SERIES OF THEFTS END WITH ARREST OF ROTT

Police Find Solution to Campus Robberies With Capture.

Solution of a series of thefts which have baffled police for more than a year was reached yesterday in the arrest of Bohumil Rott, 22, salesman for the Fuller Brush company, living at 1121 Q street.

In his apartment were found articles ranging from pipes and razors to the typewriters and radios stolen within the past few months from the Temple. The typewriter belonging to Father Obrist, Catholic student pastor, which was stolen on Jan. 5, and the one belonging to Stewart Wright, field secretary for the national peace movement, which was stolen May 12, have both been identified among the articles recovered.

Of the two radios, one, a 7 tube set valued at $30, has been identified as that belonging to Sigurd Burkland, 1609 R. The set was taken from the room of the Delian Union at the Temple on March 3. Most recent of the thefts was that of several photo-flood bulbs

ISE RECOMMENDS MORE HISTORY IN ECONOMIC STUDY

Kansas Advocates Abolition Of First-Year Courses On 'Principles.'

Prof. John Ise of the economics department of the University of Kansas told a group of economists and professors of business administration in Social Sciences building Tuesday afternoon that introductory courses in economics, known as "elements of economics," probably should be eliminated from the college schedule. In Professor's Ise's opinion, these facts are generally taught in advanced courses, thus resulting in considerable duplication.

In place of these courses, the Kansas educator recommended that first year students be required to take courses in economic history, which would give the student a proper background for his later advanced work. The speaker lamented the fact that economic departments have been abandoned by many schools, and lauded the scholarly broadmindedness of Dean J. E. LeRossignol, who, he said, was not allowing the college of business administration at the university to become a specialized school for future business men.

700 Ag Students to Make Campus Ring With Music

Staging of First All College Song Festival Set for Friday Night.

Holdrege street campus will find thunderous voice for the first time in many years this Friday night at 7 o'clock when from 500 to 700 students and faculty members will gather on the pageant grounds to participate in the first official ag college sing, sponsored by the Creative Activities board.

Lilacs and snowy bridal wreath will form a colorful setting for the outdoor sing fest, and, Milton Gustafson, chairman of the board, admits that he's counting on the sun to set promptly at 7:15, to add that certain something to the background. According to the calendar, Gustafson states, the sun should make a brilliant exit from the scene just fifteen minutes after the ag sing has begun, and Gustafson is putting his trust in the solar system for the completing touch to the decorations.

Faculty to Attend Affair.

All ag students and faculty have been invited to attend the affair. Leading the community singing will be Ogden Riddle, who cooperated with Katherine Jones and Mrs. Altinas Tullis to arrange the program, which will include a pantomime and the enactment of several songs by the Dramatics club, a division of the Creative Activities group.

Praising the project of an all-college sing as an "excellent idea," Miss Margaret Fedde declared it "one of the finest ways I know in which to build college and university spirit." Dr. T. H. Gooding, of the agronomy department, also approved the proposed sing, recommending it as a means of interesting indifferent students.

Dr. Holck Co-Edits Article Disproving Cigarette Hoax

Professors Find New Con- tents No Less Irritating To Smokers.

Dr. Harold G. O. Holck and Dr. A. J. Carlson, the latter of the University of Chicago faculty, were the co-authors of an article on the irritating qualities of various cigarettes. The article appeared in the latest issue of Proceedings of the Society for Experimental Biology and Medicine, published by the society.

In their article they dispelled the claim that diethylene glycol put into cigarettes made them less irritating than if glycerine were put into them. Glycerine, a hygroscopic agent, is put into cigarettes to retain the moisture in them. Some manufacturers have claimed that their cigarettes, made with the glycol, were less irritating to the throat than those made with glycerine. As a result of their experiments, however, Doctors Holck and Carlson were able to refute this statement.

Studied at Chicago.

Dr. Holck, who received his Ph. D. degree and Doctor of Science at the University of Chicago, where he was a member of the faculty for thirteen years, came here from that institution last fall to be an associate professor of pharmacology in the college of pharmacy. Dr. Carlson and he performed their experiments on the subject of their article last summer at Chicago university.

Their findings have been further substantiated by a paper published cia, will serve as vice president, John Bishop, Sigma Phi Epsilon, as secretary; Martin Oelrich, Beta Sigma Psi, as treasurer, and Jim Ivins, Kappa Sigma and Earl Hedlund, Farm House, as representatives of the alumni board of control.

In addition to the election of officers, attention at last night's meeting centered around the postponement of the annual spring banquet of the council until next fall. Belief was expressed by council members that lack of interest in the banquet at the present time would make it advisable to postpone the event until next fall, at which time scholarship trophies and intramural awards, including the Jack Best trophy, will be presented.

Observe Rush Rules.

The necessity of strict observance of rushing rules was emphasized before council members by Prof. E. F. Schramm, faculty sponsor of the group. All regulations will be enforced this year, and fines will be charged offenders who disobey regulations, Schramm announced.
