AS JOHNNY SEES IT

After taking the worst ribbing of my life, I'm ready to start all over again. Even the summer has drawn to a close, several former Nebraska coeds tripped the light fantastic down the middle aisle yesterday. Vera Mae Peterson, that charming Tri Delt, was wed to Edgard Yinger. The bride had planned to make a career of Shakespeare on the stage before she met her Romeo, who got his bachelor's degree in Journalism at Trinity university and his master's at Northwestern.

Another ceremony performed yesterday in Lincoln was that of Miss Mary Gavin, late of the Phi Psi Delta Gamma Gavins, and the Honorable Norman Galleher, mayor of Stuart and affiliated with Delta Tau Delta.

While I'm on the subject of romances, I wonder how the triangle of Wadhams and Hilsbeck, brother Sigma Nu's and the young lady who lives down the street at the Phi Phi house, Eleanor Rickel is progressing? The latest report was that Wadhams was taking the lead but Hilsbeck is calling the signals pretty close.

The new Phi Delt house, christened "Charley's place" by Thornton and the rest of the Sig Alphas was also the subject of a quip by Beta Marsh passing thru town; he named it the "Silo." You boys are just jealous!

If you have a moment to waste sometime soon, you might drop in on Carl Arndt and ask him to tell you about his summer vacation on the west coast, while it is still fresh in his mind. At this point I think I will take a much needed rest.

AS MARY ANNA SEES IT

The rag players have joined forces to produce an eight act drama entitled, "If He Could Only Knit." The production shows our versatile society editor in a role admirably suited to his talents. Scene 1: the curtain rises Johnny is busy in the kitchen slowly afternoons from 12 to 3, because of the heat of the day."

If the Dominican business places thought it best to close for three hours during those comfortable afternoons, then he feels sure that all business should be discontinued here all thru the summer. Like everyone else who visits the southern climes during the hot season of the year Dr. Van Royen took along only a light summer suit. But due to the more humid atmosphere of the tropics he was forced to discard his American apparel and have a suit tailored out of drill material. The goods is so much heavier than what people are accustomed to wearing in Nebraska during the summer that he is doubtful if he will be able to wear it here much of the time.

Clothing Cheap.
"Clothing is cheap down there," he said. "The material and tailoring only cost me $7. Inasmuch as my objective was field work, I went little prepared for dress-up occasions and naturally was surprised to find that every self-respecting person down there wears a coat all the time. In fact, it is an established tradition that no one will stroll thru the parks without a coat. Another American and I, having just returned from a day's work in the field, chanced to walk thru one of the parks in Santo Domingo before returning to our rooms in the hotel. We were at a loss to know why the natives kept staring at us as we sauntered down the promenade until the manager of our hotel warned us that unless we appeared in better dress on future occasions in the park we would be subject to arrest."

Queer Social Customs.
While chiefly engaged in gathering data of economic and geographic importance, Dr. Van Royen nevertheless had an opportunity of becoming acquainted with other Dominican social customs. The young girls are well guarded there, he says. The boy never is allowed to accompany a girl friend to a theater without taking along at least two or three other women companions. The theaters there have helped solve the man's problems, however, for everywhere rates have been established so that the boy can take three girls for the price of one.

The university educator said 100 percent co-operation and assistance was given him by all governmental officials. He was impressed with the rapid progress that is being made on every front. For example, the hurricane of 1930 completely leveled the entire capital of the Dominican Republic, but now the city has been rebuilt in spite of the fact that there is no property tax. The tax, however, is high on many imports, both luxuries and staples. American cigarettes cost 60 cents a package, so that the average tourist quickly adopts the local product.

Everyone fingerprinted.

Every citizen there, regardless of rank or file, must have his picture taken, his finger prints registered, and give information concerning his address and business, all of which enables the government to keep a check on the unruly elements of the population.
