HUSKERS WILL STRIP MIZZOU TIGERS OF STRIPES

Three weeks ago we picked Minnesota over Nebraska 13-7, the score was 14-0, Nebraska. Two weeks ago we chose the Huskers winner by 21 points and the Jones boys won by 14; this was our closest deal. Last week our conviction was Nebraska 12-0 over Oklahoma and the Sooners tied us 0-0. So today we tell you the method of our success.

Now take this Missouri-Nebraska angle that comes up tomorrow at Columbia. How will that come out, we say to ourselves. Now most people run out and buy up all the latest grid magazines to look up gridiron records of the two teams and their prospects. Or they traverse the vicinity of the sports minded people for common opinion or sometimes they cheat by asking the respective coaches about the game.

Was Original System. But now take us, do we do these things? No!

We line the two elevens up side by side. We look at them. Which one has the prettiest colored jerseys, we say? Well, red, on the whole, is the best hue, so the Huskers usually get our vote.

We used to use the eerie meenie minie moe system, till we forgot the cadence and then we stooped to a simpler method.

Sometimes we add up all the jersey numbers of the first strings of both sides and then divide by four. When the two results are obtained, we pick the home team.

Bengals Due for Slaughter. Other predicting strategy comes by running to the nearest caking house and counting the cigarette butts in the booth ash tray. This determines the score. Then we have one of our companions think of a letter of the alphabet. If the letter he names comes closer to "Nebraska" then we take the other team, or versa visa.

Or then sometimes we just line up a couple of U hall cockroaches and dubbing one "Huskers" and one "Foes," let them battle it out for game honors.

So, using a system not yet divulged to the public we pick McConey Jones' battling Cornhuskers to play the best game of their season tomorrow. And unless the Townsend pension checks come thru this week, the Huskers should win some 20-0 over the Mizzou Tigers.

That's our story and we're stuck on it.

Remember the Shuckers have learned their lesson and have been working plenty hard, scoring 12 touchdowns per night against the frosh.

Huskers to Risk Right to Victory Bell in Columbia

With the Huskers and their followers tonight will go the Nebraska-Missouri victory bell whose possession Nebraska will risk on the gridiron Saturday.

The bell, almost as traditional as the game itself, has a long and interesting history. It first appeared in 1898 when the Phi Deltis and Delta, living together at the time, took it from a Negro church near Seward. The Phi Deltis claimed possession of it, and in the ensuing years the two fraternities fought for its possession so hotly that in 1927 the university interceded.

Rivalry Bell Recast. Coach "Pa" Schulte suggested that the bell be awarded annually to the winner of the Nebraska-Missouri game, in recognition of the long and friendly rivalry between the two schools. He had the bell recast, and the original was discarded. First possessor was Missouri, who had won the 1927 game, but they kept it for just one year, because the Huskers won in 1928 and have not lost since then.

Innocent society has charge of the bell, and will display it on the field at half time Saturday. If Nebraska wins or ties, the bell will come back to its resting place for the last nine years in the N. Clubrooms. If Missouri wins, the bell will stay in Columbia until Nebraska beats the Tigers.

HUSKERS STALK BENGALS AT MIZZOU

HUSKERS MEET STRONGEST BIG SIX OPPONENT

Authorities Favor Nebraska in Crucial Loop Game Tomorrow.

After tapering off with one of the most "satisfying" workouts of the season, the Nebraska Cornhuskers began packing their luggage for Columbia, where they will stalk the Missouri Tiger. The Big Six contest, which will get under way at 2 p. m., holds a major portion of the Huskers' conference fate.

BILL ANDERSON

Missouri has lost two of her three starts, one to Colorado State 14-6 and one to Michigan 2-0. Her other engagement she won 14-7. Thus far the Mizzou team has exhibited power to spare and loom in the Huskers' path as one of the tougher barriers. Preseason dope had the Bengals and Oklahoma listed as the twin threats of the Big Six and slated to give the Nebraska a run for their shuckles.

Reports come from Columbia that the Tigers have been working as they have never worked before, pointing for the defending champs as the high spot of their 1937 schedule. The Mizzou lineup will be intact, it was reported yesterday. Earlier reports had it that a crippled Missouri eleven would take to the field.

Bill Anderson will replace the injured Howell at quarterback. The former won his spurs last week against the Sooners with his fine showing in punting a 44 play selection. Despite rumors that Adna Dobson or Bill Pfeiff will get the starting call, the starting lineup issued yesterday included Lowell English as his regular guard spot. The regular line-up has been slighting injury and has reported for the last few drills a la sweat suit.

