

Biffer Sends Out S. O. S. to Secure Cyclone Defense

Injury-Riddled Lineup Finds Anderson for Howell, Pfeiff for English.

BILL CALLIHAN cause of a broken nose, Quarterback Johnny Howell decided to partake of yesterday's dummy scrimmage. While attempting to knock down a blocking dummy, Howell injured the ailing offensive back so badly that he had to leave the field.

Callihan replaces McIlravy. Replacing McIlravy at fullback is Wild Bill Callihan of Grand Island. Tipping the scales at 190 pounds, Callihan made his debut in Husker grid history as he took a pass from Harris Andrews for the winning tally in the Minnesota game.

For Howell's post at quarterback Coach Jones is grooming Bill Anderson. Anderson, a skillful passer, caught his first taste of varsity competition in last Saturday's thrilling contest.

To the utter surprise of all Husker football fans, Lowell English, burly guard, was shifted to fullback position on the second varsity string. Bestowed with plenty of speed, English, so believes the Biffer, should make a good understudy at fullback to McIlravy and Callihan.

Pfeiff for English. At English's old haunt was placed Bill Pfeiff, stocky guard from Lincoln. Weighing more than 200 pounds, Pfeiff played a brilliant game in aiding his teammates down the highly touted Gophers.

Since the entire squad is still weary from its last battle, Mentor Jones plans to take things rather easy despite the fact that Iowa State is to be played this coming Saturday. Wednesday, the Biffer will have the freshmen run Iowa State plays against the varsity.

Adolph Lewandowski, frosh mentor, who scouted the Iowa State-Northwestern game, heaped praise galore upon the Amesmen even though they were defeated 33 to 0. He returned with an armful of Cyclone tactics which will be meted out to the yearlings.

Passing Stressed Again. Passing, which played havoc with Minnesota, was given a thorough airing at yesterday's workout. Bill Anderson, Johnny Howell, Harris Andrews and Thurston Phelps did the lion's share of flipping, and many of their heaves found receivers.

The Husker forward wall, which outplayed Minnesota's, was given some new slants on the art of blocking and tackling. Line Coach Roy Lyman is highly elated over the showing of his primary defense.

On the No. 1 varsity team were Amen and Dohrmann, ends; Doyle and Shirley, tackles; Mehring and Pfeiff, guards; Brock, center; Anderson, quarterback; Andrews and Dodd, halfbacks, and Callihan, fullback. Substituting for Amen at end was Richardson.

'MAC' OUT OF DANGER DECLARES DR. DEPPEN

Possibility of Skull Fracture Not Yet Determined, State Doctors.

Altho the Lincoln General hospital reported no marked improvement in the condition of Eldon McIlravy, injured Husker fullback, late Tuesday, he was considerably better Tuesday morning. Dr. Earl N. Deppen said "Mac" was absolutely out of danger, and would probably require no surgery. The doctor is not sure if there is a skull fracture as no X-rays have been taken. The possibility is that there is only a severe brain concussion as the brain hemorrhage has completely disappeared. It was reported, McIlravy has partially recovered his senses and seems to recognize people about him.

paper that he and Mrs. McIlravy were not admitted to the Cornhusker dressing rooms when their son was injured, Frank McIlravy, the fullback's father, said yesterday: "I don't know where the report came from, but there is no truth in it. As soon as my wife and I reached the dressing room door we were admitted by an officer and received courteous treatment."

Attending the injured player besides Dr. Deppen are Drs. Harry Everett and K. S. J. Hohlen.

THREE LEAGUE I ELEVENS RETAIN CLEAN RECORDS

Phi Gam, Alpha Tau Omega, and Pi K. A. Survive Second Round.

STANDINGS FOR LEAGUE ONE
Phi Gamma Delta .....1.000
Alpha Tau Omega .....1.000
Pi Kappa Alpha .....1.000
Farm House ..... .000
Chi Phi ..... .000
Beta Sigma Psi ..... .000

League one of the tough football leagues swung into the second round of play Tuesday evening with Phi Gamma Delta, Alpha Tau Omega and Pi Kappa Alpha keeping their status clear of defeat.

Phi Gamma Delta handed the Chi Phi their second straight setback by a score of 12 to 0. The first Phi Gam score came in the first quarter when Batum threw a short pass to Elliot in the end zone. The last score, and the most spectacular, came in the fourth quarter when George Drost, speed merchant from North Platte, returned a punt sixty yards.

