COLUMBIA QUINT OVERCOMES 15-14 HALF TIME LEAD

Parsons, Ebaugh, Werner Pace Husker Scorers; Harvey Gets 15.

(Special to the Nebraskan.)

COLUMBIA, Mo., Feb. 12.—Nebraska university's hopes for a comeback in the race for Big Six basketball supremacy faded here tonight when they bowed to the University of Missouri 38-30 before 4,000 spectators. It was the second defeat of the season for Nebraska at the hands of the Tigers.

BOB PARSONS

The Huskers held their own with the Tigers during the first half. Although they fired time after time at the hoop, they failed to connect consistently. The Tigers functioned effectively on defense, hurrying the Scarlet's shots but were unable to penetrate Nebraska's defense. The Huskers were out in front by a one point margin as the half ended, 15-14.

The Tigers turned on the heat in the second half. Led by Bill Harvey, Tiger sophomore forward, who topped the scoring with 15 markers, the Missourians forged ahead of the Huskers and held the lead during the last ten minutes of the game. With Paul Amen, high scoring Nebraska forward, hanging up a blank in the scoring column, the Huskers were forced to depend on Bob Parsons, clever Scarlet guard, to keep them in the game. Parsons accounted for 8 points and was high man for the Huskers. He was thrown out of the game via the foul route in the second half.

Bill Harvey, Missouri forward, was high point man with 15 counters, the same amount that he ran up against the Huskers in Lincoln. Brown, Tigers' center, was next with 9 points and was followed by Nebraska's Parsons.

Biff Jones Ends State-Wide Tour of Football Banquets

N. U. Mentor Back for Spring Practice After Visiting Over 30 Towns.

By John Stuart.

Major "Biff" Jones is back from touring the state. Unable to fill every request, the "Biffer" attended as many football banquets during these winter months in as many towns as he was able.

Starting after the football season closed last November, Major Jones has attended banquets in over 30 towns while the rest of the sports staff visited as many other towns as they were able. Often he attended banquets as high as five nights a week.

Visits West Coast.

Since the "Biffer" was out on the west coast from Dec. 19 to Jan. 10, coaching the West team in preparation for the East-West annual charity game, this cut down on the number of towns which he was able to visit. When he came up here from Oklahoma last spring, he made a tour of some of the towns over the state, and he did not revisit those towns on this last trip but went to those towns where he hadn't been before.

Taking motion pictures along, Biff ran the reels of those games requested by banquetees in the various towns. Shots of the Minnesota, Indiana, and Pittsburgh games were very popular as well as a reel showing the highlights of every game.

Commenting on the high interest which those out in the state took in football, Jones said that Nebraska had only one state university as compared to many states' two, and thus this institution had the advantage of the undivided attention of the entire state.

Outstate Material a Puzzle.

Although he talked to many high school senior football men, Jones could say nothing as to whether the material looked prom-

Backlund, Bill Anderson, Harry Seagren, Jack Rohrbaugh, and Gordon Johnston will take part in the drill. Lieut. Harry Epperson is the director. The performance of the squad will be in connection with a banquet sponsored by the Lincoln chamber of commerce.

ing for the university. He even stated that it was hard to tell a player's talents until he was a sophomore in college. That is, the freshman year in college gave the football player experience but no one could say definitely until the next year how such a man would stand up in varsity competition. "Biff" could recall no amusing incidents which he had on the trip but he was especially pleased with a box of cigars presented to him by one group of admirers. The "Biffer" likes the state, the people, and he was pleased with the turn-outs at the banquets which he attended throughout the state. He said that he found the people on his trip highly "cordial, hospitable, and inspiring."

A READER POKES FUN

To the Sports Editor:

"And the glories of the past returned again."

Oftentimes you have meditated upon the possible combinations of ex-Cornhusker greats in the field of athletics. Many times you have spoken of invincible, although mythical teams, composed of stars of other times. A football team with Lyman, Weir, Ely, Debus, Koster and others in the line, with a backfield of Cardwell, Presnell, "Blue" Howell, and "Jug" Brown; a basketball outfit of Tipton, Usher, Witte, Walquist and Fisher; a track combination including Francis, Locke, Ayres, Rhodes, Wirsig; these outfits would be unbeatable, but they were merely mythical combinations.

But perhaps soon now we may see those teams in action, a reality made of dreams. The right step in that direction (disregarding such minor factors as eligibility rules and right of participation) has been made by an ex-cheerleader, who deigns to again parade in front of delighted fans the tactics that made him a Yell King two years ago.

What does it matter that the man has no right to participation, that his activities detract from the attempts of those chosen for the task, that eligibility rulings are not enforced in his case. He is one of the "greats" of the past, who wishes to supplement his three years of participation in activities with possibly a decade more.

If only others could feel his guiding spirit, could show as little regard for propriety with respect to participation in student activities, shining stars of college life of other years might again return to bless the student populace with their presence. Perhaps, this man should be immortalized as one who showed Nebraska how to obtain unbeatable athletic combinations, unchanging publications staffs, and maybe an unchanging student populace.

With best wishes, until the day when Bill McCleery again heads the Nebraskan, George Farley captains football, Sam Waugh coaches basketball, and the like. D. T.
