High school coaches from over the state got one of the coldest receptions ever yesterday at the football clinic when the mercury dropped to a freezing mark. The fairly well filled stadium of early afternoon was combed by the chilly fingers of the blast until only a small shivering gathering remained at the final whistle of the exhibition grid game. Most of the poppas of prep athletics were foobtall and its how's and why's as in the new "Biff" Jones and his stand by watching his every move to see what they could expect when the drums roll next fall. By the end of the afternoon his spring forces seem to have turned the visiting mentor's scrutiny to firm endorsement. All that we heard was muttering that, "he is all right."

The coaches clinic is held every year for the benefit of the high chool coaches of Nebraska. Any problems of the game which they have encountered during the year, they may bring to town when they come to the clinic.

Fred Shirey, regular all confer-ence tackle of last season, was out hobbling up and down the sidelines yesterday after a prolonged siege of throat trouble. Shirey had his tonsils removed. Considering tonsilectomy as a child's operation he rose in a couple of days to carry on in his usual gaety of the world which included a date on a certain week end.

The result was a backset with throat infection and pneumonia. First he lay between the quilts of the school infirmary and was later transferred to the Lincoln General hospital. He will see no football action this spring, but will be out in full glory next fall.

Still featuring the "Biffian" passes, the Nebraska 1937 varsity football eleven bowled the Green Shirts 13-0, yesterday afternoon at the high school coaches' clinic in Memorial stadium. An unexpected cold wave hovered over the stadium that cut the anticipated crowd in half and kept play on the dead run.

For an entire half, play merely see-sawed back and forth in midfield, featuring stalwart defense in both lines. Andrews and Howell broke through for some sparse runs for the Reds and Mather and Ball were the only ones who met much success in first half Green story of the week, we propose the battle being waged, mostly on the front page of the DAILY NORTH-WESTERN between the Navy unit and the American Student Union

It seems that the Navy officers-who give Northwestern students the equivalent of Nebraska's military training-told their students they couldn't attend any more open forum discussions on peace, and their edict was backed with penalties, because the students that ran them were a bunch of "communists." The Daily pointed out that a little issue of academic freedom was involved, and the fight began in earnest. For latest details, be in the Nebraskan office when the mailman comes.

SPEAKING OF COMMUNISTS, Senator J. V. Weber of Minnesota brought formal charges in a senate ouster resolution against five Gopher professors, professing "documentary evidence" of communist activity. It seems that the professors supported recognition of a campus communist club, which met to discuss, not to propagandize. The editorial answer in the Minnesota Daily is summed up in the title: "Mr. Weber won't allow it-but the constitution does." Reminds us of the last time the Omaha Bee-News sent reporters down here to uncover a hotbed of communism. We hope Mr. Weber's efforts meet with a similar fate.
