Prejudices at the Supreme Court Forum.

It was somewhat surprising and gratifying to note the number of law students, relief workers, professors and just people who brought their prejudices to the supreme court forum of yesterday morning.

Of course not everyone was chip shouldered. Rassler Jim Knight grinned widely and impartially. Paul Amen's white Olympic sweater did not quite distract his attention from the speaker.

By Another Name.

Ed Steeves, who divides his time between oracularizing the sports world and running a bit of a candy store, tells us that there is a consumers complex surrounding sales of "Forever Yours" bars.

God Helps Those.

Shotgun Remington, billed by the society writers as "everybody's friend," is in truth the getting-around-estest gent we know.

It seems that Mrs. McClintock hired a car, in which she purposed to see the town. As it stopped for the refreshment before her hotel, Mr. Remington expertly opened the door of the limousine for her, deftly seated her, closed the door and calmly climbed into the front seat with the chauffeur.

Tests Technique.

Her father very recently demoted her to the campus the power of intellectual appeal. Her mother is known socially to countless campus personages.

Removing her makeup and every vestige of joy from her countenance she approached the instructor in his office. She had got up from a sick bed, the throes of the flu, to take the test, and now she felt so wretched that she just couldn't go thru with it.

"Oh, but I want to take the test; I will try again. I feel better now," replied she weakly.

Finding of Prehistoric City Brings Fame to University

Archaeological Field Work Draws Nation-Wide Attention.

Fame of the university archaeological field party's work at Lynch, Neb., last summer has carried to all parts of the United States. On the basis of newspaper clippings received during the summer and fall, it is estimated that if all the columns of news set on this subject were laid end to end they would extend more than 533 feet, or more than two Lincoln city blocks including the streets.

Naturally the Nebraska papers gave this work of the department of sociology the greatest space.

Nebraska Goes 'Commercial': Funds Spent for Instruction Show Proportional Decline

Less than 60 percent of the 1936 university dollar was spent for the cost of instruction and maintenance of every school and college of the University of Nebraska, including the college of medicine hospital and the dental clinic.

What happened to the rest of the money? Twenty-one percent was spent for the agricultural college experiment stations and extension division. This expenditure includes state and federal money, spent under the provisions of such federal acts as the Bankhead-Jones, Morrill-Nelson, Smith-Lever, Adams, Hatch, Purnell, Capper, Ketcham, and the Federal Co-operative fund acts.

Seven percent was spent for such "special activities" as the legislative reference bureau the Nebraska blue book, and the conservation and survey division.

FRENCH DESCRIBES PICTURESQUE BARDS OF ITALY FOR PBK'S

The improvisatori, Italy's picturesque minstrels of the fifteenth century, were the subject upon which Dr. R. F. French of the romance language department addressed members of Phi Beta Kappa at the monthly meeting at the University club Tuesday evening.

Dr. French dwelt at length on defining the minstrel men as those professional poets who leisurely migrated among the Italian provinces with improvised lyrics and poems for court and festival assemblies.

Minstrels Had Tricks. "In this gamut from creation to plain reshuffling, the minstrel or improvisator was usually near enough to the lower end so that one can watch him reshuffle," said Dr. French. "He had his tricks just as our present-day musicians have in revising tunes and lyrics."

Reviewing the history of the lyrics, their rise, contribution to the world's literature and decline of their popularity, Dr. French acquainted his audience with the many improvisations or stock tricks employed by the improvisatori.

Exposes Trade Secrets. "They had their stock epics and similes which could be shuffled in such a way that they appeared to be entirely new accounts," stated Dr. French. Continuing in his country and the Chinese youth in America.

Give Him a Chance, Retain Balance Argue Debaters

Lawrence, Peterson Offer Pros, Cons on Court Reform at Forum.

With a dramatic plea to "give this nation a chance" and an opposing challenge to retain an "equilibrium which has another name, liberty," James E. Lawrence, editor of the Lincoln Star, and C. Petrus Peterson, prominent Lincoln attorney, went to the forensic mat Tuesday morning over the proposed judicial reform.

It was young men who founded this nation, not grandpas. "The proposal is neither inconsistent with or unusual when considered in the light of history," and "those gentlemen who framed the constitution simply didn't foresee that here might in the spring of 1937 arise an emergency," seemed in their very essence to form the backbone of the editor's defense to the president's proposal.

Opposes "Must" Jurisdiction. Following Editor Lawrence's to the speaking table Attorney Peterson charged that we must take a stand against the proposal for "must" jurisdiction as a running mate for "must" legislation, the overwhelming

ROOSEVELT COURT REFORM LOSES IN NEBRASKAN POLL

Forum Audience Registers Opposition by Vote Of 174 to 88.

One hundred and 74 ballots were cast against President Roosevelt's supreme court reform and 88 in favor of the measure in the Campus Opinion poll conducted by the Daily Nebraskan following the open forum in the Temple yesterday.

The Nebraskan has attempted during the past few weeks to present enlightened opinions on both sides of the question by throwing its columns open to professors and students. If those attending the forum can be considered as representative of the university as a whole, the results of the poll are indicative of the general attitude toward the reform on the campus.

The entire vote at the forum could not be tabulated because of the inability of all those present to reach the ballot boxes while leaving the Temple. Results of the poll, tabulated by colleges, follow:

Table with 3 columns: College, Against Change, For Change. Total: 174 Against, 88 For.

NEBRASKAN ACCOUNT LEADS BOYS TO DEFEND ACTION IN INCIDENT.

Editor's Note: In yesterday's paper appeared a story on a somewhat trivial matter at the campus police force and two junior boys. Either because of the enthusiasm of the reporter or the humor of the policemen, the incident in question, thinking the story should have a different slant, asked to present their version. Following is their account:

By Two Meek, Frightened Janitors The true facts are: Sunday morning at 4:30 the alarm clock woke two little boys telling them the coliseum must be scrubbed. They proceeded toward the west stadium where the time clock is located. On the way over one of them decided to stop at Social Science to get his leather work gloves. In order to get the gloves he turned on the hall lights, got his gloves, turned out the lights and left the building.

Purchased and improved by the United States government in 1923, the cavern is the largest on the North American continent, and it is unknown how many more hundreds of miles lie unexplored beyond the 32 miles thus far surveyed. A single large chamber in the underground network is reputed to be capable of containing all of the other caverns and caves in North America with room to spare.