Pi Kappa Alpha-Farm House tilt ended in a 0 to 0 tie, making an extra period necessary. The Pi K's won by outyarding the Farm House crew in the extra period. Both teams turned in excellent performances and it was impossible to point out any outstanding players.

Alpha Tau Omega defeated Beta Sigma Psi 7 to 0 to stay in the undefeated class. The ATO's winning score came in the third quarter when Gist completed a 35 yard pass to Cullen. Gist threw to Vierig for the extra point.

Teams in league two will play for the second time this evening. In games scheduled, Sigma Chi plays Phi Sigma Kappa, Phi Kappa Psi meets Theta Chi, and Alpha Alpha Epsilon tangles with Zeta Beta Tau.

B TEAM TO OPEN GRID SEASON HERE FRIDAY

Squad of 17 Players Hold First Drill in Preparation For Wayne.

With their first game only three days away, the "B" team football squad held its initial scrimmage last night. They will open their season with a game against the Wayne State Teachers college here this Friday.

Last night the squad practiced until around 6 o'clock learning formations and plays. Following a dummy scrimmage, the plays were tried out under fire with the freshman third team on the defensive.

So far only about 17 men have turned out for practice, according to Harold Petz, coach, who issued a call yesterday for more candidates. Several more are expected to report but there are still plenty of positions open.

Y. W. C. A. SECRETARY GIVES ADVICE ON LIFE AT VESPER MEETING

"That's when you do your best thinking, your most creative work. We must take time out to collect our thoughts, to be ourselves."

"Be Yourself." That parents have faith in their children and that students must have faith in themselves was stressed by Miss Green. "Give your own inward qualities a chance to develop. Be yourself!"

Excerpts from "Letters by Larry" illustrated various points in Miss Green's address. "We live in deeds, not years; in thoughts, not heartbeats; feelings, not figures on a dial. He most lives who thinks most, feels noblest, acts best," she concluded.

In charge of devotionals was Mary Frances Wittera. Frances Marshall, Vesper chairman, introduced the speaker. Zella Matheny, violin; June Meek, cello, accompanied by Mildred Buell, played "Liberation" by Strauss.

Frances Lindblad explained the purpose of the freshman commission groups and introduced other leaders, Mary Arblman, Eleanor Anderson, Elizabeth Smith, Muriel White, Betty Clabe, Margaret Meyer, Lois Cooper, Agnes Novacek.

'Thumbs Up for Johnny!' Say Co-Eds

It's thumbs up as far as Johnny Howell is concerned, since the smashing victory which he helped to "win by a nose." Two black eyes, in addition to the broken nose, were trophies which Johnny carried away from the Saturday game. But he still looks pretty good to Mary Margaret Maly, Delta Gamma, Lincoln; Harriet Cummer, Kappa Kappa Gamma, Ashland; Louise Sneekloth, Alpha Chi Omega, Lincoln; Virginia Nolte, unaffiliated, Lincoln, and Gertrude Grosvenor, unaffiliated, Aurora.

McILRAVY'S SAY SON MAY PLAY AGAIN.

Do you want the real truth about Eldon McIlravy's injuries? There has been so much idle, or should we say, rumor flitting about that no one seemingly knows the straight of the Husker fullback's condition. McIlravy was hurt critically last Saturday while blocking for a punt; that is pretty generally agreed, but how near death did he come? Not as near as common talk had him last night, say

ELDON MCILRAVY, team physician. His chance for recovery, at all times was far better than 50-50.

True enough, when the Tecumseh lad was carried from the field he was breathing only intermittently, but this is often true of unconscious people. Later at the hospital he was put in the iron lung for assistance in respiration. Contradictory to common opinion, Mac was not operated on. In fact, his attending doctors state that surgery might be fatal and that it is entirely unnecessary. It is still unknown, however, whether or not he has a fractured skull.

All night Saturday, while others celebrated the mighty victory hilariously, the boy's father and mother sat by his bedside, worried by his unnatural breathing.

When Mac was told of the victory late Sunday night when he first regained consciousness, he only murmured, "What game?"

Yesterday, however, he recognized his brother and parents and seemed much improved.

Will McIlravy play again? "If he wants to play again, there's no good in stopping him," said his mother.