Both teams have been well stocked on the other's plays, and consequently have spent the week drilling on special defenses to halt the opponents' drives. Nebraska has been all fire for the last five workouts, scoring 12 touchdowns Tuesday against the frosh and making a carbon copy of this performance Wednesday night.

As one member of the Scarlet team expressed it, "We're gonna make up for that tie last week, so pity Missouri!"

The last Husker workout which lasted until almost dusk, was under the direction of Coach Harold Brown and included Mizzou offensive exhibition and snappy passing practice.

Leaving by train tomorrow afternoon at 6:30 o'clock the squad will arrive in Columbia at 6:15 the next morning. A short rally on the station platform at noon will be held by an 80 piece student band plus the Corn Cobs and Tassels and students.

Critics are giving the Huskers, the usual victors of the annual rivalry, the edge, but are also allowing the Bengals a fighting chance to upset.

Paul Amen, versatile former Lincoln high athlete, was chosen game captain for the Mizzou tussle. Amen will start at end, where he has shown all season, both in defensive and scoring roles. Besides his football, the dark haired flankman plays basketball and baseball.

Probable starters: Nebraska: Nelson, Heider, Soren, Smith, Kirk, Rice, Miller, Fisher, Murray, Hamilton, Mahan, Mandala. Missouri: Soren, Heider, Soren, Smith, Kirk, Rice, Miller, Fisher, Murray, Hamilton, Mahan, Mandala.

Although there is a much lauded American tradition of "working one's way thru college, the frequency with which students have actually been able to earn their maintenance during the four year period in which they completed the Bachelor's Degree is so small that to attempt to do so may... be considered poor judgment.

Calling 'Em By Morris Lipp

Intentions of this column were to write some A No. 1 predictions in verse style a la John Lardner, but the hustle and bustle connected with getting ready to go to Columbia for the Tiger taming interfered. Mebbe it's just as well. However, one of these days you'll have the pleasure of reading predictions in rhythmic measure. ... hmn, it's starting already!

Cornhusker opponents get the following rating this week:
NEBRASKA won't have it easy at Columbia, but MISSOURI can't match the Huskers who'll take the tilt by 6 points or more.

INDIANA will coast in far ahead of CINCINNATI as a warm up game for next Saturday's jamboree.

OKLAHOMA, inspired by its deadlock with Nebraska, will squeel the bid of KANSAS for Big Six honors.

PITTSBURGH will successfully emerge from their stalemate with Fordham to run circles around WISCONSIN.

IOWA should nose out MICHIGAN in one of the Big Ten's closest games of the day.

KANSAS STATE will take the happiness out of the homecoming celebration for CREIGHTON.

DRAKE should hand IOWA STATE a defeat, but the Cyclones may surprise.

From coast to coast:
Alabama to stick in the Rose Bowl groove by taking George Washington. . . Arkansas to smear Southern Methodist. . . Army to parade over Washington. . . Baylor to eke out a precious win over Texas A. & M. in the southwest's classic. . . Detroit to bomb Boston. . . Columbia to crush Brown. . . Villanova to bump Bucknell. . . California to win by a shade from Southern California in the west coast's super-colossal ultra-magnificent attraction. . . Temple to take Carnegie Tech by a small margin. . . Duke to add another tilt to Colgate's losses, but it'll be a sweet contest. . . Colorado to crush Colorado State. . . Yale to turn back Cornell on the rebound, but it's a long shot. . . Harvard to defeat Dartmouth in an Ivy league feature. . . Florida to beat Mississippi State. . . Fordham to take Texas Christian in Gotham's biggest show of the day. . . Georgia Tech to smear Auburn. . . Penn to clean Georgetown. . . Lehigh to lick Gettysburg. . . Holy Cross to crush Western Maryland. . . St. Mary's to outdazzle Idaho. . . Manhattan to make merry at Kentucky's expense. . . N. Y. U. to play track meet with Lafayette. . . Louisiana State to continue on winning side despite Vanderbilt, but it'll be good. . . Michigan State to mess up Marquette. . . Notre Dame to sink the Navy in another eastern top-notch. . . Tulane to stunlock North Carolina. . . Ohio State to remove Northwestern from the undated columns in the Big Ten's No. 1 game. . . Tulsa to trip Oklahoma A. & M. . . Oregon State to reverse Oregon. . . Princeton to put Rutgers in a rut. . . Texas to trounce Rice (Ed. Note: Pretty please, D. X., make your Longhorns win as I'm getting tired of missing your outcues weekly and we're all cheering for you!). . . Catholic U. to slam St. Louis. . . Washington to stem Stanford. . . Tennessee to trip Sewanee. . . U. C. L. A. to whip Washington State. . . Here's hoping!

