw him hustling down the field house hall carrying another roll of tickets and a broad smile on his respected face.

Selbeck believes that basketball is coming into its own, what ever

JIM BELTZER ROLLS 262 IN INTRAMURAL BOWLING

Kappa Sig Takes Theta Chi As Greek Pin Artists Exhibit Wares.

Jimmy Beltzer turned in the high bowling score of the current season Monday night with a 262 game as Kappa Sigma breezed thru to a victory over Theta Chi 1516 to 11398 as the interfraternity bowling contest goes on and on.

Sigma Nu defeated Phi Kappa Psi 1484-1333 and Acacia continued to set the pace with a 1709 score as they took a forfeit from Sigma Chi.

Other high scores were Plimpton of Sigma Nu and Mitchell of Acacia with 209 and 201 respectively.

its own may be. With 7,600 tickets sold last night at $1.10 a crack, he felt that for the present at least, his itching palms were sufficiently scratched.

Doubling in the roles of wise cookies, (we know they were wise cookies because they had to be made of dough to get the ringside seats they did at such a late hour) several fans kept the outskirts of the Kansas-Nebraska game crackling all evening with their half fried humor.

One of their better attempts, which writer McBride has already published, suggested, Allen, your players might have been too tense, but their past tense now.

Another followed Harold Petz's long plea for "no smoking." Petz, of course, prattled on and on depicting the ills of nicotine as everything from stoop shoulders to a severe case of mother-in-law heckling. Listening to the whole plea intently he scratched his head and started after Dave "cheerleader" Bernstein with a seeking look in his eye. He was stopped by a companion and queried as to what his mission was.

"I'm goin' to ask him if the players mind if I take a little teeny chew of tabaccoy."

We've heard the pun done verbally on the famed Rock Chalk cheer, but we've never seen it in print. In Gregg McBride's summary of the exasperating Jay-Husker tussle he referred to the invaders as P. U.

The question is to whom should the reprimanding go; the copy reader or Gregg?

FOOTBALL DRAWS THROG TO JONES FOR OPENING DAY

football aspirants who reported for the first night of practice.

Twenty three lettermen are expected to report before the six weeks of drill close. Most of that number of vets were tagged up last evening. Fred Shirley, veteran all conference tackle, is in the University infirmary with an infected throat and may not be in shape for any intensive drilling this spring.

Jones found plenty of beef and experience in the line, but lacked the same in the ball carrying division. Speed will be personified next fall in Husker leather totting, but all of the backs are slight in stature.

No Breathing Spells.

The new coach informed his spring forces that they would have no breathing period this March, but instead they would start their fundamental diet earnestly and immediately. He will be assisted by newly elected Adolph Lewandowski, Ed Weir, Roy Lyman, W. H. Browne and Harold Petz. Browne will be occupied until the end of the week with caging of which he is head master.

The Huskers will lose most of their offensive spearheads in Lloyd Cardwell, Ron Douglas and Sam Francis, all backs. In the line, graduation will take John Ellis, Les MacDonald, Ken McGinnis and Virgil Yelkin.

Over a full quota of seasoned linemen will be back, but a full-back and a stalwart pair of half-backs need developing.

Those reporting for the first night's workout were:

King for the weekend by cutting loose for the Kansas jinx, 37-32, the Nebraska cagers awoke Monday with the stark realization that their tie for the conference crown was not definite. They must still defeat Iowa State tomorrow.

Huskers Work Hard.

With the hilarious laudatory praises still rising from Huskerland in appreciation of the noble job of lashing the cutting defolt to the favored Jays, Nebraska has put her nose back on the grind stone. Should the Cyclones sneak in and rob the Huskers of that victory, all the glory of the record breaking Scarlet play would have been for naught. Kansas would still be the scene of the Big Six and Nebraska would slip back into her tie with Oklahoma.

IF.

Three "ifs" are on hand in the explanations of the conference finish that has every fan hot on his heels.

IF Nebraska wins from Iowa State and Kansas drops a hot one to Missouri next Friday at Columbia, Nebraska will win the championship. Chances for such a shuffle are doubtful, but possible.

K. U. is more potent on paper, but Missouri bears several grudges against the Mt. Oread boys that may spell some Tiger preying.

IF Kansas stalks the Bengals and the Locals are caught without a cellar by the Cyclones, the Jays will climb back to a position of solitude on the top rung. This we will take up in a moment.

IF both Nebraska and Kansas get spanked in their remaining tilts, Oklahoma will join them on the throne and will end up the conference in a three deep stack. This is by far the most improbable, for some times one upset occurs, but two hardly ever!

This year Nebraska has once mauled the Corn Staters and the latter are still battling for their first conference win.

47TH ANNUAL ART EXHIBITION DRAWS STUDENT COMMENT

self-appointed critic paused before Reginald Marsh's "Wooden Horses" and divided the picture into sections in a conscientious desire not to miss any detail that should be appreciated.

After a reflective look at the merry-go-round and the young women riding the painted horses in holiday abandon, said the student to a teacher beside him: "You know what's wrong with that picture? The blonde's riding the wrong horse." The teacher looked blank and the young man pointed out: "She ought to be sitting on the middle one to balance things."

The Marsh painting is done in egg tempers. The artist uses an egg a day when working. He likes to paint crowds, according to the short biographical note posted by his picture, and occasionally resorts to a telescope to see them from his studio window. Sometimes, too, he uses a candid camera to catch some special grouping.

Comments of all of the students who wander thru the exhibition are not of the same caliber as those printed above. The vivid coloring, modern treatment and occasional beauty of the paintings draw sincere and intelligent appreciation from many.