His father agreed. "I guess it will be up to him. He has always been crazy about football. Maybe he won't want to play now. I don't know."

Dr. Deppen, his physician, merely stated that he would see the boy well before he sanctioned any more football. The doctor also said that he was not sure when the injury really happened. It might have been in the first half.

Eldon has close to a 90 average in his university academics, coming to university from Tecumseh on a regents scholarship.

His brother, Noel, was an all state guard in high school and played one year of football here at Nebraska, but was too light for varsity.

Calling 'Em

Kansas State

A pitiful state may well describe the K-State football situation this fall despite the show of vim, vigor and vitality by a throng of green sophomores who turned out for Coach Fry's early practice. Why? Fourteen full fledged Wildcats played their final game and said farewell to football that brisk Thanksgiving afternoon a year ago.

That's an irreparable loss and just what K-State can muster out of scant material remains to be seen. The not-so-wild cats have scheduled games with Boston college, Marquette, Creighton and Washburn in addition to its loop contests, which should reduce the Wildcat to a docile, toothless, claw-less tabby.

Few K-State Veterans.

No longer does Fry pin his faith on a light weight line. He tried that system and it fizzled. Up forward, where a last year guard of vets continues to hold out, stands End Ray Ellis, center Ken Nordstrom and Guard Caesar Augustus Cardarelli. Tough-fibred Caesar Augustus will make opposing line-men recall the days when Roman gladiators said it with lead padded mitts. Sophomores Carl Heaton and Will Beezley are fighting it out neck to neck for first call at the outer berth. Tackles will be Shirley Davis, Ed Hayes and Aaron Sheets.

Fair-haired boy in the K-Aggie backfield is long legged Howard Cleveland, one of the conference's finest quarterbacks. Veteran half backs will be Don Beeler, George Rankin and Clayton Matney. Things always, however, seem to look bad for Kansas State before the season opens and then suddenly they spurt like champions. They'll do the same this year. Every team in the conference is pointing for Nebraska and the crown the Huskers wear. Who knows, maybe it'll be mediocre K-State that will perform the near-miracle.

Chemical Engineers Plan Year's Activity Tonight

All chemical engineers are requested to attend a monthly meeting this evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Avery laboratory, room 14.

There will be talks by senior chemistry students on their experiences in the chemical industry this summer. Plans will also be made for the club's coming activities.

UNIVERSITY NOTES.

As in other years the university is exchanging a student with a school in France. This year the French government has given Miss Vera Kelley of Wood River a grant covering maintenance and tuition at the University of Grenoble. In exchange Nebraska is receiving Mme. Simone Thierry who will reside at Carrie Bell Raymond hall. Also studying in Paris this year is Robert Stookey of Rushville.

Dr. G. L. Spencer of the dental staff will speak at the southwestern district dental society meeting at Red Oak, Ia., Oct. 11 on the subject "Office Management."

Dr. R. E. Sturdevant of the college of dentistry is slated to address the Lincoln Dental society meeting at the Lincoln hotel Monday night.

"The Diffraction Pattern Due to an Absorbing Prism," is the title of an article and study by Dr. Roy Spencer of the department of physics. The article was printed in a recent issue of the Journal of the Optical Society of America.

Lucille Mills, a graduate student in pharmacy, is author of an article entitled "The Use of Cetyl Alcohol as an Enteric Coating Material" which appeared in a recent issue of the Journal of the American Pharmaceutical Association.

"The Effect of Diet on Enteric Coated Tablets" is the title of an article by Dr. F. S. Bukey of the college of pharmacy which appeared in the Journal of Laboratory and Clinical Medicine.

Dr. D. A. Worcester of the teachers college addressed a general teachers meeting Saturday at Grand Island on "Conflicting Psychologies of Learning."

"Scholarship as a Factor in Teaching Success" is the title of an article by Dr. Dewey B. Stuit of teachers college which appeared in a recent issue of School and Society.

'YOU CAN'T TAKE IT WITH YOU' FINDS KAUFMAN ADOPTING NEW STYLE

Latest Play of Prominent Writer Far Cry From Earlier Successes.