COLLEGE GRADS CAN 'LAND' JOBS AS DATE ESCORTS

Many business men and industrialists prefer college trained men in their organizations, but rarely does any occupation exclude entirely employees who have not attended college. In Washington, however, there is one business which employs college men only.

The National Escort Bureau, which furnishes-for a price-personable young men to escort dateless women to the capital's night spots, will not consider any applicant who does not have a college background.

So, if any young college man looks forward to picking up a little extra money by serving as a professional escort, he may well appreciate his opportunity for college training.

Incidentally, the National Escort Bureau is strictly business and no monkey shines.

Student at Wesleyan Takes Charge of Wolf Creek Airway Station

Wayne Palmer, senior at Nebraska Wesleyan, will replace A. G. Topil, second assistant at the weather bureau. Monday, Mr. Topil has been transferred to Wolf Creek, Ore., to take charge of an airway station there.

Mr. Palmer's appointment resulted from his achieving a high score in the civil service examinations, which he took last spring. His position will be that of junior observer.

Nebraska Fans Will Flaunt Red Quills at Mizzou

Columbia's campus will bloom tomorrow with hundreds of red "N" feathers when Nebraska students pour into town adorned in the traditional symbol of Cornhusker loyalty. Bob Wadhams, president of the Innocents society, sponsor of the red feathers, announced yesterday that feathers are available to all students migrating to Mizzou at Gold & Co.

"We want the whole student section at Columbia to show its colors," Wadhams said, "by having each student wear a red feather to the game. It adds much color to the game and will serve to remind the team that the students are backing them in spirit, if not in numbers."

The traditional quills may be secured anytime today at Gold & Co. Wadhams urged all students attending the Husker-Tiger contest to keep their feathers until game time "in order to make an impressive appearance during the game."

STUART TO FEATURE BIG APPLE DANCE SATURDAY

Lincoln Colored Couples Will Swing to Torrid Rhythm at Midnight Show.

Swinging, truckin' coeds and their boy friends are catching the merry, mad spirit of the Big Apple dance craze, and pianos in all houses are taking a terrific beating.

Students will have a real opportunity to see how the dance is done by "them as really does it" at the midnight Jamboree at the Stuart theater Saturday night at 11:15 o'clock. The pick of Lincoln's colored couples are being brought to Lincoln to furnish the music.

Advance ticket sales for the frolic have been unusually heavy, and students planning to attend are urged to secure tickets before noon Saturday at the Stuart box office.

The Daily Iowan's columnist observes that often the best students are those who know their professor's idiosyncrasies.

Feminine Sports Scribe Chooses List of Winners

By June Bierbower.

Altho last week's net total of 34 right, 7 ties, and 9 completely wrong was nearly as good as the previous week's results, we're still moaning about picking 4 out of 5 "specials" wrong, among which Nebraska and Oklahoma figured prominently. However, Minnesota and Michigan performed in gratifying way to salvage one of the five.

Heading this week's bill for Nebraskaans is the Huskers' clash with the Missouri Tiger, which has been tamer than expected this year. However, Mizzou's hospital list has shrunk visibly as Nebraska's has increased, and with the advantage of playing at home the mule boys should play their best game to date. I'll take Nebraska, tho, by the skin of its teeth.

Kansas Over Creighton. Kansas State and Iowa State go to the Missouri Valley conference for their weekend opponents, the Wildcats engaging Creighton, and Ames taking on Drake. Kansas State should win over Creighton, but Drake will take Kischer-less Ames. In the other conference game Oklahoma's Sooners should beat Kansas.

Ala Alabama will wallop Georgia Washington; Georgia Tech will nip Auburn; Arkansas will down Southern Methodist; Army should take Washington U. of St. Louis without much trouble; Texas A. & M. will edge out Baylor; Columbia will add to Brown's humiliation; California will take another Rose Bowl bound step by beating Southern Cal; Carnegie Tech will best Temple; Indiana will warm up for the Nebraska game next week by crushing Cincinnati; Duke will beat Colgate; Yale will beat Cornell; Dartmouth should win from Harvard; Fordham will put the silencer on Texas Christian.
