SEEN ON THE CAMPUS.

People slithering in the mud, slushing through the puddles and attempting to console their bedraggled selves in the mirror with the cheering thought of what the rain is doing to the crops . . . one of the little lakes was too big for Jean Leftwich to hurdle so Bob played the modern Raleigh and carried her across . . . Mary Margaret Mailey going to school the long way in order to give some of her gentlemen friends lifts in Harry Haynie's car without encountering the owner . . . slipping in the bathtub is bad enough in itself, but when you break a front tooth it's really catastrophic isn't it Margaret Collins . . . Dal Tassie's "Pluto" serves the purpose on sunny days but the dozen or more leaks in the roof cast a bit of a damper on the spirits in this weather . . . thanks be to whatever philanthropic impulse moved the Drug to create an improvised bridge of sorts . . . the Alpha Phi's are taking advantage of Maxine Rutledge and sending her to their classes to take notes . . . and here comes the news we wait for each spring, the Park opens the 31st.

MICKEY RECOMMENDS SENDING CAPITAL SOIL

Good Publicity for State To Ship Trainload of Fertile Earth.

Prof. Clark E. Mickey, chairman of the department of civil engineering at the university, while in Washington, D. C. recommended to Congressman C. G. Binderup of Nebraska that people of this state send a trainload of their good fertile soil to the nation's capital to be used there on federal lawns and parks. Professor Mickey returned from Washington after several conferences with PWA authorities on the United Power and Irrigation district's application for funds to construct dams and reservoirs in the vicinities of Cambridge, Arapahoe, and Oxford.

Help Government Laws.
"A shipment of some of Nebraska's soil would be the best advertising this state could receive in the east," said Mickey. "That part of the country requires almost 1 inches of rainfall a year in order to raise any crops, and even then the ground must be fertilized frequently."

If a good lawn back there is to be expected, he stated, a proper top dressing must be applied. In his opinion, a trainload of "good old" Nebraska soil would be welcomed by the government's groundkeepers—and Nebraska would be getting the kind of advertising it needs.

ELECTION DATES OF HOLD OVER, NEW COUNCIL MEMBERS MAKE BALANCE OF ISSUES

tant issue that will come before the council this afternoon is the setting of the date for the spring election. In past years the election has been held sometime early in May. If the student body votes in the April 13 election to abolish the names of factions from the ballot, this spring election will be the first in which the faction names have been omitted.

The two month controversy split between the council, the Innocent's Society, and the Corn Cobs will see the final curtain this afternoon when the council gives its final ap-
