

STEEVES GOES TO HAPPY HAUNTING GROUNDS To fill the shoes of Columbian Ed Steeves, who for a year and a half has given you a critical analysis of sports in and around the campus, is indeed a hard task and well nigh impossible but it shall be our attempt to bring you a daily review of the sports world with a pertinent remark thrown in now and then. Mr. Steeves' public will be interested in knowing that he is now doing a column called Happy Haunting Grounds which may be found in other parts of this paper. Now that all of the proper introductions and eulogies have been made let's get down to business.

The University of Minnesota mat squad comes to Lincoln Friday night to engage the Huskers at the coliseum. In view of the fact that the football team ended a long series of Gopher victories on Oct. 2 last, this may be the time for the wrestlers to come through with their share by trouncing the Gophers for the first time in six years. They came very near to defeating the Norsemen last year at Minneapolis but just as Flash Flasiak was about to win the match that would assure victory for the Scarlet and Cream, the Minnesotan put the skids under him and the points were chalked up for the Gophers. The fact that Iowa State Teachers have defeated Minnesota does not indicate that the Norsemen are particularly weak.

The editors of Sports Illustrated in their February issue ask for a cleanup of the American athletic system. They contend that the practice of subsidizing players to participate in amateur sports is unfair to the amateur. This "shamateurism," as they call it, "works a hardship on that competitor who is in the game purely for the love of it."

(By Special Wire to Nebraskan)

LAWRENCE, Kas., Feb. 2.—Nebraska's Cornhuskers went down to a 48-33 defeat here tonight at the hands of a Kansas Jayhawk team which broke loose with all the latent power that had been leashed in previous games. The Huskers were kept in the running by Bob Parsons, veteran Scarlet guard, who garnered 15 of his team's points. During the first half of the game the Huskers managed to stay within six or eight points of their opponents. They retired at half time trailing by an eight point margin, 24-16.

BOB PARSONS

They rang 17 baskets and 14 free throws during the game while Nebraska counted for only 12 field goals and 9 free throws. Fred Pralle, twice all-conference guard of Kansas, matched Nebraska's Parsons goal for goal to score 15 individual points, the high for the Jayhawks.