George S. Kaufman has evidently come to the conclusion that one must not take life too seriously, perhaps as a result of his being exposed as love interest number one in the outpouring of Mary Astor's the-truth-the-whole-truth - and - nothing - but - the - truth diary, for his recent "You Can't Take It With You," in collaboration with Moss Hart, is a far cry from the sophisticated pessimism of "Of Thee I Sing" and "Let 'Em Eat Cake," or of the sparkling but somewhat cynical "First Lady." In his latest play Kaufman is not trying to reform anybody or anything. He does not even thumb his nose at anyone.

The New Deal comes in for a bit of comment when Donald, the boy-friend of the colored maid, in reply to an offer of a job, answers: "Yes, sir, only I can't take no money for it this year, because if the Government finds out I'm working they'll get sore."

Finds Satire Mild. But this quip is so gentle that we think it must be the one Big Jim Farley was telling F. D. R. the time the President nudged Farley in the ribs on that afternoon of the democratic mid-summer rush party. Likewise we suspect Nicholas Murray Butler of this one:

"Was it a nice commencement, grandpa?" "Wonderful. They get better every year... And much funnier speeches than they had last year."

"You want to listen to a good speech you go up and hear Father Divine."

"I'll wait—they'll have him at Columbia."

"You Can't Take It With You" is one of those hilarious comedies that, because of its absurdities, and because of the tremendous pace with which the madly preposterous people read their lines, roll you in the aisles during an actual performance, but which does not make particularly entertaining reading.

Grandpa Collects Snakes. The setting is New York—just around the corner from Columbia university. The people, we are led to believe, make up a grouping that could be found only—"just around the corner from Columbia university."

First there is Grandpa Vander-

hof. Thirty-five years ago grandpa went to his office one morning, and came right home again. He never went back; life, he felt, should be spent in doing what one most enjoys. So for thirty-five years grandpa has been going to circuses and commencing and collecting live snakes for the living-room solarium.

Penny Writes Shockers. Then there is Penny Vanderhof, a true daughter of grandpa. She is the mother of grown daughters, Essie and Alice, but she has the "Divine urge," and so she writes plays. They never get finished, but their plots are nothing if not sensational. Penny lives her plays and she is apt to burst forth with such startling lines as, "Kenneth, my virginity is a priceless thing to me," in the midst of other people's conversations. Grandpa and Penny are real creations as well as whimsical characters. The other members of the family are hardly convincing.

Paul Makes Firecrackers. Paul, the husband of Penny, makes firecrackers which go off at unexpected moments. Essie, their daughter, aspires to the ballet. She wears ballet slippers throughout the entire play and whenever music starts she begins dancing. Ed, her husband, possesses a xylophone and a printing press; he indiscriminately performs on both. The other daughter, Alice, provides the heart interest as she is in love with her boss' son, Tony. Tony's parents come to grandpa's for dinner; his father has indigestion and his mother believes in spiritualism.

Mr. De Pinna, an iceman, came eight years ago to pose for Penny as the "Discus Thrower" and is still there. Rhea and Donald, between whom exists an unconventional relationship, are of "no uncertain hue." Kolenkhov, the ballet master, is an exile from Russia. There are still others.

Did we say that "You Can't Take It With You" is this year's Pulitzer prize play? But then—"Gone With the Wind" is this year's Pulitzer prize novel.

250 FRESHMEN GIRLS GO TO MASS MEETING OF COED COUNSELORS

Charm School Draws Most Coeds; Other Hobby Groups Explained.

Two-hundred and fifty freshman women showed their interest in hobbies last night when they attended a mass meeting at Ellen Smith hall for the purpose of signing for membership in one or more of the hobby groups sponsored by the Coed Counselors.

Charm School drew the largest number of coeds after Miss Elsie Ford Piper, assistant dean of women, had explained the history of the group that dates back six years. Virginia Fleetwood, Coed Counselor board sponsor, and Virginia Griawold, leader, announced that the first session of the school will be held next Tuesday night when Dean Amanda Heppner will speak on "A Gracious Personality."

To explain the work of the knitting group for the new women, Frances Seudder, sponsor, and Martha Leifers, leader, presented a style show of knitted frocks and suits with the assistance of a New York knitting expert.

Other hobby groups that are being sponsored this year by the Coed Counselors are a scrap book club led by Bonnie Burn and Kay Risser, board sponsor, a tap dancing group led by Theda Chapoton and Fern Steuterville, board director, and a dramatics club directed by Jean Gist with the assistance of Virginia Nolte, member of the board.
